PRESENT :

HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR GENERAL IN COUNCIL.

WHEREAS in view of the increasing demands for Dominion Lands in British Columbia, and also the fact that the Office of the New Westminster

Land District is at the extreme west of the Railway Belt, making it inconvenient for persons seeking to obtain entry for lands in the more easterly portion of the Belt, it is considered to be in the public interest that another Dominion Lands District should be created in the Province of British Columbia, to embrace the portion of the said Belt lying eastward of the New Westminster Land District :—

His Excellency, under the authority conferred upon him by chapter 56 of the Revised Statutes, intituled "An Act respecting certain Public Lands in British Columbia," and by and with the advice of the Queen's Privy Council for Canada, is pleased to order that a Dominion Lands District shall be and the same is hereby established, which shall be known as the "Kamloops Land District" and shall comprise the following lands, that is to say :—

All the Dominion Lands within that portion of what is known as the Railway Belt in British Columbia which lies north of the line between townships 15 and 16 and east of the 7th initial meridian of the Dominion Lands system of survey as shewn coloured "green" on the map herewith.

JOHN J. McGEE,
Clerk, Privy Council.

SALE OF DOMINION LANDS.

Sec. 1. The surveyed lands in Manitoba and the North-West Territories shall, for the purposes of these regulations, be classified as follows :—

CLASS B.—All lands not included in Class A.

Sec. 2. The even-numbered sections at the disposal of the Crown in Classes A and B are to be held exclusively for homestead and pre-emption entry, unless in special cases otherwise ordered by the Minister of the Interior, or exempted under the operation of the Dominion Lands Act. (See Sub-Section 4, Section 32, Chapter 54 of the Revised Statutes of Canada.)

Sec. 3. The odd-numbered sections at the disposal of the Crown in Classes A and B and not reserved for or granted to any Railway Company, are to be held exclusively for sale, unless in special cases otherwise ordered by the Minister of the Interior.

Sec. 4. The price of pre-emptions and of odd-numbered sections in Class A shall be $2.50 per acre, and the price of pre-emptions and of odd-numbered sections in Class B shall be $2.00 per acre.

Sec. 5. The Minister of the Interior or the Land Board or the Commissioner of Dominion Lands may, in special cases, order the reservation of lands for intending settlers on receiving satisfactory assurance that the application for such reservation made by or on behalf of the intending entrant has been made in good faith and with the purpose of actual residence upon the land applied for.

Sec. 6. In case it is proved to the satisfaction of the Minister of the Interior that a settler has made any false statement in the affidavit in support of his application for entry, his right to the land shall be forfeited and his entry therefor shall be cancelled.

Sec. 7. The Minister of the Interior may make a free grant of land, not exceeding 40 acres in area, to any religious denomination in Manitoba or the North-West Territories applying therefor in connection with any of their mission stations, or provided the land which is the subject of the application is at the disposal of the Government, and is not within any townsite or other reserve.

Sec. 8. All patents from the Crown for lands in Manitoba and the North-West Territories, shall reserve to Her Majesty, Her Successor and Assigns forever, all mines and minerals which may be found to exist within, upon, or under such lands, together with full power to work the same, and for this purpose to enter upon, and use and occupy the said lands or so much thereof and to such an extent as may be necessary for the effectual working of the said minerals, or the mines, pits, seams and veins containing the same, except in the case of patents for lands which have already been sold or disposed of for valuable consideration, or for lands which have been entered as homesteads before the date upon which these regulations come into force.

Sec. 9. The Minister of the Interior may direct the reservation of odd or even numbered sections or of any portions thereof as timber lands or hay lands for the common use of settlers under lease or permit, and may, under the provisions of the Dominion Lands Act and these Regulations, grant licenses to cut timber upon Dominion Lands.

Sec. 10. The Minister of the Interior may direct the reservation of lands being either odd-numbered or even-numbered sections or portions thereof, and may order the sale thereof as wood lots containing not more than 20 acres and not less than 10 acres each, which shall be paid for at the price of $5 per acre in cash, or in scrip receivable as cash, at the time of sale.

LEASES OF GRAZING LANDS.

Sec. 11. Leases of grazing lands in Manitoba and the North-West Territories, and within the railway belt in the Province of British Columbia, may be granted only after public competition, except in the case of an actual settler, to whom may be leased, without public competition, a tract of land not to exceed four sections in area and to be in the vicinity of the settler's residence. Leases shall be for a period of not exceeding twenty-one years, and no single lease shall cover a greater area than 100,000 acres.

Sec. 12. Parties tendering will be required to state the sum or bonus per acre which they will pay in addition to the ground rent; and each tender must be forwarded in a sealed envelope and be accompanied by an accepted cheque for the amount of such bonus, payable to the order of the Deputy of the Minister of the Interior. No tender by telegraph will be accepted. The lease will be awarded to the party offering the highest bonus therefor.

Sec. 13. In surveyed territory, the land embraced by the lease shall be described in townships and sections. In unsurveyed territory, if required by the Minister of the Interior, the party to whom the lease may be promised shall, before the issue of the lease, cause a survey of the tract to be made at his own expense, by a Dominion Land Surveyor, under instructions from the Surveyor General, and the plan and field notes of such survey shall be deposited on record in the Department of the Interior.

Sec. 14 (a.) The lessee shall pay an annual rental at the rate of $20 for every 1,000 acres covered by his lease, and shall within each of the three years from the date of the Order in Council granting the lease, place upon the tract of land leased not less than one-third of the whole amount of the stock which is required to be placed upon the said tract, namely, one head of cattle for every twenty acres of land covered by the lease, but not to exceed that number, and shall during the rest or its term maintain cattle thereon in that proportion.

(b.) And he shall from time to time, as required by the Minister of the Interior, furnish returns of the amount of stock owned by him.

Sec. 15. After placing the prescribed number of cattle upon the tract leased, the lessee may purchase a reasonable area of land within his leasehold for a home farm and corral, paying therefor at the price per acre in cash obtaining in the class in which the lands so purchased may be situated. This shall not affect the rights of lessees acquired prior to the date thereof, to purchase the said home farm and corral at a less price per acre.

Sec. 16. The whole or any part of any lands authorised to be leased subsequently to the 12th day of January, 1886, unless otherwise provided in any lease thereof, shall be open to homestead and pre-emption entry, or to be purchased from the Government at the price obtaining in the class in which the lands are situate, upon application being made therefor, and as entries are granted or purchase effected, the lease shall become void in respect of the land so entered or purchased.

Sec. 17. A lessee of grazing lands shall not be permitted to homestead lands within any tract leased to another for grazing purposes.

Sec. 18. Failure to fulfil any of the conditions of his lease shall subject the lessee to the forfeiture thereof.

Sec. 19. Whether he be a lessee or not a lessee, no person shall be allowed to place sheep upon Dominion lands in Manitoba and the North-West Territories without permission in writing being first had and obtained from the Minister of the Interior. No person shall be allowed to graze stock of any kind on the public domain, without the consent of the Minister of the Interior being first obtained. The grazing of same will render them liable to seizure and forfeiture by the owner.

FORM OF LEASE OF GRAZING LANDS.

Sec. 20. The following is the form of lease to be used in respect of grazing lands :—

THIS INDENTURE, made in duplicate this day of in the year of Our Lord one thousand eight hundred and

By and between Her Majesty Queen Victoria, represented herein by the Honorable the Minister of the Interior of Canada, of the first part, and hereinafter called the lessee, of the second part.

WHEREAS the lands hereinafter described are "Dominion Lands," within the meaning of the "Dominion Lands Act." :

And whereas the said Act provides among other things, as follows :—"The Governor in Council may, from time to time, grant leases of unoccupied Dominion Lands for grazing purposes to any person or persons for such term of years, and at such rent in each case, as may be deemed expedient ; and every such lease shall contain a condition by which the Governor in Council may authorize the Minister of the Interior, at any time during the term of the lease, to give the lessee notice of cancellation thereof ; and at the end of two years from the service of such notice, such lease shall cease and determine."

And whereas the said lessee, alleging that such lands are unoccupied, has applied for a lease thereof for grazing purpose ;

And whereas the Governor in Council has granted such application upon the conditions herein contained ;

Now therefore this indenture witnesseth that in consideration of, and subject to, the rents, stipulations, provisoes and conditions hereinafter reserved and contained Her Majesty doth hereby demise and lease unto the lessee, all and singular the following lands and premises, viz :—

Save and except such lands in each now surveyed township, forming part of the above described lands, as under the provisions of the said Dominion Lands Act are known and designated as the lands of the Hudson's Bay Company, and also such lands as under the provisions of the said Act are set apart as an endowment for purposes of education ; save and except also all trails, public roads and highways, by land or water, which may be upon the said lands, save and except also such lands as may, under the provisions and conditions of these presents, be or become hereafter withdrawn from the operation thereof, and save and except such land as may be now used or may be required in the future for the use of the Mounted Police Force ;

To have and to hold unto the lessee , subject, as aforesaid, for and during the term of years, computed from the day of one thousand eight hundred and , and thenceforth next ensuing, and fully to be complete and ended, yielding and paying therefor yearly and every year during the said term unto Her Majesty, her successors and assigns the clear rent of dollars per year, to be payable in equal sums half yearly on the day of and each year, the first payment to become due and be made on the day of , subject, however, to reduction of the said rent as hereinafter provided.

These presents are made and issued subject to the following provisoes, terms and conditions, viz :—

1. That the lessee will abide by, perform, fulfil and keep all the provisoes, terms and conditions hereof, and that upon the breach of any of the provisoes, terms or conditions herein contained, whether negative or positive in form, the term hereby granted shall, at the option of the Governor in Council, cease and determine, and Her Majesty, her successors and assigns, may thereupon re-enter upon the demised premises, and hold, possess and enjoy the same as if these presents had never been made.

2. That no waiver on behalf of Her Majesty, her successors or assigns, of any such breach shall take place or be binding upon her or them, unless the same be expressed in writing, under the authority of the Governor in Council ; and any waiver so expressed shall extend only to the particular breach so waived, and shall not limit or affect her or their rights with respect to any other or future breach.

3. That the lessee pay to the Minister of the Interior, or other person duly authorized by Her Majesty, her successors and assigns, in that behalf, the yearly rent hereby reserved, as and when the same becomes due and payable.

4. That the lessee will not, without the consent in writing of the Governor in Council, make any transfer or assignment of these presents, or of interest or any part of interest under these presents, or any sub-lease for the whole or part of the term hereby granted of the lands or any part of the lands hereby leased.

5. That if any such transfer, assignment or sub-lease be so assented to, all the provisoes and conditions herein contained shall extend to and be binding upon the transferee, assignee or sub-lessee, as well as the lessee hereunder, and any breach thereof by such transferee, assignee or sub-lessee shall have the same effect as if such breach were made by the said lessee during continuance as such lessee.

6. That the lessee shall within each of the three years from the date of the Order in Council authorising the issue of the lease, place upon the tract of land hereby demised not less than one-third of the whole amount of the stock which required to place upon the said tract, namely, one head of live cattle for every twenty acres of land covered by these presents, but not to exceed that number, and shall during the rest of the term hereby granted maintain live cattle thereon in that proportion.

The word "cattle" in this clause means bulls, oxen, cows, and horses at least one year old. Cattle now upon the said land, which may have been placed there by the lessee before the date hereof, are to be counted as placed in compliance with this clause.

7. That the lessee will not, during the said term, use or allow to be used any part of the lands and premises hereby demised for any purpose other than grazing purposes within the true intent and meaning of the Dominion Lands Act and of these presents, and will not, during the said term, allow sheep to graze or to be kept upon any part of the said tract, without the consent in writing in that behalf of the Minister of the Interior, and will not, during the said term, cut or destroy, or allow to be cut or destroyed, any timber or timber trees without the consent in writing in that behalf of the Minister of the Interior, and then only in accordance with such terms, conditions and regulations as may be made or established in that behalf.

8. That the whole or any part of the lands hereby demised shall be open to homestead and pre-emption entry, or to be purchased from the Government at the cash price of not less than the price obtaining in the class in which the lands may be situate, upon application being made therefor ; and that as entries are granted or sales effected the lease shall become void in respect of the lands so entered or purchased. And should the Governor in Council at any time during the term hereby granted, think it to be in the public interest to terminate these presents for any reason, the Minister of the Interior of Canada may, on giving the lessee two years' notice, cancel these presents at any time during the time hereby demised.

9. That should the Minister of the Interior at any time, or from time to time during the term hereby granted, think it to be in the public interest to cause any unsurveyed part or parts of the lands hereby demised to be surveyed, the surveyors appointed to make the surveys may, with their assistants, servants, horses and other things required in that behalf, enter upon the land and make the surveys.

10. That so soon as a survey of a township has been made and confirmed, such lands therein, as under the provisions of the said Dominion Lands Act are known and designated as the lands of the Hudson's Bay Company, and also such lands as under the provisions of the said Act are set apart as an endowment for purposes of education, shall thereupon become withdrawn from the operation of these presents, and the term hereby created shall thereupon cease and determine with respect thereto ; but the lessee shall not become entitled to any reduction or abatement of the rent hereby reserved unless and until the said lands have been taken actual possession of by some person under proper authority in that behalf. And in case of such actual possession the lessee shall become entitled to a reduction of the rent hereby reserved, equal to two dollars for every one hundred acres so taken possession of, but shall have no further or other claim or be entitled to any other compensation for or on account of such withdrawal.

11. That should any portion or portions of the land hereby demised be now occupied by any person or persons who may have settled thereon, such persons and those claiming through them shall not be disturbed in their possession by the lessee, unless with the consent, in writing, of the Minister of the Interior ; and the Minister of the Interior may, if he think it expedient so to do, from time to time, give to the lessee written notice that the lands in possession of such persons respectively, and such adjoining lands as he may think proper (but not exceeding in the whole three hundred and twenty acres for each separate settler), are withdrawn from the operation of these presents, and thereupon such lands shall become withdrawn, and the term hereby created shall thereupon cease and determine with respect thereto, and thereupon the lessee shall become entitled to a reduction of the rent hereby reserved, equal to two dollars for every one hundred acres so withdrawn, but shall have no further or other claim, or be entitled to any other compensation for or on account of such withdrawal.

12. That should any portions of the lands hereby demised be thought to contain gold, silver, copper, coal or other minerals, building stone or marble, the Governor in Council may grant licenses to any person or corporation to explore and search for the same subject to such conditions for the protection of the interests of the lessee as the Governor in Council may think proper. And should any portions of the lands hereby demised contain gold, silver, copper, coal or other minerals, building stone or marble, or water-power capable of being used to drive machinery, the Governor in Council may, from time to time, cause written notice to be given to the lessee that the same and such adjoining lands as may be thought proper are withdrawn from the operation of these presents ; and thereupon such lands shall thereupon cease and determine with respect thereto, and thereupon the lessee shall become entitled to a reduction of the rent hereby reserved, equal to two dollars for every one hundred acres so withdrawn, but shall have no further or other claim to be entitled to any other compensation, for or on account of such withdrawal.

13. That should any portions of the lands hereby demised contain timber, the Governor in Council may, subject to such conditions for the protection of the interests of the lessee as the Governor in Council may think proper, grant to any person or corporation, under the provisions of the said Dominion Lands Act, the right under license or permit to enter upon the lands and cut and remove such timber.

14. That should the Canadian Pacific Railway Company or any other railway company, become entitled to a grant from Her Majesty or her successors of any portion of the lands hereby demised, whether as part of their land subsidy provided for by the Statutes of Canada, or for the road-bed of the railway, or its branches, or for stations, station grounds, workshops, dock ground and water frontage on navigable waters, buildings, yards and other appurtenances required for the convenient and effectual construction and working of the railway and its branches, and should any other railway company, pursuant to any legal contact or statute in that behalf, become entitled to a grant from Her Majesty or her successors of any portion of the lands hereby demised, for road-bed and stations, and if Her Majesty or her successors grant the same, the land so granted shall thereupon become withdrawn from the operation of these presents ; and the term hereby created shall thereupon cease and determine with respect thereto, but the lessee shall not become entitled to any reduction or abatement of the rent hereby reserved unless and until the lands so granted have been taken actual possession of by some person under proper authority in that behalf ; and in case of such actual possession the lessee shall become entitled to a reduction of the rent hereby reserved, equal to two dollars for every one hundred acres so taken possession of, but shall have no further or other claim, or be entitled to any other compensation for or on account of such withdrawal.

15. That the word "lessee" in these presents includes the lessee or lessees, as the case may be, and his or their executors, administrators and assigns, and in the case of an incorporated company, their successors and assigns.

16. That no implied covenant or liability of any kind on Her Majesty's part is created by the use of the words "demise and lease" herein, or by the use of any other word or words herein.

17. That any notice, demand, or other communication which Her Majesty or the Minister of the Interior may require or desire to give or serve upon the lessee may be validly given and served by the Secretary or the Assistant Secretary of the Department of the Interior.

In witness whereof the Deputy of the Minister of the Interior, and the lessee, have hereunto set their hands and seals the day and year first above written.

PERMITS TO CUT HAY.

Sec. 21. Permits to cut hay may be granted by any Agent of Dominion Lands or other officer appointed for the purpose by the Minister of the Interior, upon any Dominion or School Lands at the disposal of the Crown, and permits thus granted shall vest in the permittee exclusive rights of ownership as to the hay upon such lands.

Sec. 22. (a). Applications for permits to cut hay may be received after the 1st of January, and permits may be issued on and after the 1st day of April in each year. If before the 1st day of April, more than one permit is applied for covering any section or sections of land or any portion of any section, the Agent, if he can not arrange a division of the land to suit the several applicants, may post a notice in his office calling for tenders for the purchase of the hay upon such lands, and shall issue a permit to the person who may offer the highest cash bonus over and above the regular rates.

(b.) No hay shall be cut on Dominion lands prior to a date to be fixed each year by the Minister of the Interior, which date may vary according to whether the season be early or late.

Sec. 23. The applicant will require to pay an office fee of 50 cents before he can obtain a permit.

Sec. 24. The rates chargeable for permits shall be, to actual settlers who require the hay for their own use, 10 cents per acre or 10 cents per ton, and to all other persons the rate shall be $1.00 per acre or $1.00 per ton, to be paid in full at the time or application.

Sec. 25. The Agent may, in his discretion, issue a permit covering a specified area of land or a specified quantity of hay as the circumstances of the case may, in his opinion, render advisable.

LEASES TO CUT HAY.

Sec. 26. Leases of School Lands in the North-West Territories for the purpose of cutting hay thereon may be issued for a term not exceeding five years ; provided that a lease shall not issue to any person for more than a section, or less than a quarter section, and that such lease shall be revocable at any time it may be deemed advisable by the Minister of the Interior to offer the land so leased for sale by public auction in the interest of the School Endowment, or for any other reason, and that in such case the lessee shall receive one year's notice of the intention of the Minister to terminate the lease, but shall not be entitled to compensation for any improvements made by him ; and further, that in case of there being only one applicant for the lease of a School Section, or any part thereof, the rental shall be at the rate of 25 cents per acre per annum, but where there is more than one applicant for such lease, it shall be put up for tender at an upset rental of 25 cents per acre per annum, which would be the product of a minimum price of $5.00 per acre, provided the money were invested at 5 per cent. per annum.

Sec. 27. A settler in the vicinity of unoccupied hay lands may obtain a lease for an area thereof not exceeding one-fourth of a quarter-section, or forty acres, for such term and at such rent as the Minister deems expedient ; but such lease shall not operate to prevent, at any time during its term, the sale or settlement of the land ; and in the case of such sale or settlement, the lessee shall be paid by the purchaser or settler, for fencing or other improvement made, such sum as the local agent determines; and the lessee shall be allowed to remove any hay he has cut.

CUTTING HAY WITHOUT AUTHORITY.

Sec. 28. The permit or lease shall describe the lands upon which the hay may be cut, and shall during its continuance vest in the permittee or lessee the exclusive right of ownership to the hay upon such lands, whether such hay is cut by his authority or by any person without his authority, and such permit or lease shall entitle the permittee or lessee to seize in replevin, revendication, or otherwise, as his property, such hay where the same is found in the possession of any unauthorised person, and also to bring any suit or action against any person unlawfully in possession of such hay, and to prosecute all persons cutting hay in trespass upon the land covered by the permit or lease to conviction and punishment and to recover damages, if any, and all proceedings pending at the expiration of any such permit or lease may be continued and completed, as if the permit or lease had not expired.

Sec. 29. If any person without authority, cuts or employs or induces any other person to cut or assist in cutting any hay or grass of any kind on Dominion lands, or removes or carries away, or employs or induces or assists any other person to remove or carry away, any hay or grass of any kind so cut, he shall not acquire any right to such hay or grass or any claim for remuneration for cutting the same, preparing the same for market, or conveying the same to or towards market, and when the hay has been removed out of reach of the Dominion Lands Agent, or it is otherwise found impossible to seize it, he shall, in addition to the loss of his labor and disbursements (and in addition to the value of the hay so cut by him) incur a penalty not exceeding one hundred dollars, and not less than ten dollars for every such offence, which shall be recoverable with costs in a summary manner before a Judge of the Supreme Court of the North West Territories, a Stipendiary Magistrate, Commissioner of Police, or any two Justices of the Peace under "The Summary Convictions Act," and in default of immediate payment of such penalty and the costs of prosecution, the offender may be imprisoned for any term not exceeding three months.

Sec. 30. In such cases it shall be incumbent on the party to prove his right or authority to cut and take the hay or grass in question, and the averment of the person seizing or prosecuting that he is duly authorised so to do (or that he is duly empowered under the authority of the Dominion Lands Act) shall be sufficient proof thereof, unless the defendant proves the contrary.

Sec. 31. Whenever any Dominion Lands Agent, Crown Timber Agent or other officer receives satisfactory information, supported by affidavit, made before any Justice of the Peace or before any other competent officer or person, that any grass or hay has been cut without authority on Dominion Lands, or if such Dominion Lands Agent, Crown Timber Agent or officer from other sources of information or his own knowledge, is aware that any hay or grass has been cut without authority, on any such lands, he may seize or cause to be seized in Her Majesty's name, the hay or grass so reported or known to be cut, and place the same under proper custody, until the matter is decided by competent authority.

Sec. 32. Moneys and fines collected under these Regulations shall be paid over to the credit of the Receiver General, and form part of the Consolidated Revenue Fund of Canada.

Sec. 33. Any officer or person seizing hay in the discharge of his duty under these Regulations, may, in the name of the Crown, call in any assistance necessary for securing and protecting the hay so seized.

DISPOSAL OF COAL LANDS, THE PROPERTY OF THE DOMINION GOVERNMENT, IN MANITOBA, THE NORTH-WEST TERRITORIES AND BRITISH COLUMBIA.

Sec. 34 (a.) Lands containing anthracite coal may be sold at an upset price of $20.00 per acre, cash, and coal other than anthracite, at an upset price of $10.00 per acre, cash, or may be sold by public competition if the Minister of the Interior shall so decide.

(b) Not more than three hundred and twenty acres shall be sold to one applicant.

Sec. 35. When there is more than one applicant for the same coal location, the Minister of the Interior may invite competition between the several applicants, or offer the land for sale at public competition by tender or by auction as he may think expedient, at the upset price of coal lands.

Sec. 36. In cases where the Minister of the Interior satisfies himself that companies, or persons, have expended considerable sums of money in exploring for coal on lands for which they may have applied under the Regulations of the 17th of December, 1881, the said lands may be sold to such companies or persons at the upset price fixed for such lands.

Sec. 37. The boundaries beneath the surface of coal mining locations shall be the vertical planes or lines in which their surface boundaries lie.

Sec. 38. The rights of lessees, and of persons in favor of whom Orders in Council authorizing leases have been passed, shall not be affected by these Regulations.

Sec. 39. The Minister of the Interior may, upon application, grant permission to prospect for coal for a period of sixty days, and such permission may cover any single tract of land not exceeding three hundred and twenty acres in extent.

Sec. 40. If the land sought for be not included in any surveyed township, the applicant shall take out the same, by placing at each angle or corner thereof a stake or post at least four inches square, and standing not less than four feet above the surface of the ground; and upon each post he shall inscribe his name and the angle represented thereby thus: "A. B's. N. E. Corner," (meaning North East Corner) or as the case may be; except such posts are so planted before an application for permission to prospect is made, all the proceedings taken by the applicants shall be void: also with his application he shall forward to the Minister of the Interior a map or sketch of the land as staked out, specifying metes and bounds, and showing thereon the best information in his power respecting the same, and all boundaries so staked out shall be due north and south, and east and west lines, and the length thereof shall not exceed twice the breadth; if, however, the land has already been included in any general survey then the official number of the section or sections, part or legal sub-divisions of a section shall be given.

Sec. 41. The party or parties to whom permission to prospect may be given, shall, within one month from the date of such permission, commence operations and carry on the same continuously throughout the remainder of the period covered thereby; and shall expend in such prospecting a sum at the rate of not less than $2.00 per day from the time of commencement of the same; and the permission so given shall become void if the said operations cease for one week during the remainder of the period for which such permission is given.

Sec. 42. On application to the Minister of the Interior, the time covered by permission to prospect, may be extended, if the applicant has complied with the above requirements, and provided there are no other applicants for the lands comprised therein; should there be others, however, it will be necessary that the right to prospect be acquired by competition amongst the applicants.

Sec. 43. If the time covered by permission to prospect be extended it will be necessary that prospecting operations be carried on continuously from the date of such extension.

LANDS PATENTED OR ENTERED, ON WHICH THE MINING RIGHTS HAVE BEEN RESERVED.

Sec. 44. (a.) Any person or persons desirous of obtaining permission to prospect for minerals and lands that have been patented or entered and on which the mining rights have been reserved, shall make application therefor to the Minister of the Interior.

(b.) Such application shall be in writing, defining clearly the area applied for, which area must not exceed 320 acres.

(c.) If the Minister of the Interior sees no objection to the application being granted, the applicant will be given permission to prospect for a period of sixty days, upon furnishing the Minister with proof that he has complied with the provisions of the following sub-section.

(d.) The applicant shall enter into a bond, with two sureties to the satisfaction of the Superintendent of Mines, to recompense the owner or occupant of the soil for damages that may be done to his lands.

(e.) If the proprietor of lands so entered upon shall seek damages, he shall before the end of two months after the expiration of the permission given, make his claims in writing against the prospector, detailing the particulars and amount of claim; and if the claim is not adjusted by agreement between the parties within one month after notice thereof as aforesaid, it shall be settled by arbitration in the manner prescribed in sections 50 and 51 of these regulations.

Sec. 45. (a.) The permission given to prospect shall be subject to the conditions of section 41 of these regulations.

(b.) A renewal for a further period of sixty days may be granted provided that the conditions of these regulations have been complied with, but should there be other applicants for the lands over which permission to prospect has been given, competition amongst the same will be invited.

Sec. 46. No permission to prospect shall authorise entry upon any buildings, or the curtilage appertaining to any house, store, barn or building, or upon any garden, orchard, or grounds reserved for ornament, or under cultivation by growing crops, and enclosed; except with the consent of the occupier or permission from the Minister of the Interior upon special application setting forth the circumstances under which the same is applied for, and on such terms as the case may require.

Sec. 47. If, at the expiration of the period for which permission has been given to prospect on lands, it be desired to acquire the mining rights thereunder, they will be sold at the rate and on the terms prescribed by the mining regulations, less the price ruling for surface rights in the class in which the lands may be situated.

Sec. 48. Before a patent of the mining rights of any lands can be issued, it will be necessary for the party obtaining the same, to furnish proof to the Minister of the Interior that he has acquired the surface rights of the lands from the owner or agent or occupier of such lands.

Sec. 49. If the occupier of the lands has not received a patent therefor, the purchase money of the surface rights must be paid to the Crown, and a patent of the surface rights will issue to the party who acquired the mining rights. The money so collected will either be refunded to the occupier of the land, when he is entitled to a patent therefor, or will be credited to him on account of payment for land.

Sec. 50. When the party obtaining the mining rights to lands can not make an arrangement with the owner or his agent or the occupant thereof for the acquisition of the surface rights, it shall be lawful for him to give notice to the owner or his agent or the occupant to appoint an arbitrator to act with another arbitrator named by him, in order to award the amount of compensation to which the owner or occupant shall be entitled. The notice mentioned in this Section shall be according to a form to be obtained upon application from the Agent of Dominion Lands for the District in which the lands in question lie, and shall, when practicable, be personally served on such owner, or his agent if known, or occupant; and after reasonable efforts have been made to effect personal service, without success, then such notice shall be served by leaving it at, or sending by registered letter to the last place of abode of the owner, agent or occupant. Such notice shall be served if the owner or agent resides in the District in which the land is situated, ten days; if out of the District and within the Province, thirty days, before the expiration of the time limited in such notice. If the proprietor refuses or declines to appoint an arbitrator, or when for any other reason, no arbitrator is appointed by the proprietor in the time limited therefor in the notice provided for by this Section, the Agent of Dominion Lands for the District in which the lands in question lie, shall, on being satisfied by affidavit that such notice has come to the knowledge of such owner, agent or occupant, or that such owner, agent or occupant wilfully evades the service of such notice, or can not be found, and that reasonable efforts have been made to effect such service, and that the notice was left at the last place of abode of such owner, agent or occupant, appoint an arbitrator on his behalf.

Sec. 51. (a) All the arbitrators appointed under the authority of these regulations shall be sworn before a Justice of the Peace to the impartial discharge of the duties assigned to them, and they shall forthwith proceed to estimate the reasonable damages which the owners or occupants of such lands according to their several interests therein, shall sustain by reason of such prospecting operations.

(b.) In estimating such damages, the arbitrators shall determine the value of the land irrespectively of any enhancement thereof from the existence of minerals therein.

(c.) In case such arbitrators cannot agree, they may select a third arbitrator; and when two arbitrators cannot agree upon a third arbitrator, the Agent of Dominion Lands for the District in which the lands in question lie, shall select such third arbitrator.

(d.) The award of any two such arbitrators made in writing shall be final, and shall be filed with the Agent of Dominion Lands for the District in which the lands lie.

AT THE GOVERNMENT HOUSE AT OTTAWA.

HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR GENERAL IN COUNCIL.

HIS Excellency, in virtue of the powers vested in him by chapters 54 and 56 of the Revised Statutes, intituled respectively "An Act respecting Public Lands" and "An Act respecting certain Public Lands in British Columbia," and by and with the advice of the Queen's Privy Council for Canada, is pleased to make the following regulations governing the granting of yearly licenses and permits to cut timber on Dominion Lands in Manitoba, the North-West Territories and within twenty miles on either side of the Canadian Pacific Railway, in the Province of British Columbia.

JOHN J. McGEE,
Clerk, Privy Council.

REGULATIONS AFFECTING TIMBER ON DOMINION LANDS.

TIMBER LICENSES.

Section 1. (a.) All licences to cut timber shall be disposed of by public competition.

(b). Parties tendering will be required to state the sum or bonus per square mile which they will pay in addition to the ground rent and royalty; and each tender must be forwarded in a sealed envelope and be accompanied by an accepted cheque payable to the order of the Deputy Minister of the Interior for the amount of such bonus. No tender by telegraph will be accepted. The limit will be awarded to the party offering the highest bonus therefor.

(c.) The foregoing clauses of this Section shall not apply to any person who on or prior to the 1st day of April, 1889, has applied for, staked out the land sought for, and published notice of application for license to cut timber west of Eagle Pass in the Railway Belt in the Province of British Columbia.

(d.) The length of any berth covered by a license shall in no case exceed three times the breadth thereof.

Sec. 2. (a.) The license shall pay a ground rent of five dollars per square mile, except for lands situated west of Eagle Pass, in the Province of British Columbia, in which case the ground rent shall be five cents an acre.

(b.) Within a month after the date of the Order in Council granting a timber berth, the party in whose favor it is passed shall pay the rent for the year in advance, and if not then paid the said rent shall bear interest at the rate of six per cent. per annum from that date until the same is paid.

(c.) The licensee shall pay a royalty of five per cent. on the amount of the sales of all products of the berth

Saw logs and other timber for manufacture taken from the berth must be manufactured at the saw mill of the licensee to be operated in connection with the berth as prescribed in clause (f) of this section.

(d.) On the first day of May in each year all licensees of timber berths shall furnish through themselves, their scalers and foremen to the Crown Timber Agent, having jurisdiction in the matter, or such officer as the Minister of the Interior may appoint for that purpose, a statement in writing in detail, upon oath, setting forth the number of pieces of timber, saw logs and other lumber, and the correct content in board measure of the same as scaled by Scribner's log rule, cut under his or their license during the twelve months immediately prior to making said statement. Should it so result from any cause whatsoever that the amount of Lumber accounted for in the return of sales of the products of the berth, should fall short of the amount shown to have been cut or taken from the timber berth, the holder of such license shall account to the Minister of the Interior for such discrepancy and pay for said deficiency a royalty of five per cent. upon the value thereof, the value being calculated upon the average price of his or their sales of Lumber for the six months prior to making the return as aforesaid.

(e.) It is also required that all licensees through themselves, their scalers and foremen, shall furnish satisfactory proof upon oath on the said first day of May of each year as to the exact locality, by a ground sketch, where all timber, saw logs or other lumber cut by themselves and others, to their knowledge, upon the timber berth held or occupied by him or them respectively have been cut.

(f.) The licensee shall have in operation within a year from a date to be fixed in the license, and keep in operation for at least six months of each year of his holding, a saw mill in connection with his berth capable of cutting in twenty-four hours a thousand feet board measure for every two and a half square miles of the area licensed, or shall establish such other manufactory of wood goods as the Minister accepts as equivalent thereto.

(g.) Any right to a timber berth, acquired under an Order in Council, can not be assigned or transferred without the consent of the Minister of the Interior.

Sec. 3. The licensee of a timber berth shall not be held to have any claim whatever to a renewal of his license, unless such renewal is provided for in the Order in Council, under which it was obtained, but when a licensee has fully complied with all the conditions herein set forth, and where no portion of the timber berth is required for settlement or other public purpose, of which the Minister of the Interior is to be the judge, the license may be renewed for another year subject to such revision of the annual rental and royalty to be paid therefor as may be fixed by the Governor in Council.

Sec. 4. (a.) In unsurveyed territory the party to whom a license shall be promised shall, before the issue of said license and before the said party shall cut any timber, cause to be made at his own expense under the instruction of the Surveyor General, a survey of his timber berth by a duly qualifield Dominion Land Surveyor, and the plan and field notes of such survey shall be deposited on record in the Department of the Interior, but he shall be held liable fo the dues upon timber that may be cut by any one on the berth subsequent to ten days from the date upon which he is notified that the berth has been awarded to him. The dues upon such timber to be fixed by the Minister of the Interior.

Sec. 5. If in consequence of any incorrectness in survey or other error or cause whatsoever, a timber berth is found to comprise lands included in another berth awarded at a prior date, or any lands sold, granted, leased or lawfully set apart for any other purpose under these regulations or the Dominion Lands Act, the later berth shall be void in so far as it interferes with any previous sale, grant or setting apart.

Sec. 6. All ground rents, royalties or other dues on timber cut within the boundaries of any timber berth, which are not paid at the time when they become due, shall bear interest at the rate of six per cent. per annum until paid, and shall be a lien on any timber cut within such limits; and in case of such non-payment—whether, in consequence thereof the license of the berth has or has not been cancelled—the Crown Timber Agent or other person authorised thereto may, with the sanction of the Minister, seize so much of the timber cut on such berth as will, in his opinion, be sufficient to secure the payment of such rent or royalty and all interest and expenses of seizure and sale, and may detain the same as security for the payment thereof; and if payment is not made within three months after such seizure, he may with the sanction of the Minister, sell such timber by public auction, and after deducting the sum due to the Crown, the interest thereon and expenses aforesaid, he shall pay over the balance, if any, to the licensee, if the timber was in his possession at the time of seizure, or if it was not, to the person who had possession thereof at the time.

Sec. 7. All timber cut under license shall be liable for the payment of the Crown dues thereon, whenever and wherever the said timber, or any part of it, is found, whether it is or is not converted into deals, boards or any other manufacture of wood; and all officers or agents employed in the collection of such dues may follow all such timber and may seize and detain the same wherever it is found, until the dues thereon are paid or secured, as provided in the next preceding clause.

Sec. 8. If the payment of the Crown dues on any timber has been evaded by any licensee or other person, by the removal of such timber or products out of Canada, or otherwise, the amount of dues so evaded and any expenses incurred by the Crown in enforcing payment of the said dues under the Dominion Lands Act, may be added to the dues remaining to be collected on any other timber cut on any timber berth by the licensee or by his authority, and may be levied and collected or secured on such timber, together with such last mentioned dues, in the manner hereinbefore provided; or the amount due to the Crown, of which payment has been evaded, may be recovered by action or suit in the name of the Minister or his agent, in any court of competent jurisdiction.

Sec. 9. The Minister may take or authorise the taking of bonds or promissory notes for any money due to the Crown, as aforesaid, or in his discretion, for double the amount of any dues, penalties and costs incurred or to be incurred, and may, if it is under seizure, then release any timber upon which the same would be leviable; but the taking of such bonds or notes shall not affect the right of the Crown to enforce payment of such money, and the debt shall be a lien on any timber cut on the same or on any other berth, by the licensee or by his authority, if the sums for which such bonds or notes are given are not paid when due.

FORM OF TIMBER LICENSE.

Sec. 10. The following is the form of license to be used in respect of timber lands:

KNOW ALL MEN BY THESE PRESENTS, that by virtue of the authority vested in me by the Dominion Lands Act, and by an order of His Excellency the Governor-General in Council of the   day of   18 ,   I,   the Minister of the Interior of Canada, do hereby, in consideration of the sum of   , ground rent now paid to me for the use of Her Majesty, and in consideration of the royalty hereinafter mentioned, give unto   hereinafter called the licensee   executors and administrators, full right, power and license, subject to the conditions and restrictions hereinafter mentioned and contained, to cut timber on the following tract of land (hereinafter called the "berth" or "berths"), that is to say:—

and to take and keep exclusive possession of the said lands, except as hereinafter mentioned for and during the period of one year from the   day of   18 , to the   day of   18 , and no longer.

This license shall vest in the licensee, subject to the conditions hereinafter mentioned, all right of property whatsoever in all trees, timber, lumber, and other products of timber cut within the "berths" during the continuance thereof, whether such trees, timber and lumber or products be cut by authority of the licensee or by any other person, with or without   consent; and shall entitle the licensee to seize in replevin, revendication or otherwise, as   property, such timber where the same is found in the possession of any unauthorised person, and also to bring any action or suit, at law or in equity, against any party unlawfully in possession of any such timber, or of any land so leased, and to prosecute all trespassers thereon and other such offenders as aforesaid, to conviction and punishment, and to recover damages, if any ; and all proceedings pending at the expiration of this license may be continued and completed as if the same had not expired.

But this license is subject to the following conditions, viz :—

1. That the licensee shall not have the right thereunder to cut timber of a less diameter than ten (10) inches, except such as may be actually necessary for the construction of roads, &c., to facilitate the taking out of merchantable timber.

2. That this license shall not be allowed to interfere with the settlement of any lands within the "berths" which may be desirable for settlement, the Minister of the Interior to be the judge of the fact, and the only recourse of the licensee against the ruling of the Minister in favor of permitting settlement within such "berths" to be that (the licensee) may within sixty days after receiving notice to the above effect from the Local Agent of Dominion Lands, remove all timber on such lands which may be over ten inches in diameter.

Further that this license shall not prevent individual Homestead Settlers holding free permits heretofore or hereafter given under the Order in Council, dated the day of , 18 , or under any subsequent Order in Council passed in such behalf, from cutting and removing from the land covered by this license such quantity of building timber, fence rails, or firewood, as such permit may set forth ; and the Government may, notwithstanding this license gave such permits to individual Homestead Settlers from time to time under said Order in Council or any subsequent Order in Council.

3. That the licensee shall take from every tree cut down all the timber fit for use, and manufacture the same into sawn lumber or some other saleable product.

4. That the licensee shall prevent all unnecessary destruction of growing timber on the part of men, and exercise strict and constant supervision to prevent the origin or spread of fires.

5. That the licensee shall make returns to the Government monthly, or at such other periods as may be required by the Minister of the Interior, or by regulations under the said Act, sworn to by or by agent or employé, cognizant of the facts, declaring the quantities sold or disposed of, of all sawn lumber, timber, railway car stuff, ship timbers and knees, shingles, laths, cordwood, or bark, or any other product of timber from the berth, in whatever form the same may be sold or otherwise disposed of by during such month or other period, and the price or value thereof.

6. That the licensee shall pay, in addition to the said ground rent, a royalty of five per cent. on his monthly account of sales as above.

7. That the licensee shall keep correct books of such kind and in such form as may be provided by regulation under the said Act, and submit the same for the inspection of the collector of dues whenever required, for the purpose of verifying returns aforesaid.

8. This license shall be subject to the right of the Crown to deal, in accordance with the provisions of the said Act and the regulations made under it by the Governor in Council, with any and all stone, coal and other minerals found within the limits of the berth licensed ; and the Crown shall have the right in dealing, as above provided, with any stone, coal or other minerals in lands licensed as timber limits, to authorise the persons to whom such stone, coal or other minerals are granted, to take possession of and occupy such extent of the land so licensed as is necessary to work such stone, coal or other minerals, and to open necessary roads through any such timber berth, paying the licensee of the berth the value of any and all timber necessarily cut in making such roads or in working the quarries or mines ; and the provisions of this clause shall operate retrospectively, that is to say :—They shall apply to all licenses of timber berths heretofore granted under any Act respecting Dominion Lands, as if they had been contained in such Act when it was passed.

9. This license shall be subject to forfeiture for infraction of any one of the conditions to which it is subject, or for any fraudulent return ; and in such case the Minister of the Interior shall have the right without any suit or other proceeding at law or in equity, or compensation to the licensee, to cancel the same, and to make a new license or disposition of the said "berth" to any other party, at any time during the term hereby granted. Provided, that the Minister of the Interior, if he sees fit, may refrain from forfeiting such license for non-payment of dues, and may enforce payment of dues in the manner provided by the said Act :

Provided, that if during the said term of one year any actual waiver on the part of the Minister of the Interior, or of any one on his behalf, of the benefit of any condition in this license shall take place in any one particular instance, such actual waiver shall not be assumed or deemed to extend to any instance or any branch of such condition, other than that to which such waiver shall specially relate, nor to be a general waiver of the benefit of such condition. Provided, that whenever in the above conditions the word "licensee" occurs, it is to be taken to extend to and include the executors, administrators and assigns of the "licensee" :

Provided further, that the Minister of the Interior shall be the sole judge of the fact in regard to infraction or alleged infraction, of any one of the conditions of this license, and that his decision in relation thereto shall be binding and conclusive.

10. If upon the final location of the Canadian Pacific Railway the whole or part of the lands described in this license, should be found to fall within twenty-four miles of the said line on either side thereof, or if the whole or part of the said lands form part of any tract which may be granted to the said Company as a portion of the land subsidy to which they are entitled under their charter, the sections in the whole or part of such lands, as the case may be, bearing uneven numbers will thereby, after such final location, and as soon as due notice thereof in writing has been served upon the licensee or legal representatives, be withdrawn from the operation of this license, but the licensee or legal representatives shall be at liberty to remove all timber then cut and all other property belonging to then on the lands thereby withdrawn from the operation of this license.

11. This license can not be assigned or transferred without the consent of the Minister of the Interior.

12. The licensee shall have in operation within one year from the day of 18 , and keep in operation for at least six months of each year of his holding, a saw-mill in connection with the berth herein described, capable of cutting in twenty-four hours a thousand feet board measure for every two and a half square miles of the area licensed.

Sec. 23. In order that mill owners may be able to give satisfactory evidence that saw logs or lumber found in their possession have been lawfully cut, they should require from settlers bringing timber to be sawn, proof that the same has not been cut on Dominion lands, or that it has been cut under a permit, which the settler should produce in order that its number, its date, and the name of the permittee may be noted by the mill owner. The latter should also record the quantity of such timber sawn by him, so that he may be in a position to duly protect himself should an account or return thereof be demanded by agents of the Department.

Sec. 24. The applicant will require to pay an office fee of twenty-five cents before he can obtain a permit, but no dues will be charged for the timber or wood cut under and in accordance therewith.

Sec. 25. Homesteaders whose farms may have thereon a supply of timber, or who are in possession of wood lots or other timbered lands, will not be granted a free permit.

Surveys.

Sec. 3. The Dominion lands in British Columbia shall be laid off, so far as practicable, in quadrilateral townships, each containing thirty-six sections of as nearly one mile square as the convergence of meridians permits, together with an allowance of twelve acres in each section for road purposes :

The sections shall be bounded and numbered as shown by the following diagram :—

Sec. 4. The lines bounding sections on the east and west sides shall be meridians ; and those on the north and south sides shall be chords to parallels of latitude.

Sec. 5. Each section shall be divided into quarter-sections of one hundred and sixty acres, more or less, together with an allowance for roads of three acres in each, subject to the provisions hereinafter made.

Sec. 6. In the survey of a township, the deficiency or surplus resulting from convergence of meridians shall be divided equally between all the quarter-sections involved, and the north and south error in closing on the correction lines from the north or south shall be allowed in the ranges of quarter-sections adjoining, and north or south respectively of the said correction lines ; excepting in the case of the north and south closings in those townships between the first correction line and the international boundery or first base line, which error is to be left in the last quarter section adjoining the said first base line.

Sec. 7. The dimensions and areas of irregular quarter-sections shall in all cases be returned by the surveyor at their actual measurements and contents.

Sec. 8. To facilitate the description for letters patent of less than a quarter-section, every section shall be supposed to be divided into quarter-quarter-sections, of forty and three-quarters acres, and such quarter-quarter-sections shall be numbered as shown in the following diagram, which is intended to show such sub-divisions of a section, which shall be styled legal sub-divisions :—

The area of any legal sub-division, as above set forth, shall, in letters patent, be held to be more or less, and shall in each case be represented by the exact quantity as given to such sub-division in the original survey.

Sec. 9. The Governor in Council may order the survey by a Dominion Land Surveyor of such public highways as he may deem expedient through any lands subject to these regulations :

(a.) On the approval of the survey of a public highway, the fact shall be notified to the Lieutenant Governor of British Columbia by the Minister of the Interior, and, by virtue of such notification, such public highway shall become the property of the said Province, the legal title thereto remaining in the Crown for the public use of the Province ; but no such road shall be closed up or its direction varied, or any part of the land occupied by it sold or otherwise alienated, without the consent of the Governor General in Council :

(b.) The Governor in Council may authorise any person to locate and build public highways or to build public highways located in accordance with the provisions of this section (9) of these regulations :

(c.) In the meantime, and until any such road shall have been located and constructed, a convenient right of way not exceeding 66 feet in width over any such land is hereby reserved for the use and convenience of settlers and landholders in passing, from time to time, to and from their locations or lands to and from any now existing public road or trail : Provided always that such settler or landowner, making use of the aforesaid privilege shall not damage the fences or crops of the occupier of any such located, sold or leased land :

(d.) Every patent issued for lands subject to these regulations shall contain a provision reserving to the Governor in Council the power to order the survey through such lands by a Dominion Land Surveyor of such public highways as he may deem expedient, and for that purpose to take any existing road, and any requisite area of land, whether the area of the roads and lands so taken be or be not in excess of the allowance for roads in any section, quarter-section or legal sub-division ; also to enter upon such lands and take thereon any gravel, stone, timber, or other material required for the construction of such highway or any bridge connected therewith ; and also to enter upon any such land for the purpose of cutting any drains necessary for the building of such highway.

Ordinary Sale of Lands.

Sec. 60. Dominion lands, as the surveys thereof are duly made and confirmed, shall, except as otherwise hereinafter provided, be open for homesteading and purchase at such prices and on such terms and conditions as may be fixed from time to time by the Governor in Council : Provided, that no purchase shall be permitted at a less price than five dollars per acre : Provided also, that, except in special cases where otherwise ordered by the Governor in Council, no sale to one person shall exceed a section, or six hundred and forty acres :

(a.) And provided also, that, whenever so ordered by the Minister, such unoccupied lands as may be deemed by him expedient, from time to time, may be withdrawn from ordinary sale and settlement, and sold at public auction or tender to the highest bidder—an upset price being fixed for the same :

(b.) Provided further, that any legal sub-division or other portion of Dominion lands which may be deemed by the Minister of the Interior of special value, may be reserved from ordinary sale and be disposed of in such manner and on such terms and conditions as may be fixed by the Governor in Council on the report of the Minister of the Interior.

Town Plots, &c.

Sec. 11. The Minister of the Interior shall have power to withdraw from sale or homestead entry any tract or tracts of land, and to lay the same out into town or village lots, the lots so laid out to be sold, either by private sale and for such price as he may see fit, or at a public auction or tender, an upset price being fixed for the same :

The Governor in Council may set apart and appropriate such Dominion lands as he may deem expedient for the sites of market places, gaols, court houses, places of public worship, burying grounds, schools, benevolent institutions, squares, and for other like public purpose, and at any time before the issue of letters patent therefor may alter or revoke, such appropriation, as he deems expedient ; and he may make free grants for the purposes aforesaid of the lands so appropriated—the trusts and uses to which they are to be subject being expressed in the letters patent.

Sec. 12. The provisions of Sections numbered 13 to 29 of these regulations, both inclusive, shall not apply to lands settled upon after the first day of January, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one.

Homestead Rights.

Sec. 13. Any person, male or female, who is the sole head of a family, or any male who has attained the age of eighteen years, who has not heretofore had a homestead on Dominion lands in British Columbia, Manitoba or the North-West Territories, or does not hold or own by pre-emption record or otherwise, under the laws of the Province of British Columbia, more than one hundred and sixty acres of land within the railway belt in the said Province, shall, on making application in the form A in the Schedule to this Order, be entitled to obtain homestead entry for any quantity of land not exceeding one quarter-section, and being of the class ef land open under the provisions of these regulations to homestead entry :

(a.) The entry for a homestead shall entitle the recipient to take, occupy and cultivate the land entered for and hold possession of the same to the exclusion of any other person or persons whomsoever, and to bring and maintain actions for trespass committed on the said land, the same as if a patent therefor had issued in his favor ; the title to the land shall remain in the Crown until the issue of the patent therefor, and the said land shall not be liable to be taken in execution before the issue of patent :

(b.) The privilege of homestead entry shall only apply to surveyed agricultural lands ; no person shall be entitled to such entry for land valuable for its timber, or for hay land, or for land on which there is a stone or marble quarry, or coal or other mineral having commercial value, or whereon there is any water power which may serve to drive machinery, or for land which by reason of its position, such as being the shore of an important harbor, bridge site or canal site, or being either an actual or prospective railway terminus or station, it will be in the public interest to withhold from such entry.

Homestead Entries and Sales affecting Timbered Lands.

Sec. 14. All merchantable timber growing or being upon any land entered or sold within the limits of Dominion lands in British Columbia, and all gold, silver, copper, lead, iron, petroleum, coal or other mines or minerals shall be considered as reserved from the said land, and shall be the property of Her Majesty, except that the homesteader or purchaser, or those claiming under him, may cut and use such merchantable timber as may be necessary for the purpose of building, fencing or road-making, on the land so entered or sold, and may also, under the authority of the Crown timber agent, cut and dispose of all timber required to be removed in the actual clearing of the said land for cultivation ; but no merchantable timber (except for the necessary building, fencing or road-making as aforesaid) shall be cut beyond the limit of such actual clearing ; and all merchantable timber cut in the process of clearing, and disposed of, shall be subject to the payment of the same dues as at the time payable by the holders of licenses to cut timber.

Sec. 15. The patents for all lands, hereafter entered or sold as aforesaid, shall contain a reservation of all merchantable timber growing or being on the said lands, which merchantable timber shall continue to be the proprety of Her Majesty ; and any person or persons now or hereafter holding a license to cut timber on such land, may, at all times during the continuance of such license, enter upon the uncleared portion of such lands, and cut and remove such timber, and make all necessary roads or water-ways for that purpose, and for the purpose of hauling in supplies, doing no unnecessary damage thereby ; but the patentees or those claiming under them may cut and use such timber as may be necessary for the purpose of building, fencing or road-making on the lands so patented, and may also, under the authority of the Crown Timber agent, cut and dispose of such timber required to be removed in actually clearing the said land for cultivation, but no merchantable timber (except for the necessary building, fencing or road-making as aforesaid) shall be cut beyond the limit of such actual clearing ; and all merchantable timber so cut and disposed of shall be subject to the payment of the same dues as are at the time payable by the holders of licenses to cut timber.

Sec. 16. Holders of timber licenses, their servants and agents, shall have the right to haul their timber over the uncleared portion of any land entered as a homestead or purchased as hereinbefore provided, and to make such roads or water-ways thereon as may be necessary for that purpose, doing no unnecessary damage, and to use all slides, portages, roads, water-ways or other works previously constructed or existing on any land so entered, sold or leased, and the right of access to, and free use of all streams and lakes heretofore used, or that may be necessary for the passage of timber ; and all land necessary for such work is hereby reserved.

Sec. 17. All merchantable timber growing or being upon any land hereafter entered as a homestead or sold under these regulations, shall be subject to any timber license in force at the time of such entry or sale, and may, at any time during the currency of any such license or of any license which may be subsequently issued, be cut and removed under the authority thereof.

Sec. 18. Whenever the survey of any township has been finally confirmed and such township opened for homestead entry, any person who has bona fide settled and made improvements before such confirmed survey on land in such township, shall have a prior right to obtain homestead entry for the land so settled on, provided such right be exercised within three months after the land is opened for settlement ; and provided that such land has not been reserved or the right to homestead entry is not excepted under the provisions of these regulations ; no homestead entry shall be granted to any other person in respect of such land until three months after notice in writing shall have been given by the local agent to such bona fide settler that such land is open for settlement.

Sec. 19. Every person applying for homestead entry shall appear and make affidavit before the local agent or, in his absence, the senior clerk performing his duties according to the Form B, C or D, in the Schedule to this Order, as the circumstances require ; and upon filing such affidavit with the said local agent or clerk, and on payment to him of an office fee of ten dollars, such person shall receive a receipt from the said local agent or senior clerk according to the Form J in the Schedule to this order ; and such receipt shall be a certificate of entry, and shall be authority to the person obtaining it to take possession of the land described in it :

(a.) The Minister of the Interior or the Dominion Lands Board, upon requisition, may authorise any person named therein to make a homestead entry on behalf of any person signing such requisition and desiring to obtain such entry :

(b.) The person so authorised shall, in order to obtain such entry, make application in the Form E in the Schedule to this Order, on behalf of each of those whom he represents, and shall make an affidavit before the local agent or, in his absence, the senior clerk performing his duties, according to Form F, G, or H, in the Schedule to this Order, as the circumstances of the case require, and shall pay for each homestead entry the office fee of ten dollars, hereinbefore prescribed for such entry, and shall receive for each fee so paid a receipt in the Form J in the Schedule hereto :

(c.) Persons occupying land owned by them may obtain homestead entry for any contiguous land open to the same, but the whole extent of land, including that previously owned and occupied must not exceed one quarter-section :

(d.) A person applying for such entry for contiguous land must, when making the affidavit prescribed for homestead entry, also describe therein the tract he owns and lives upon ; and his residence upon and cultivation of the whole shall thereafter be of the kind and for the term required by the provisions of these regulations, in the case of ordinary homestead entry, before he shall be entitled to patent for the part so entered for : Provided, that such residence and cultivation may be upon either the land originally occupied by him or that for which homestead entry has been obtained, or both.

Sec. 20. In case a dispute arises between persons claiming the right to homestead entry for the same land, the local agent or senior clerk, or any person thereto authorised by the Minister of the Interior, shall make investigation and obtain evidence respecting the facts, and his reports thereon, together with the evidence taken, shall be referred to the Minister of the Interior for decision, or to the Dominion Lands Board, Commissioner of Dominion Lands, or such person as may be appointed by the Governor in Council to consider and decide in cases of such disputes :

(a.) Provided that when two or more persons have settled upon and seek to obtain homestead entry for the same land, the one who settled first thereon and has continued to reside upon and cultivate the land for which homestead entry is sought shall be entitled to such entry if the land be of the class open to homestead entry, and if it be not in the opinion of the Minister of the Interior otherwise inexpedient, in the public interest, to entertain any application therefor :

(b.) Provided further, that where contending parties have valuable improvements on the lands in dispute, the Minister of the Interior, if the application to acquire the land by homestead entry is entertained by him, may order a division thereof in such a manner as shall preserve to each of them, as far as practicable, his improvements ; and the Minister may, at his discretion, direct that what the land so allotted to each of them may be deficient of a quarter-section shall be made up from unoccupied land adjoining, if there be any such of the class open to homestead entry.

Sec. 21. Any person who has obtained a homestead entry shall be allowed a period of six months from its date within which to perfect the entry, by taking in his own person possession of the land and beginning continuous residence thereon and cultivation thereof ; and if the entry be not perfected within that period it shall be void, and the land shall be open to entry by another person, or to other disposition under these regulations by the Minister of the Interior :

Provided further, that in the case of immigrants from elsewhere than the North American Continent, the Governor in Council may extend the time for the perfecting of entry to twelve months from the date thereof.

Sec. 22. (a.) At the expiration of three years from the date of his perfecting his homestead entry, the settler, or in case of his death, his legal representatives, upon proving to the satisfaction of the local agent that he, or they, or some of them, have resided upon and cultivated the land during the said term of three years, shall be entitled to a patent for the land, provided such proof is accepted by the Commissioner of Dominion Lands, or in his absence by a member of the Land Board, and on payment of one dollar per acre for the land ; Provided also, that the patent therefor shall not issue to any person not then a subject of Her Majesty by birth or naturalization :

(b.) Provided, that in case of a settler who may have obtained homestead entry for land occupied by him previous to survey thereof, in manner hereinbefore mentioned, residence upon and cultivation of the land for three years next preceding the application for patent shall, for the purpose of the issue of patent, be held to be equivalent to that prescribed in the foregoing subclause of this section, if such residence and cultivation be otherwise in conformity with the provisions of these regulations.

Sec. 23. Any person proving that he has resided on the land for which he has homestead entry for twelve months from the date of his perfecting his entry therefor, and that he has brought under cultivation at least thirty acres thereof, may, before the expiration of the three years defined in sub-section (b.) of Section 22, obtain a patent by paying two dollars and fifty cents per acre for the land.

Sec. 24. Any person claiming a patent under a homestead entry shall also be entitled thereto upon making payment therefor at the rate of one dollar per acre and proving to the satisfaction of the Commissioner of Dominion Lands or the Dominion Lands Board,—

(a.) That he perfected his homestead entry by commencing the cultivation of the homestead within six months from the date of his homestead entry :

(b.) That within the first year after the date of his homestead entry he broke and prepared for crop not less than five acres of his homestead quarter section ; or if the land affected by his homestead entry be timber land, then in lieu of breaking and preparing for crop five acres he may substitute therefor the clearing and fencing of three acres ;

(c.) That within the second year he cropped the said five acres, and broke and prepared for crop not less than ten acres in addition, making not less than fifteen acres in all ; or if the land affected by his homestead entry be timber land, in lieu of cropping five acres and breaking and preparing for crop ten acres additional, he may substitute therefor cropping the three acres broken the previous year and clearing and fencing five acres in addition, making in all eight acres cleared and fenced, three of which shall also be cropped :

(d.) That he has erected a habitable house upon his homestead before the expiration of the second year after his homestead entry, and has bona fide resided therein and has cultivated the land for three years next prior to the date of his application for his patent :

(e.) That at the commencement of the third year after the date of his homestead entry, or previously, he commenced the residence on his homestead required by the next preceding paragraph of this Section :

(f.) Proof of the residence and improvements required by this Section shall be made by the claimant by affidavit, and shall be corroborated by the evidence on oath of two disinterested witnesses, resident in the vicinity of the land affected by their evidence, and accepted as sufficient by the Commissioner of Dominion Lands or in his absence by a member of the Land Board ; such affidavit shall be sworn and such testimony given before the local agent or, in his absence, the senior clerk performing his duties, or some other person named for that purpose by the Minister of the Interior.

Sec. 25. Every person who has obtained a homestead entry, and who proposes to apply for a patent for such homestead, shall give six months' notice in writing to the agent of Dominion lands of his intention to make such application and shall produce evidence to the officer who is authorised to receive the application that such notice has been duly given.

Sec. 26. (a.) In case it is proved to the satisfaction of the Minister of the Interior that a settler has not resided upon and cultivated his homestead, except as herein provided, for at least six months in any one year, or has failed to cultivate and crop the said land during the first two years after obtaining entry therefor, or to erect a habitable house before the expiration of the second year after such entry, and to bona fide reside therein and cultivate the land for three years next prior to the date of his application for patent, or has made any false statement in the affidavit in support of his application for entry, or if he fails, within the time provided for in these regulations, to apply for a patent for his homestead, and to pay for the said homestead the price specified in these regulations, the right to the land shall be forfeited and the entry therefor shall be cancelled, and the settler so forfeiting his entry shall not be eligible to obtain another entry, except in special cases in the discretion of the Minister of the Interior :

PRESENT :

HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR GENERAL IN COUNCIL.

HIS Excellency, in virtue of the powers vested in him by the Act 52 Victoria, chapter 23, intituled "An Act further to amend 'The Steamboat Inspection Act,' chapter seventy-eight of the Revised Statutes," and by and with the advice of the Queen's Privy Council for Canada, is pleased to make the following Rules and Regulations respecting the testing of boilers of Steamboats and matters connected with the construction and working of such boilers.

JOHN J. McGEE,
Clerk, Privy Council.

INSPECTION OF BOILERS OF STEAMBOATS.

Mode of Inspection.

Section 1. Any Inspector may, whenever he deems it necessary so to do, and one inspector shall, at least once in every year, subject the boiler of every steamboat to a test by hydrostatic pressure, in the ratio of one hundred and fifty pounds to one hundred pounds allowable as a working pressure, using the water in such test at a temperature not exceeding sixty degrees Fahrenheit, and shall satisfy himself by examination and experimental trials that such boiler is well made of good and suitable materials. For the purposes of such test the owner of the steamboat shall provide the necessary hand-pump, and apparatus, the same to be worked by the crew of the vessel ; and no Inspector of boilers and machinery shall make or deliver to the owner or master of any steamboat any certificate, unless he has first subjected the boiler or boilers of such steamboat to such test by hydrostatic pressure and examination as herein prescribed.

Sec. 2. Before a boiler is subjected to a test by hydrostatic pressure, it shall be opened up for inspection, the man-hole and mud-plate doors removed, and the outside and inside of the boiler cleaned, the furnace grates removed and the furnace swept out clean, so that satisfactory and efficient inspection may be made ; when bulkheads are so placed as to prevent a close examination of the plate of the boiler, they shall be removed ; and the owner or master of the steamboat shall see that the foregoing requirements are complied with before applying for inspection.

Sec. 3. In any case in which the test is not satisfactory, the defects shall be made good and the boiler re-tested satisfactorily, before a certificate is granted.

Sec. 4. Inspectors are to fix the working pressure of boilers by a series of calculations of the strength of the various parts, and according to the workmanship and material of which they are composed.

Sec. 5. Before testing a boiler the Inspectors should examine it, take the necessary measurements and calculate what the working pressure should be, in accordance with these regulations ; these instructions apply to super-heaters, steam-chests, and water-jackets, as well as boilers.

Sec. 6. If a boiler is too hot for an Inspector to examine it efficiently with safety and convenience, he should decline to do so, and absolutely refuse to grant a certificate until he can make a satisfactory examination.

Sec. 7. In order to satisfy himself as to strength and internal condition of a boiler, the Inspector may, should he deem it necessary, order holes to be cut in it, and may also demand that such information by drawings and specifications of the several parts be furnished him of the construction, as will enable him to determine, by calculation and examination, their strength.

Sec. 8. During the construction of every boiler made in Canada, the maker of such boiler shall notify the Inspector of the District in which it is being made, that it is open to his inspection, and shall, at all times during such construction allow the Inspector free access to it.

Sec. 9. To prevent questions arising after a boiler is commenced, particulars of its construction by drawing and specification should be furnished the Inspector by the maker or contractor, for his approval; the Inspector having received such plans or tracings and approved of them, will be careful to see that they are followed in construction. This regulation will also apply to boilers undergoing alterations.

Sec. 10. No boiler shall be made of boiler plate, whether iron or steel, which has not been stamped with the name or mark of the maker thereof; and no certificate shall be granted with respect to any boiler made wholly or in part of plate not so marked; and before a certificate shall be granted with respect to any boiler, a declaration on oath by the maker of the boiler, stating the name of the maker of the plates, their quality and the quality of all materials used in the construction of the boiler, shall be furnished the Inspector; such oath may be taken before any Justice of the Peace in Canada, or before a Notary Public and certified under his official seal, if taken out of Canada: Provided always, that in any case where such declaration on oath by the maker of the boiler cannot be obtained owing to the death of the maker, or from other causes deemed sufficient by the Inspector, the affidavit of two practical boiler makers who have examined the boiler and reported upon the quality of the materials in it and its workmanship and strength, shall, if satisfactory to the Inspector, be deemed sufficient in lieu of such declaration by the maker of the boiler.

Sec. 11. No boiler or pipe in connection therewith shall be approved which is made in whole or in part of bad material or workmanship, or is unsafe in its form, or from age, use or any other cause.

Sec. 12. Inspectors should see all new boilers, and boilers that have been taken out of a ship for thorough repair, tested by hydraulic pressure up to at least one and one half the working pressure that will be allowed, previous to the boiler being placed in the vessel, to test the workmanship, etc., but the working pressure is to be determined by the stay power, the thickness of the plate, strength of riveting, &c., and not by the hydraulic test.

Sec. 13. The hydraulic test should in no case exceed the ratio of one and one half the working pressure allowed, and it is never to be applied until the boiler has been opened up for examination and until the strength of all the parts have been calculated from the necessary measurements taken from the boiler itself.

Sec. 14. When a boiler is partially inspected by one Inspector, and the inspection is completed and the certificate granted by another Inspector, if the Inspector who witnesses the test of the boiler by the hydraulic pressure has an opportunity of examining the boiler inside and outside after the test, such Inspector shall determine the pressure to be allowed on the boiler, taking care to inform the owners, makers or agents, and the Inspector, who is ultimately to grant the certificate, what pressure should in his opinion be allowed.

Sec. 15. Cast iron must not be used for stays in boilers; Inspectors should also discourage the use of cast iron for chocks and saddles for boilers; particular attention should be paid to chocking and fastening boilers to the vessels to guard against shifting or breaking loose.

Sec. 16. A pressure once allowed on a boiler is not, under any circumstances whatever, to be increased, unless the Inspector has previously written for and obtained the sanction of the Chairman of the "Board of Steamboat Inspection." In cases where an Inspector is of opinion that an increased pressure may with safety be allowed, he should communicate with the Inspector who last inspected the boiler, and if, on learning the reason why the existing pressure was formerly allowed, the Inspector is still of opinion that it may be increased, he should communicate all the facts of the case to the Chairman; but, as above stated, the pressure should not, in any case, be increased until the question has been decided by the Chairman.

Sec. 17. In the event of any novelty in construction of a boiler, or of any departure from the practice of staying and strengthening as prescribed in these rules and regulations, the Inspector shall report full particulars to the Chairman before fixing the working pressure.

Sec. 18. An Inspector shall not declare a boiler safe unless he is fully informed as to its construction, material and workmanship. He should, therefore, be very careful how he ventures to give a certificate for a boiler that he is not called in to inspect until after it is completed and fixed in the ship.

Sec. 19. In the case of new boilers, the Inspector may allow a stress not exceeding 7,000 pounds per square inch of net section on solid iron screw stays supporting flat surfaces, but the stress should not exceed 6,000 pounds when the stays have been welded or worked in the fire.

Sec. 20. (a.) The pressure on plate forming flat surfaces is found by the following formula:—

$$\frac{C \times (T + 1)^2}{S - 6} = \text{Working Pressure.}$$

T = Thickness of plate in inches.

C = Constant according to the following circumstances:—

C = 100 when the plates are not exposed to the impact of heat or flame, and the stays are fitted with nuts and washers, the latter being at last three times the diameter of the stay and two-thirds the thickness of the plate they cover.

C = 90 when the plates are not exposed to the impact of heat or flame, and the stays are fitted with nuts only.

C = 60 when the plates are exposed to the impact of heat or flame, and the steam in contact with the plates, and the stays fitted with nuts and washers, the latter being at least three times the diameter of the stay, and two-thirds the thickness of the plates they cover.

C = 54 when the plates are exposed to the impact of heat or flame, and steam in contact with the plates, and the stays fitted with nuts only.

(b.) If the diameter of riveted washers be at least two-thirds the pitch of the stays, and the thickness not less than the plates they cover, the constants may be increased to 150.

(c.) When doubling plates are fitted of the same thickness of the plates they cover, and not less in width than two-thirds the pitch of the stays, the constants may be increased to 160.

C = 80 when the plates are exposed to the impact of heat or flame, with water in contact with the plates, and the stays screwed into the plates and fitted with nuts.

C = 60 when the plates are exposed to the impact of heat or flame, with water in contact with the plates, and the stays screwed into the plates having the ends riveted over to form substantial heads.

C = 36 when the plates are exposed to the impact of heat or flame, and steam in contact with the plates, with the stays screwed into the plates, and having the ends riveted over to form substantial heads.

(e.) In cases where plates are stiffened by T or L irons, and a greater pressure is required for the plate than is allowed by the use of the above constants, the case should be submitted for the consideration of the Chairman.

(f.) When the riveted ends of the screw stays are much worn, or when the nuts are burned, the constants should be reduced, but the Inspector must act according to the circumstances that present themselves at the time of the inspection, and it is expected that in cases where the riveted ends of screw stays in the combustion boxes and furnaces are found in this state it will be often necessary to reduce the constant from 60 to 36.

$$\frac{(D-d)\ T \times 15{,}000}{W \times D} = \text{Working Pressure.}$$

d = Inside diameter of ordinary tube in inches.

T = Thickness of tube plate in inches.

W = Extreme width of combustion box in inches from front of tube plate to back of fire box, or distance between combustion box tube plates when boiler is double ended and the box common to the furnaces at both ends.

Sec. 22. When stays prevent an Inspector from getting inside a boiler, he must order their removal, and he must see them properly replaced before granting a certificate.

Sec. 23. In the case of zig-zag riveting the strength through the plate diagonally between the rivets is equal to that horizontally between the rivets, when the diagonal pitch equals six tenths the horizontal pitch plus four-tenths the diameter of the rivet.

Sec. 24. When the outside of the bottom of a boiler can not be otherwise perfectly inspected, the boiler should be lifted once at least in every four years.

Construction of Boilers.

Sec. 25. (a.) When cylindrical boilers or the cylindrical parts of boilers composed of iron plates are made of the best material with all the rivet holes drilled in place and all the seams fitted with double butt straps, each of at least five-eighths the thickness of the plates they cover, and all the seams at least double riveted with rivets having an allowance of not more than ·75 per cent. over the single shear, and provided that the boilers have been open to inspection, then 5 may be used as the factor of safety. The tensile strength of the material is to be taken as equal to 47,000 lbs. per square inch with the grain, and 40,000 lbs. across the grain. When the above conditions are not complied with, the addition. in the following scale, must be added to the factor, according to the circumstances of each case :—

A·15—To be added when all the holes are fair and good in the longitudinal seams, but drilled out of place after bending.

B·3—To be added when all the holes are fair and good in the longitudinal seams, but drilled out of place before bending.

C·3—To be added when all the holes are fair and good in the longitudinal seams, but punched after bending instead of drilled.

D·5—To be added when all the holes are fair and good in the longitudinal seams, but punched before bending.

E*·75—To be added when all the holes are not fair and good in the longitudinal seams.

F·1—To be added if the holes are all fair and good in the circumferential seams, but drilled out of place after bending.

G·15—To be added if the holes are fair and good in the circumferential seams, but drilled before bending.

H·15—To be added if the holes are fair and good in the circumferential seams, but punched after bending.

I·2—To be added if the holes are fair and good in the circumferential seams, but punched before bending.

J*·2—To be added if the holes are not fair and good in the circumferential seams.

K·2—To be added if double butt straps are not fitted to the longitudinal seams, and the said seams are lapped and double riveted.

L·1—To be added if double butt straps are not fitted to the longitudinal seams, and the said seams are lapped and treble riveted.

X*·4—To be added when the iron is in any way doubtful, and the Inspector is not satisfied that it is of the best quality.

(b.) The strength of the joints is found by the following method :

$$\frac{(\text{Pitch}-\text{Diameter of rivets}) \times 100}{\text{Pitch.}} =$$

Percentage of strength of plate at joint as compared with the solid plate.

Percentage of strength of rivets as compared with the solid plate. ††

(c.) Where marked * the allowance may be increased still further if the workmanship or material is very doubtful or unsatisfactory.

 The maximum pitch of the rivets should not exceed 8½ inches, and if in any case the Inspector finds the pitch in excess of this, he should report to the Chairman.

†† If the rivets are exposed to double shear, multiply the percentage as found by 1·75.

† When inspecting boilers that have not been open to inspection during construction the case should be submitted to the Chairman as to the factors to be used.

‡ P‡·1, Q‡·2, R‡·1, S‡·1, shall not apply to the end or circumferential seams, if such seams are sufficiently stayed by through bolts ; nor to the seams between the square and round part of shell, in cylindrical boilers with square furnaces, when such seams are double riveted.

(d.) Then take iron as equal in tensile strength to 47,000 pounds per square inch and use the smallest of the two percentages as the strength of the joint, and adopt the factor of safety as found from the preceding scale :—

$$\frac{47{,}000 \times \text{percentage of strength of joint} \times \text{twice the thickness of the plate in inches.}}{\text{Inside diameter of boiler in inches} \times \text{factor of safety.}}$$

= Pressure to be allowed per square inch on the safety-valves.

(e.) Plates that are drilled in place must be taken apart and the burr taken off and the holes slightly countersunk from the outside.

(f.) Butt straps must be cut from plates and not from bars, and must be of as good quality as the shell plate, and for the longitudinal seams must be cut across the fibre.

(g.) The rivet holes may be punched or drilled when the plates are punched or drilled out of place, but when drilled in place, must be taken apart and the burr taken off and slightly countersunk from the outside.

(h.) When single butt straps are used and the rivet holes in them punched, they must be one-eighth thicker than the plates they cover.

(i.) The diameter of rivets must not be less than the thickness of the plate of which the shell is made, but it will be found when the plates are thin, or when lap joints or single butt straps are adopted, that the diameter of the rivets should be in excess of the thickness of the plate.

(j.) The distance of the rivet holes from the end or edge of the plates shall not be less than the diameter of the rivets.

(k.) Dished ends that are not truly hemispherical must be stayed; if they are not theoretically equal in strength to the pressure needed they must be stayed as flat surfaces, but if they are theoretically equal in strength to the pressure needed the stays may have a strain of 10,000 lbs. per effective square inch of sectional area.

(l.) Inspectors will remember that the strength of a sphere to resist internal pressure is double that of a cylinder of the same diameter and thickness.

Sec. 26. (a.) The neutral parts of boiler shells under stream domes must be sufficiently stiffened and stayed.

(b.) The sides of boilers having square furnaces and half round tops must be stayed from side to side of the shell, over the furnace, one or more rows of these stays to be placed well above the centre of the cylindrical part.

(c.) Screw stays are not to be used when supporting flat surfaces at any angle but a right angle to the surface supported, their diameter to be measured inside the thread.

(e.) The inside diameter of the outside strake or course in the cylindrical shell of a boiler is to be taken as the measure of its diameter.

Sec. 27. (a.) In cylindrical super-heaters the strength of the joints and the factor of safety is found in a similar manner as for cylindrical boilers and steam receivers, but instead of using 47,000 pounds as the tensile strength of iron, 24,000 pounds is adopted, unless where the heat of flame impinges at or nearly at right angles to the plate then 18,000 pounds is substituted.

(b.) In all cases the internal steam pipes should be so fitted that the steam in flowing to them will pass over all the plates exposed to the impact of heat or flame.

(c.) Super-heaters or water jackets should, as regards inspection, be deemed to be the most important part of the boilers, and must be inspected inside and outside; those that can not be entered (on account of their size), must have a sufficient number of doors through which a thorough inspection of the whole of the interior can be made.

(a.) Special attention should be paid to the inspection of super-heaters, as with high pressure the plates may become dangerously weak and not give any sound to indicate their state when tested with the hammer; the plate should, therefore, be occasionally drilled. Drain pipes must be in all cases fitted to super-heaters in which a collection of water in the bottom is possible.

(c.) Super-heaters that can be shut off from the main boiler must be fitted with a Government lock-up safety valve of sufficient size, but the least size passed shall not be less than two inches diameter.

Sec. 28. The areas of diagonal stays are found in the following way:—

Find the area of a direct stay needed to support the surface, multiply this area by the length of the diagonal stay and divide the product by the length of a line drawn at right angles to the surface supported to the end of the diagonal stay, the quotient will be the area of the diagonal stay required.

Sec. 29. (a.) When the tops of combustion boxes or others parts of a boiler are supported by solid rectangular girders, the following formula, which is used by the Imperial Board of Trade, will be useful for finding the working pressure to be allowed on the girders, assuming that they are not subjected to a greater temperature than the ordinary heat of steam, and the ends fitted to the edges of the tube plate and the back plate of the combustion box:

W=Width of combution box in inches.
P=Pitch of supporting bolts in inches.
D=Distance between the girders from centre to centre in inches.
L=Length of girder in feet.
d=Depth of girder in inches.
T=Thickness of girder in inches.
C=500 when the girder is fitted with one supporting bolts.
C=750 when the girder is fitted with two or three supporting bolts.
C=850 when the girder is fitted with four supporting bolt.

(b.) The working pressure for the supporting bolts. and for the plate between them, shall be determined by the rule for ordinary stays.

Sec. 30. The flat ends of all boilers, as far as the steam space extends, and the ends of super-heaters should be fitted with shield, or baffle plates, where exposed to the hot gases of the uptake, as all the plates subjected to the direct impact of heat or flame are liable to injury, unless covered with water.

Sec. 31. Donkey boilers that are in any way attached to, or connected with the main boilers, or with the machinery used for propelling the ship, must be inspected and fitted the same way as the main boilers, and must have a water and steam gauge, and all other fittings complete, and as regards safety-valves must comply with the same regulations as the main boilers, and no safety-valve shall be passed less than two inches in diameter.

Sec. 32. (a.) No boiler or steam chamber is to be so constructed, fitted or arranged as that the escape of steam from it through the safety-valve can be wholly or partially intercepted by the action of any other valve.

(b.) A stop valve must always be fitted between the boiler and the steam pipe, and (when two or more boilers are connected with a steam receiver or super-heater), between each boiler and super-heater or steam receiver. The object of this is obvious, viz., to avoid the failure of all the boilers through the failure of one. The necks of stop valves should be as short as practicable.

Sec. 33. (a.) Each boiler must be fitted with glass water gauge, at least two test cocks, and steam gauge, that is to say, each boiler must be fitted with all the fittings as complete as if there was only one boiler.

(b.) Boilers that fire at both ends, and those of unusual width, must have water gauges and test cocks at each end or side, as the case may be. When a steamer has more than one boiler, and those boilers are fitted with stop valves, each boiler must be treated as a separate one, and have all the requisite fittings.

Sec. 34. Inspectors shall be more careful not to give any official sanction to any new arrangement or construction of marine steam boilers, without first obtaining the permission of the Chairman in writing, nor shall they give any written approval of any invention or arrangement unless by direction of the Chairman, and whenever they know that any invention or new arrangement is to be fitted to a vessel that is intended to have a passenger certificate, they shall as soon as possible obtain plans and specifications and submit the same to the Chairman.

Sec. 35. When the longitudinal seams in cylindrical furnaces are not welded or made with a butt strap, the following constants will be substituted for 90,000:

(a.) Furnaces with butt joints and drilled rivet holes.	90,000 where the longitudinal seams are double riveted and fitted with single butt straps; 80,000 where the longitudinal seams are single riveted and fitted with single butt straps; 90,000 where the longitudinal seams are single riveted and fitted with double butt straps.
(b.) Furnaces with butt joints and punched rivet holes.	85,000 where the longitudinal seams are double riveted and fitted with single butt straps; 75,000 where the longitudinal seams are single riveted and fitted with single butt straps; 85,000 where the longitudinal seams are single riveted and fitted with double butt straps.

(c.) Furnaces with lapped joints and drilled rivet holes.	80,000 where the longitudinal seams are double riveted and bevelled; 75,000 where the longitudinal seams are double riveted and not bevelled; 70,000 where the longitudinal seams are single riveted and bevelled; 65,000 where the longitudinal seams are single riveted and not bevelled.
(d.) Furnaces with lapped joints and punched rivet holes.	75,000 where the longitudinal seams are double riveted and bevelled; 70,000 where the longitudinal seams are double riveted and not bevelled; 65,000 where the longitudinal seams are single riveted and bevelled; 60,000 where the longitudinal seams are single riveted and not bevelled.

Steel Boilers.

Sec. 36. (a.) The following rules should guide Inspectors when the general quality of the steel has been found suitable for marine boilers :—

(b.) The steel makers or boiler makers should test one or more strips or pieces cut from each plate and bar for tensile strength and elongation, and stamp both results on each plate or bar. When practicable the plates or bars should be so stamped that the marks can be easily seen when the boiler is constructed.

(c.) An Inspector is not obliged to witness the foregoing test, but he should see that all the plates and bars are properly stamped.

(d.) From the plates and bars, the tests of which have been stated to have been made by the steel maker, and not witnessed by the Inspector, the Inspector may, if he thinks it advisable, select any plates or bars after they are in the boiler shop and require specimens to be cut off and tested. If the results are not satisfactory, the whole of the plates, except those which were tested and found satisfactory by the Inspector, may be liable to be rejected.

(e.) Twenty-five per cent. of the rivet bars should be tested for tensile strength and elongation : the tensile strength should be from 26 to 30 tons gross, or 58,000 to 67,000 lbs. to the square inch, and the elongation in ten inches should not be less than 25 per cent.

(f.) The Inspector may not in every case see some of the rivets tested, but he should occasionally select a few, and after they are prepared, see them tested. The tensile stress should be from 27 to 32 tons gross, or 62,000 to 72,000 lbs. to the square inch, with a contraction of area of 60 per cent. The elongation should, when practicable, be taken in length equal to two and a half times the diameter of the prepared part.

(g.) Twenty-five per cent. of the bars for stays of each size should be tested, solid steel screw stays which have not been welded or otherwise worked after heating, may be allowed a working stress of 9,000 pounds to the square inch of net section, provided the tensile stress is from 27 to 32 tons gross, or 62,000 to 72,000 pounds to the square inch, and the elongation in ten inches about 25 per cent., and not less than 20 per cent.

(h.) Steel stays which have been welded or worked in the fire have been found to be unreliable, therefore they should not be passed.

(i.) If the original size of the bars for rivets or stays be reduced before testing, it should be done in the lathe or by a machine ; test pieces of any kind should not be prepared by heating and drawing down.

(j.) If for the plates from which the Inspectors select the above proportion, a greater stress is wished than is allowed for iron, tests for tensile stress and elongation should be made ; also a few tempering and bending tests, and those for which no reduction of thickness is asked may be tested for resistance to bending and tempering only, if preferred in the latter case, the stress and elongation stamped on each plate should be reported by the Inspector to the Chairman, along with the result of the bending and tempering test.

(k.) The breadth of test strips for tensile stress should be about two inches, and the elongation, taken in the length of ten inches should be about 25 per cent., and not less than 20 per cent. The strips must be carefully prepared and measured, and they should be cut from the plate by a planing or shaping machine. The skin of the test pieces should not be removed by planing, shaping or otherwise, the edges only being planed or shaped, and in no case should the test pieces be prepared or reduced in size by hammering or otherwise working on the anvil, and they must not be annealed previous to being tested, neither must the plates or bars be annealed before the test pieces are cut from them.

(l.) The bending tests for plates not exposed to flame should be made with strips in their normal condition, and occasionally also some tempering test. Strips cut from furnaces, combustion boxes, &c., should be heated to a cherry red, then plunged into water of about 80 degrees and kept there until of the same temperature as the water and then bent. The bending and tempering strips should not be less than two inches broad and ten inches long, and they should be bent until they break, or until the sides are parallel at a distance from each other of not more than (3) three times the thickness of plate.

(m.) When full allowance over iron is wished, the tensile stress of the plates not exposed to flame should be not less than 27 tons gross, or 62,000 lbs., and should not exceed 32 tons gross or 72,000 lbs.. per square inch of section, and 29 tons gross, or 65,000 lbs. should be the stress used in the calculation for cylindrical shells, if the plates comply with all the conditions as stated herein ; but when the minimum tensile strength of shell plate is not less than 28 tons gross or 63,000 lbs., and allowance is wished for the excess, then the case should be specially submitted for the consideration of the Chairman as to whether the stress in the calculation may be increased to 30 tons gross or to 67,000 lbs., the tensile strength of furnace, flanging, and combustion box plates may range from 36 tons gross or 58,000 lbs., to 30 tons gross or 67,000 lbs., to the square inch.

(n.) All plates that are punched, flanged or locally heated must be carefully annealed after being so treated.

(o.) The rivet holes in the furnaces and longitudinal seams of cylindrical shells should be drilled, but if it is wished to punch them and afterwards bore or anneal the plates in a proper furnace, the particulars of the punching and boring or annealing should be submitted to the Chairman for consideration before being done, but all punched holes should be made after bending.

(p.) In all cases where assent has been given by the Chairman for plates to be punched after bending, and then annealed, the maker of the boiler should stamp the plates with the words "punched after bending and then annealed," and in all cases were assent has been given for punching and afterwards boring plates the wards "punched and then bored" should be stamped on the plates.

(q.) If the flanging plates and those exposed to flame comply with the foregoing conditions, the constants in these rules for iron boilers may be increased as follows :—

1. The constants for flat surfaces, when they are supported by stays screwed into the plates and riveted, 10 per cent.

2. The constants for flat surfaces, when they are supported by stays screwed into the plates and nutted, or when the stays are nutted in the steam space, 25 per cent. This is also applicable to the constants for flat surfaces stiffened by riveted washers or doubling strips and supported by nutted stays.

3. The constants for combustion box girders, 10 per cent.

(r.) When the furnaces are new, corrugated and machine made and practically true circles, the working pressure is found by the following formula, provided that the plain parts at the ends do not exceed 6 inches in length and the plates are not less than $\frac{5}{16}$ inch thick.

$$\frac{12{,}500 \times T}{D} = \text{Working pressure.}$$

T=Thickness in inches.
T=Mean diameter in inches.

(It the furnace is riveted in two or more lengths, the case should be submitted to the Chairman).

(s.) A greater compressive stress should not be allowed on tube plates than 10,000 lbs. to the square inch, which is that used in the following formula ;—

$$\frac{(D-d)\ T \times 20{,}000}{W \times D} = \text{Working pressure.}$$

d = Inside diameter of ordinary tubes in inches.

T = Thickness of tube plate in inches.

W = Extreme width of combustion box in inches from front of tube plate to back of fire box, or distance between combustion box tube plates when boiler is double ended and the box common to the furnaces at both ends.

(t.) The rivet section, if of iron, in the horizontal seams of cylindrical shells, where lapped and at least double riveted, should not be less than $\frac{13}{8}$ time the net plate section; but if steel rivets are used, their section should be at least $\frac{28}{23}$ of the net section of the plate if the tensile stress of the rivet is not less than 27 tons gross or 62,000 lbs., or not more than 32 tons gross or 72,000 lbs. per square inch. Therefore, in calculating the working pressure, the percentage strength of the rivet may be found in the usual way by the rules, but in the case of iron rivets the percentages found should be divided by $\frac{13}{8}$, and in the case of steel rivets by $\frac{28}{23}$, the result being the percentages required. If the percentage strength of the rivets by calculation is less than the calculated percentage strength of the plate, calculate the working pressure by both percentages. When using the percentage strength of the plate, use the nominal factor of safety suitable for the method of construction as by the rules for iron boilers, but when using the percentage strength of the rivets, use 5 as the factor of safety. The less of the two pressures so found is the working pressure to be allowed for the cylindrical portion of the shell, or otherwise in accordance with the formulæ in appendix.

(u.) Local heating of the plates should be avoided, as many plates have failed from being so treated.

(v.) Steel plates which have been welded should not be passed if subject to a tensile stress, and those welded and subject to a compressive stress should be sufficiently annealed. In other respects the boiler should comply with the rules for iron boilers.

Sec. 37. In no case shall a certificate be granted for a boiler, when drift pins have been used in bringing the holes in the sheets together.

Sec. 38. Man hole openings must be stiffened with compensating plates or rings of at least the same effective sectional area as the plate cut out, and in no case shall such plates or rings be of less thickness than the plate to which they are attached, nor the attachment of less strength than the plate or ring. All openings in the shells of boilers must have their short axes placed longitudinally.

Sec. 39. Every boiler, made after the coming into force of these Regulations, shall be stamped with the initial letters of the Inspector's name, who inspected and tested it, the year it was made and the pressure under which it was tested, also the actual working pressure allowed upon it.

Furnaces and Flues.

Sec. 40 (a.) The external working pressure to be allowed on plane circular steel furnaces and flues, when subjected to such pressure when the longitudinal joints are welded or made with a butt strap, shall be determined by the following formulæ :—

(b.) The product of 90,000 multiplied by the square of the thickness of the plate in inches, divided by the length of the flue, or furnace, in feet, plus one multiplied by the diameter in inches, will be the allowable working pressure per square inch in pounds; provided it does not exceed that found by the following formula :—

(c.) The product of 10,000 multiplied by the thickness of the plate in inches, divided by the diameter (outside) of the flue or furnace, in inches, will be the allowable working pressure per square inch in pounds.

Corrugated Steel Furnaces and Flues.

Sec. 41. (a.) In steel flue furnaces when new, corrugated, and machine-made, and practically true circles, the working pressure is found by the following formula, provided that the plane parts at the ends do not exceed 6 inches in length and the plates are not less than $\frac{5}{16}$ inch thick.

$$\frac{12{,}500 \times \text{thickness in inches}}{\text{Mean diameter in inches}} = \text{Working pressure per square inch.}$$

(b.) When the furnaces are riveted in two or more lengths the case should be submitted to the Chairman for consideration, as it may be necessary to make a reduction.

Corrugated Iron Furnaces.

Sec. 42. The working pressure for corrugated iron furnaces practically circular and machine-made, provided the plane parts at the ends do not exceed 6 inches in length and the plates are not less than $\frac{5}{16}$ inch thick, should not be greater than that found by the following formula :—

$$\frac{10{,}000 \times \text{thickness in inches}}{\text{Mean diameter in inches}} = \text{Working pressure.}$$

(a.) The boiler of every steamboat shall be fitted with one, or more, locked-up safety-valves, the area of which, or the joint area, shall not be less than half a square inch for each square foot of grate surface in or under the boiler. In all cases the safety-valves should be upon the boiler, or as near as possible to it.

(b.) Safety-valves should not be passed less that two inches in diameter ; except in the case of small boilers when the area of grate surface is less than six square feet, when safety-valves of less diameter may be used ; but in no case shall their diameter be less than one inch ; and provided the above proportion of area of safety-valve to area of grate be complied with.

Sec. 45. (a.) Inspectors are instructed that in all new boilers and whenever alterations can be easily made the valve chest should be placed directly on the boiler, and the neck or part between the chest and the flange which bolts on to the boiler should be as short as possible, and be cast in one with the chest.

(b.) In any case in which an inspector is of opinion that it is positively dangerous to have a length of pipe between the boilers and the safety valve chest, he shall at once insist on the requisite alterations being made before granting a certificate.

(c.) Inspectors shall fix the limit of the weight to be placed on the safety-valves, and shall satisfy themselves that the boilers are in their judgment sufficient with the weight so placed.

(d.) Care should be taken that the safety-valves have a lift equal to at least one-fourth their diameter, that the area of the inlet and outlet openings for the passage of steam be not less than the area of the valve ; where lever valves are used the distance between the centre of the valve and the centre of the fulcrum should not be less than the diameter of the valve.

c=11,000 for square steel.
S=the load on the spring in pounds.
D=the diameter of the spring (from centre to centre of wire) in inches.

RULES.

Sec. 46. (a.) Engineers when laying up a steamer in the autumn, or when finally leaving her, are required to report to the owner, and also to the Inspector of the nearest district, any defects of, or injury to, the boilers and machinery by which the safety of the same may be endangered. They shall also report to the Inspector of the district at which the steamer next arrives, any accident happening to the boilers or machinery during the trip, and in case of omission to make such report, the license of the engineer so omitting shall be revoked.

(b.) The chief engineer of a steamer will be held accountable by the Department of Marine for the proper care and management of the boilers and machinery under his charge. He is, therefore, in no case to absent himself from the vessel while on her regular trips, unless a competent substitute be provided to fill his place during his absence.

(c.) Engineers on first taking charge of a steamer, and at least once a year thereafter, shall satisfy themselves by close examination that the braces, stays and pins of the boiler are in good order, and sufficient for the strain to which that may be subjected; they shall also satisfy themselves that the safety-valves are in good working order and sufficient for the requirements of clause (a) of section 44.

(d.) Engineers are to exhibit their certificates in the engine room along with a copy of these rules, that is to say, sections 46 and 47, when required to do so.

Management of Boilers.

Sec. 47. (a.) Getting up steam.—Warm the boiler gradually. Steam should not be raised from cold water in less than four hours. If practicable light the fires over night. By getting up steam too quickly the boiler will soon be destroyed.

(b.) Firing.—Fire regularly. Keep the sides up, and use the slice gently and as seldom as possible.

(c.) Feed water. — Let the feed be regular and constant.

PART TWO.

REGULATIONS governing the inspection and testing of boilers now in existence, and of boilers now or hereafter to be manufactured in Canada, for the use of steamboats, whenever in the opinion of the Inspector the regulations contained in Part One of this order are, on account of the make of such boilers, or for some other reason, not capable of application in the testing thereof; provided that in every such case the Inspector shall issue his certificate, in which he shall state that this inspection has been made under Part Two of this order.

Mode of Inspection.

Sec. 48. Any inspector may, whenever he deems it necessary so to do, and one inspector shall, at least once in every year, subject the boiler of every steamboat to a test by hydrostatic pressure, and shall satisfy himself by examination and experimental trials that such boiler is well made of good and suitable materials; the limit of such pressure shall be in the ratio of one hundred and fifty pounds to one hundred pounds allowable as a working pressure; for the purposes of such test the owner of the steamboat shall provide the necessary hand-pump and apparatus, and the same shall be worked by the crew of the steamboat: and no Inspector shall make or deliver to the owner or master of any steamboat, any certificate unless he has first subjected the boiler of such steamboat to such test by hydrostatic pressure.

Sec. 49. Before a boiler is subjected to a test by hydrostatic pressure, it shall be opened up for inspection, the manhole doors and mud-plates removed and the outside and inside of the boiler cleaned, the furnace grates removed and the furnace swept out clean, so that satisfactory and efficient inspection may be made; when bulkheads are so placed as to prevent a close examination of the plates of the boiler, they shall be removed; and the owner or master of the steamboat shall see that the foregoing requirements are complied with before applying for inspection.

Sec. 50. In any case in which the test is not satisfactory, the defects shall be made good and the boiler re-tested satisfactorily before a certificate is granted.

Sec. 51. When the outside of the bottom of a boiler cannot be otherwise perfectly inspected, the boiler shall be lifted for inspection once at least in every four years.

Sec. 52. In subjecting boilers made of iron plates to the hydrostatic test aforesaid, the Inspector shall assume one hundred pounds to the square inch as the maximum pressure allowable as a working power for a new boiler forty-two inches in diameter, made of the best refined iron, at least one quarter of an inch thick, in the best manner and of the quality herein required,—and shall rate the working pressure of all iron boilers, whether of greater or less diameter according to their strength compared with this standard; and in all such cases the test applied shall exceed the working pressure allowed, in the ratio of one hundred and fifty pounds to one hundred, using the water in such tests at a temperature not exceeding sixty degrees Fahrenheit.

Sec. 53. In subjecting boilers made of steel to the hydrostatic test aforesaid, the Inspector shall assume one hundred and twenty-five pounds as the maximum pressure allowable as a working power for a new boiler forty-two inches in diameter, made in the best manner of the best quality of steel plates, at least one quarter of an inch thick, with all the rivet holes drilled in place, the plates being then taken apart and the burrs removed, the longitudinal seams in the shell being fitted with double butt steel straps cut across the grain of the plate, and each of five-eighths the thickness of the plates they cover, and all the seams being at least double riveted and having at least seventy per cent. of the strength of the solid plate, and all the flat surfaces stayed in the best manner and all the seams double riveted,—and they shall rate the working pressure of all steel boilers so made, whether of greater or less diameter, according to their strength compared with this standard; and in all such cases the test applied shall exceed the working pressure allowed for such boilers in the ratio of one hundred and eighty-seven and a half pounds to one hundred and twenty-five pounds, using the water in such tests at a temperature not exceeding sixty degrees Fahrenheit.

Sec. 54. If the Inspector is of opinion that any boiler, whether made of iron or steel plates, by reason of its construction or material, will not safely allow so high a working pressure as that hereinbefore specified for each such description of boiler respectively, he may, for reasons to be stated specifically in his certificate, fix the working pressure of such boiler at less than two-thirds of the test pressure.

Sec. 55. The foregoing rules shall be observed in all cases, unless the proportion between such boilers and the cylinders, or some other cause, renders it manifest that their application would be unjust,—in which case the Inspector may depart from the said rules if it can be done with safety; but in no case shall the working pressure allowed exceed the proportion hereinbefore mentioned, as compared with the hydrostatic test.

Sec. 56 (a.) The external working pressure to be allowed on plane circular iron furnaces and flues subjected to such pressure, when the longitudinal joints are welded or made with a butt strap, shall be determined by the following formula :—

(b.) The product of 90,000 multiplied by the square of the thickness of the plate in inches,—divided by the length of the flue or furnace in feet plus 1, multiplied by the diameter in inches,—shall be the allowable working pressure per square inch in pounds,—provided it does not exceed that found by the following formula :—

(c.) The product of 8,000 multiplied by the thickness of the plate in inches, divided by the diameter of the furnace or flue in inches, shall be the allowable working pressure per square inch in pounds,—

(d.) The length of the furnace to be used in the first formula being the distance between the rings, if the furnace is made with rings; and that one of the two formulæ which gives the lowest pressure being the one by which the Inspector shall be guided.

Sec. 57. On flat surfaces the allowable working pressure shall not exceed six thousand pounds to each effective square inch of sectional area of the stays supporting it; the pressure to be allowed on plates forming flat surfaces shall be that found by the following formula:

T=Thickness of plates in sixteenths of an inch;

S=Surface supported in square inches;

C=100; but when the plates are exposed to the impact of heat or flame, and steam only is in contact with the plates on the opposite side, C is to be reduced to 50.

Sec. 58. In order to satisfy himself as to the strength and condition of a boiler, the Inspector may, if he deems it necessary, order holes to be cut in it, and may also demand that such information shall be furnished him in respect to the interior construction of the boiler as will enable him to judge correctly of its strength.

Sec. 59. In no case shall a certificate be granted for a boiler when drift pins have been used in bringing the holes in the sheets together.

Sec. 60. Man-hole openings shall be stiffened with compensating rings of at least the same effective sectional area as the plate cut out, and in no case shall such rings be of less thickness than the plates to which they are attached; all openings in the shells of cylindrical boilers shall have their short axes placed longitudinally.

Sec. 61. When bars or angle irons are used for sustaining the crown sheet of the furnace of a boiler, three-fifths of the working pressure allowable upon the crown sheet shall be sustained by hanging stays from the shell of the boiler attached to the crown sheet.

Sec. 62. Donkey boilers on steamboats shall be provided with a safety-valve, which may be locked up.

Sec. 63. Boilers in which the longitudinal seams in the cylindrical shell are single riveted in place of being double riveted, shall be subject to a reduction in the working pressure allowable for a boiler made in the best manner (as prescribed by sections 52 and 53 of these regulations) and the limit of pressure in boilers so made shall not exceed eighty pounds to the square inch in place of one hundred pounds or one hundred and twenty-five pounds, as mentioned in the said sections.

Sec. 64. No boiler made and placed on board shall be made of boiler plate, whether iron or steel, which has not been stamped with the mark or name of the maker thereof; and no certificate shall be granted with respect to any boiler made wholly or in part of plate not so marked; and before a certificate shall be granted with respect to any boiler, a declaration on oath by the maker of the boiler, stating the name of the maker of the plates, their quality, and the quality of all materials used in the construction thereof, shall be furnished to the Inspector; such oath may be taken before any justice of the peace in Canada, or before a notary public, and certified under his official seal, if taken out of Canada: Provided always, that in any case where such declaration on oath by the maker of the boiler cannot be obtained owing to the death of the maker, or from other cause deemed sufficient by the Inspector, the affidavit of two practical boiler makers who have examined the boiler and reported upon the quality of the materials in it and its workmanship and strength, shall, if satisfactory to the Inspector, be deemed sufficient in lieu of such declaration by the maker of the boiler.

Sec. 65. During the construction of every boiler made in Canada, the maker of such boiler shall notify the Inspector of the district in which it is being made, that it is open to his inspection, and shall, at all times during such construction, allow the Inspector access to such boiler.

Sec. 66. No boiler or pipe shall be approved which is made in whole or in part of bad material, or is unsafe in its form, or dangerous from defective workmanship, age, use or any other cause.

Construction of Boilers.

Sec. 67. (a.) When cylindrical boilers or the cylindrical parts of boilers composed of iron plates are made of the best material with all the rivet holes drilled in place and all the seams fitted with double butt straps, each of at least five-eighths the thickness of the plates they cover, and all the seams at least double riveted with rivets having an allowance of not more than 75 per cent. over the single shear, and provided that the boilers have been open to inspection during the whole period of construction, then 4 may be used as the factor of safety. The tensile strength of the material is to be taken as equal to 48,000 lbs. per square inch with the grain, and 42,000 lbs. across the grain. When the above conditions are not complied with, the addition, in the following scale, must be added to the factor according to the circumstances of each case:

A·15—To be added when all the holes are fair and good in the longitudinal seams, but drilled out of place after bending.

B·3—To be added when all the holes are fair and good in the longitudinal seams, but drilled out of place before bending.

C·3—To be added when all the holes are fair and good in the longitudinal seams, but punched after bending instead of drilled.

D·5—To be added when all the holes are fair and good in the longitudinal seams, but punched before bending.

E*·75—To be added when all the holes are not fair and good in the longitudinal seams.

F·1—To be added if the holes are all fair and good in the circumferential seams, but drilled out of place after bending.

G·15—To be added if the holes are fair and good in the circumferential seams, but drilled before bending.

H·15—To be added if the holes are fair and good in the circumferential seams, but punched after bending.

I·2—To be added if the holes are fair and good in the circumferential seams, but punched before bending.

J*·2—To be added if the holes are not fair and good in the circumferential seams.

K·2—To be added if double butt straps are not fitted to the longitudinal seams, and the said seams are lap and double riveted.

L·1—To be added if double butt straps are not fitted to the longitudinal seams, and the said seams are lap and treble riveted.

M·3—To be added if only single butt straps are fitted to the longitudinal seams, and the said seams are double riveted.

N·15—To be added if only single butt straps are fitted to the longitudinal seams, and the said seams are treble riveted.

O·1—To be added when any description of joint in the longitudinal seams is single riveted.

P‡·1—To be added if the circumferential seams are fitted with single butt straps and are double riveted.

Q‡·2—To be added if the circumferential seams are fitted with single butt straps and are single riveted.

R‡·1—To be added if the circumferential seams are fitted with double butt straps and are single riveted.

S‡·1—To be added if the circumferential seams are lap joints and are double riveted.

T·2—To be added if the circumferential seams are lap joints and are single riveted.

U·25—To be added when the circumferential seams are lap, and the strakes of plates are not entirely under or over.

V·3—To be added when the boiler is of such a length as to fire from both ends, or is of unusual length, such as flue boilers; and the circumferential seams are fitted as described opposite P., R. and S., but of course when the circumferential seams are as described opposite Q. and T., V·3 will become V·4.

W*·4—To be added if the seams are not properly crossed.

X*·4—To be added when the iron is in any way doubtful, and the Inspector is not satisfied that it is of the best quality.

Y†·1—To be added if the boiler is not open to inspection during the whole period of its construction.

(b.) The strength of the joints is found by the following method:—

Percentage of strength of plate at joint as compared with the solid plate.

Percentage of strength of rivets as compared with the solid plate. ††

(c.) Where marked * the allowance may be increased still further if the workmanship or material is very doubtful or unsatisfactory.

†† If the rivets are exposed to double shear multiply the percentage as found by 1·75.

† When surveying boilers that have not been open to inspection during construction the case should be submitted to the chairman as to the factors to be used,

P‡·1, Q‡·2, R‡·1, S‡·1, shall not apply to the end or circumferential seams, if such seams are sufficiently stayed by through bolts; nor to the seams between the square and round part of shell, in cylindrical boilers with square furnaces, when such seams are double riveted.

(d.) Then take iron as equel in tensile strength to 48,000 lbs. per square inch and use the smallest of the two percentages as the strength of the joint, and adopt the factor of safety as found from the preceding scale:

$$\frac{(48{,}000 \times \text{percentage of strength of joint}) \times \text{twice the thickness of the plate in inches}}{\text{Inside diameter of boiler in inches} \times \text{factor of safety.}}$$

=Pressure to be allowed per square inch on the safety-valves.

(e.) For steel plates of the best quality the tensile strength may be taken as equal to 60,000 lbs. per square inch, using the same factor of safety.

(f.) Plates that are drilled in place must be taken apart and the burr taken off and the holes slightly countersunk from the outside.

(g.) Butt straps must be of as good quality as the shell plates, and for the longitudinal seams must be cut across the fibre.

(h.) The rivet holes may be punched or drilled when the plates are punched or drilled out of place, but when drilled in place must be taken apart and the burr taken off and slightly countersunk from the outside.

(i.) When single butt straps are used and the rivet holes in them punched they must be one-eighth thicker than the plates they cover.

(j.) The diameter of rivets must not be less than the thickness of the plates of which the shell is made, but it will be found when the plates are thin, or when lap joints or single butt straps are adopted that the diameter of the rivets should be in excess of the thickness of the plates.

(k.) The distance of the rivet holes from the ends or edge of the plates shall not be less than the diameter of the rivet.

(l.) Dished ends that are not truly hemispherical must be stayed; if they are not theoretically equal in strength to the pressure needed they must be stayed as flat surfaces, but if they are theoretically equal in strength to the presure needed the stays may have a strain of 10,000 lbs. per effective square inch of sectional area.

(m.) Inspectors will remember that the strength of a sphere to resist internal pressure is double that of a cylinder of the same diameter and thickness.

Sec. 68. (a.) The neutral parts of boiler shells under steam domes must be sufficiently stiffened and stayed.

(b.) The sides of boilers having square furnaces and half round tops must be stayed from side to side of the shell, over the furnace, one or more rows of these stays to be placed well above the centre of the cylindrical part.

(c.) Screw stays are not to be used when supporting flat surfaces at any angle but a right angle to the surface supported, their diameter to be measured inside the thread.

(d.) The longitudinal seams in the cylindrical shell of boilers should be as far as possible from the bottom.

(e.) The inside diameter of the outside strake or course in the cylindrical shell of a boiler is to be taken as the measure of its diameter.

Sec. 69. (a.) In cylindrical super-heaters the strength of the joints and the factor of safety is found in a similar manner as for cylindrical boilers and steam receivers, but instead of using 48,000 lbs. as the tensile strength of iron 24,000 lbs. is adopted unless where the heat or flame impinges at or nearly at right angles to the plate, then 18,000 lbs. is substituted.

(b.) In all cases the internal steam pipes should be so fitted that the steam in flowing to them will pass over all the plates exposed to the impact of heat or flame.

(c.) Super-heaters or water jackets should, as regards inspection, be deemed to be the most important part of the boilers and must be inspected inside and outside; those that cannot be entered (on account of their size) must have a sufficient number of doors through which a thorough inspection of the whole of the interior can be made.

(d.) Special attention should be paid to the inspection of super-heaters, as with high pressure the plates may become dangerously weak and not give any sound to indicate their state when tested with the hammer; the plate should therefore be occasionally drilled. Drain pipes must be in all cases fitted to super-heaters in which a collection of water in the bottom is possible.

(e.) Super-heaters that can be shut off from the main boilers must be fitted with a Government lockup safety valve of sufficient size, but the least size passed shall not be less than 3 inches diameter.

Sec. 70. The areas of diagonal stays are found in the following way:

Find the area of a direct stay needed to support the surface, multiply this area by the length of the diagonal stay and divide the product by the length of a line drawn at right angles to the surface supported to the end of the diagonal stay, the quotient will be the area of the diagonal stay required.

Sec. 71. (a.) When the tops of combustion boxes or other parts of a boiler are supported by solid rectangular girders, the following formula, which is used by the Imperial Board of Trade, will be useful for finding the working pressure to be allowed on the girders, assuming that they are not subjected to a greater temperature than the ordinary heat of steam, and in case of combustion chambers, that the ends are fitted to the edges of the tube plate and the back plate of the combustion box:

W=Width of combustion box in inches.

P=Pitch of supporting bolts in inches.

D=Distance between the girders from centre to centre in inches.

d=Depth in girder in inches.

T=Thickness of girder in inches.

C=500 when the girder is fitted with one supporting bolt.

C=850 when the girder is fitted with four supporting bolts.

(b.) The working pressure for the supporting bolts and for the plate between them, shall be determined by the rule for ordinary stays.

Sec. 72. The flat ends of all boilers, as far as the steam space extends, and the ends of superheaters should be fitted with shield, or baffle plates, where exposed to the hot gases of the uptake, as all the plates subjected to the direct impact of heat or flame are liable to get injured unless covered with water.

Sec. 73. Donkey boilers that are in any way attached to, or connected with the main boilers, or with the machinery used for propelling the ship, must be inspected and fitted the same way as the main boilers, and have a water and steam gauge, and all other fittings complete, and as regards safety-valves must comply with the same regulations as the main boilers, and no safety-valve shall be passed less than two inches diameter.

Sec. 74. (a.) No boiler or steam-chamber is to be so constructed, fitted or arranged as that the escape of steam from it through the safety-valve can be wholly or partially intercepted by the action of any other valve.

(b.) A stop valve must always be fitted between the boiler and the steam pipe, and when two or more boilers are connected with a steam receiver or superheater, between each boiler and superheater or steam receiver. The object of this is obvious, viz., to avoid the failure of all the boilers through the failure of one. The necks of stop valves should be as short as practicable.

Sec. 75. (a.) Each boiler must be fitted with glass water-gauge, at least two test cocks, and steam gauge, that is to say, each boiler must be fitted with all the fittings as complete as if there were only one boiler.

(b.) Boilers that fire at both ends and those of unusual width, must have water gauges and test cocks at each end or side, as the case may be. When a steamer has more than one boiler, and those boilers are fitted with stop valves each boiler must be treated as a separate one and have all the requisite fittings.

Sec. 76. Inspectors are to be most careful not to give any official sanction to any new arrangement or construction of marine steam boilers, without first obtaining the permission of the Chairman in writing, nor are they allowed to give any written approval of any invention, or arrangement unless by direction of the Board, and whenever they know that any invention or new arrangement is to be fitted to a vessel that is intended to have a passenger certificate, they should as soon as possible obtain plans and submit the same to the Chairman.

Sec. 77. When the longitudinal seams in cylindrical furnaces are not welded or made with a butt strap as provided in section 56 of these regulations, the following constants will be substituted for 90,000:

(a.) Furnaces with butt joints and drilled rivet holes.	90,000 where the longitudinal seams are double riveted and fitted with single butt straps; 80,000 where the longitudinal seams are single riveted and fitted with single butt straps; 90,000 where the longitudinal seams are single riveted and fitted with double butt straps.
(b.) Furnaces with butt joints and punched rivet holes.	85,000 where the longitudinal seams are double riveted and fitted with single butt straps; 75,000 where the longitudinal seams are single riveted and fitted with single butt straps; 85,000 where the longitudinal seams are single riveted and fitted with double butt straps.
(c.) Furnaces with lap joints and drilled rivet holes.	80,000 where the longitudinal seams are double riveted and bevelled; 75,000 where the longitudinal seams are double riveted and not bevelled; 70,000 where the longitudinal seams are single riveted and bevelled; 65,000 where the longitudinal seams are single riveted and not bevelled.
(d.) Furnaces with lapped joints and punched rivet holes.	75,000 where the longitudinal seams are double riveted and not bevelled. 70,000 where the longitudinal seams are double riveted and not bevelled. 65,000 where the longitudinal seams are single riveted and bevelled. 60,000 where the longitudinal seams are single riveted and not bevelled.

Furnaces and Flues.

Sec. 78. (a.) The external working pressure to be allowed on plane circular steel furnaces and flues when subjected to such pressure, when the longitudinal joints are welded or made with a butt strap, shall be determined by the following formula:—

(b.) The product of 90,000 multiplied by the square of the thickness of the plate in inches, divided by the length of the flue, or furnace, in feet, plus 1, multiplied by the diameter in inches, will be the allowable working pressure per square inch in pounds; provided it does not exceed that found by the following formula:—

(c.) The product of 10,000 multiplied by the thickness of the plate in inches, divided by the diameter (outside) of the flue or furnace, in inches, will be the allowable working pressure per square inch in pounds.

Corrugated Steel Furnaces and Flues.

Sec. 79. (a.) Steel flue furnaces when new, corrugated, and machine-made, and practically true circles, the working pressure is found by the following formula, provided that the plane parts at the ends do not exceed six inches in length, and the plates are not less than $\frac{5}{16}$ inch thick.

$$\frac{12{,}500 \times \text{thickness in inches}}{\text{Mean diameter in inches}} = \text{Working pressure per square inch.}$$

(b.) When the furnaces are riveted in two or more lengths the case should be submitted to the Chairman for consideration, as it may be necessary to make a reduction.

Corrugated Iron Furnaces.

Sec. 80. The working pressure for corrugated iron furnaces practically circular, and machine-made, provided the plane parts at the ends do not exceed six inches in length and the plates are not less than $\frac{5}{16}$ inch thick, should not be greater than that found by the following formula:—

Duties of inspectors.

Sec. 81. Inspectors are to fix the working pressure of boilers by a series of calculations of the strength of the various parts, and according to the workmanship and material.

Sec. 82. Before testing a boiler the Inspector should examine it, take the necessary measurements and calculate what the working pressure should be, in accordance with these regulations. If the test is not satisfactory the defects must be made good and the boiler re-tested. This instruction applies to superheaters, steam chests and water jackets as well as boilers.

Sec. 83. If the boiler is too hot for the Inspector to examine it efficiently with safety and convenience he should decline to examine it and absolutely refuse to grant a certificate until he can make an efficient examination.

Sec. 84. Inspectors should see all new boilers and boilers that have been taken out of a ship for a thorough repair, tested by a hydraulic pressure up to at least one and one half the working pressure that will be allowed previous to the boilers being placed in the vessel to test the workmanship, &c., but the working pressure is to be determined by the stay power, thickness of plates and strength of riveting, &c., and not by hydraulic test.

Sec. 85. The hydraulic test should is no case exceed that provided by section 48 of these regulations, and it is never to be applied until the boiler has been opened up for examination and until the strength has been calculated from the necessary measurements taken from the boiler itself.

Sec. 86. When a boilor is partially inspected by one Inspector and the inspection is completed and the certificate granted by another, if the Inspector who witnesses the test of the boilers by the hydraulic pressure has an opportunity of examining them inside and outside after the test, such Inspector shall determine the pressure to be allowed on the boilers in question, taking care to inform the owners, makers or agents, and the Inspector who is ultimately to grant a certificate, what pressure should in his opinion be allowed on them.

Sec. 87. Cast iron must not be used for stays, and Inspectors should also discourage the use of cast iron for chocks and saddles for boilers. Particular attention should be paid to chocking and fastening boilers to the vessel.

Sec. 88. A pressure once allowed on a boiler of a passenger steamer is not, under any circumstances whatever, to be increased, unless the Inspector has previously written for and obtained the sanction of the Chairman. In cases where an Inspector is of opinion that an increased pressure may with safety be allowed he should communicate with the Inspector who last inspected the boiler, and if on learning the reason why the existing pressure was formerly allowed, the Inspector is still of opinion that it may be increased, he should communicate all the facts of the case to the Chairman, but as above stated the pressure should not in any case be increased until the question has been decided by the Chairman.

Sec. 89. In fixing the maximum working pressure on steamboat boilers, Inspectors are to assume one hundred and twenty-five pounds to the square inch as the limit allowable for a new steel boiler forty-two inches in diameter, made in the best manner, of the best quality of steel plates, at least one quarter of an inch thick, with all the rivet holes drilled in place, the plates being then taken apart and the burrs removed, the longitudinal seams in the shell being fitted with double butt steel straps cut across the grain of the plates and each of at least five-eighths the thickness of the plates they cover, and all the seams being at least double riveted and having at least seventy per cent. of the strength of the solid plate, and all the flat surfaces stayed in the best manner and all the seams double riveted, and they shall rate the working pressure of all steel boilers so made whether of greater or less diameter according to their strength compared with this standard, and in all such cases the test applied shall exceed the working pressure allowed for such boilers in the ratio of one hundred and fifty pounds to one hundred pounds, using the water in such tests at a temperature not exceeding sixty degrees Fahrenheit, and all percentages added to the factor of safety for interior workmanship or material, are to be deducted from that pressure.

Sec. 90. In fixing the maximum working pressure on steamboat boilers, Inspectors are to assume one hundred pounds to the square inch, as the limit allowable for a new boiler forty-two inches in diameter, made of the best refined iron, at least one quarter of an inch thick, in the best manner and of the quality herein required, and shall rate the working pressure of all iron boilers, whether of greater or less diameter, according to their strength compared with this standard, and in all such cases the test applied shall exceed the working pressure allowed, in the ratio of one hundred and fifty pounds to one hundred, using the water in such tests at a temperature not exceeding sixty degrees Fahrenheit, and all percentages added to the factor of safety, for inferior workmanship or material, are to be deducted from that pressure.

Sec. 91. In the case of zig-zag riveting the strength through the plate diagonally between the rivets is equal to that horizontally between the rivets, when diagonal pitch $= \frac{6}{10}$ horizontal pitch $+ \frac{4}{10}$ diameter of rivet.

Safety-Valves.

Sec. 92. Section 31 of the Steamboat Inspection Act provides that the boiler of every steamboat shall be fitted with one or more locked-up safety-valves. Section 22 further provides that the area of any locked safety-valve or the joint areas of any locked safety-valve to any boiler made or placed on board after the 17th day of May, 1882, shall not be less than half a square inch for each square foot of grate surface in or under the boiler. In all cases the safety-valves should be upon the boiler or as near as possible to it.

Sec. 93. Inspectors are instructed that in all new boilers and whenever alterations can be easily made the valve chest should be placed directly on the boiler, and the neck or part between the chest and the flange which bolts on to the boiler should be as short as possible and be cast in one with the chest.

Sec. 94. In any case in which an Inspector is of opinion that it is positively dangerous to have a length of pipe between the boilers and the safety-valve chest, it is his duty at once to insist on the requisite alterations being made before granting a certificate.

Sec. 95. Inspectors are to fix the limit of the weight to be placed on the safety-valves and are to satisfy themselves that the boilers are in their judgment sufficient with the weight so placed.

Sec. 96. In new vessels no safety-valves should be passed less than two and one half inches in diameter, and for donkey boilers and boilers having less than six square feet of grate surface, not less than one inch in diameter.

Sec. 97. Care should be taken that the safety-valves have a lift equal to at least one-fourth their diameter, that the area of the inlet and outlet openings for the passage of steam be not less than the area of the valve; where lever valves are used the distance between the centre of the valve and the centre of the fulcrum should not be less than the diameter of the valve.

Sec. 98. The size of the steel of which the spring is made in spring safety-valves is found from the following formula taken from the Imperial Board of Trade Rules:

$$\sqrt[3]{\frac{S \times D}{c}} = d$$

The spring should be protected from the steam and impurities issuing from the boiler, and in case of the spring breaking means provided to keep it in position on the valve.

Sec. 99. A standard spring if made of the best square cast steel contains ·25 of a square inch, the inside diameter is two inches, and the outside diameter three inches, it has thirteen complete coils with the ends and is $11\frac{1}{2}$ inches long. The working load is assumed at 600 pounds, one-sixth of its breaking load when hardened to a temper, just sufficient to break it, at which load it should deflect just one inch.

Sec. 100. To find the sectional area for any other spring the pressure on the valve being given:

600 : : 700 : ·29=sectional area of spring at 700 lbs. load.

Suppose the pressure on the valve be 1,344 lbs. than 600 : 1,344 : : ·25 : ·56 equal to a $\frac{3}{4}$ inch square bar; the other dimensions of the spring would be in like proportion.

Sec. 101. The following conditions should apply to all safety-valves:—

(a.) Under no consideration whatever should the pressure rise in the boiler above the load placed on the safety-valve.

(b.) The relieving power of the safety-valve or safety-valves should be twice the generating power of the boiler under full fires.

(c.) No disk or "pop safety-valve" liable to open the full area of the valve suddenly, should be passed over four inches in diameter. When a larger area of safety-valve is required, two or more valves may be used; but in all cases lifting gear must be provided for raising them singly or together.

Sec. 102. Safety-valves must be placed in convenient and accessible places, that their adjustment and examination may be readily and efficiently made.

Duties and Liabilities of Engineers.

Sec. 103. (a.) Engineers are required in all cases upon stopping of the engine to open the safety-valves, so as to keep the steam in the boiler below the limit allowed by the Inspector's certificate as prescribed by law, to open the doors or close the dampers, and when from accident or other cause, the water in the boiler has fallen below the point of safety, to put out the fires immediately.

(b.) Engineers shall keep the fire pumps and hose and their connections in perfect condition ready for immediate use, and when found unfit for use from age or other cause, shall report their condition to the Inspector of Hulls by whom the steamer was last inspected.

(c.) Engineers when laying up a steamer in the fall, or when finally leaving her, are required to report to the owner and also to the Inspector of the nearest district any defects of, or injury to, the boilers and machinery by which the safety of the same may be endangered. They shall also report to the Inspector of the district at which the steamer next arrives, any accident happening to the boilers or machinery during the trip, and in case of omission to make such report, the license of the engineer so omitting shall be revoked.

(d.) The Chief Engineer of a steamer is held accountable by the Department of Marine for the proper care and management of the boilers and machinery under his charge. He is, therefore, in no case to absent himself from the vessel while on her regular trips, unless a competent substitute be provided to fill his place during his absence.

(e.) Engineers on first taking charge of a steamer, and at least once a year thereafter, shall satisfy themselves by close examination that the braces, stays and pins of the boiler are in good order, and sufficient for the strain to which they may be subjected; they shall also satisfy themselves that the safety-valves are in good working order and sufficient for the requirements of section 67 of these regulations.

(f.) Engineers are to exhibit their certificates in the Engine room, along with a copy of these regulations when required to do so.

Management of Boilers.

Sec. 104. (a.) Getting up steam—Warm the boiler gradually. Steam should not be raised from cold water in less than four hours. If practicable, light the fires over night. By getting up steam too quickly, the boiler will soon be destroyed.

(b.) Firing.—Fire regularly. Keep the sides up, and use the slice gently and as seldom as possible.

(c.) Feed water.—Let the feed be regular and constant.

(e.) Safety valves.—Lift each safety-valve at least once a day, and always before getting up steam.

(f.) Low water.—Put out the fires by drawing them or throwing ashes on them. Never use water. Low water should never occur.

(g.) Blowing off the Boiler.—Do not blow off by steam pressure; let the water run off if possible. See that the fires are all out.

(h.) Boiler Purgers.—Never use any compositions to keep down incrustation, or oil or other impurities to remove it without the approval of the Chairman.

(i.) General Rules.—Keep the boiler clean inside and outside, and free from leak. Never throw water in the furnace. Under high pressure, raise the safety-valve gently. Lower the fires, or, if necessary, stop the engine when foaming to find the water level.

CERTIFIED COPY of a Report of a Committee of the Honorable the Privy Council, approved by His Excellency the Govervor General in Council, on the 17th September, 1889.

Upon a Report dated 12th September, 1889, from the Minister of Marine and Fisheries submitting the following Regulations made by the Board of Steamboat Inspection for the uniform inspection of Steamboats and for such other purposes as are necessary under the provisions of chapter 78 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, intituled "The Steamboat Inspection Act," and recommending that the same be approved in accordance with the said Act.

The Committee advise that the said Regulations be approved accordingly.

JOHN J. McGEE,
Clerk, Privy Council.

INSPECTION OF HULLS OF STEAMBOATS.

Inspection of Hulls and Equipment of Steamboats carrying Passengers.

Section 1. Inspectors of Hulls, before granting a passenger certificate, must be satisffied that the following particulars have been complied with, in accordance with the requirements of the Act relating to Steamboat Inspection.

(a.) That the hull of the vessel is sufficient for the service intended, and in good condition.

(b.) That the boats, life-preservers, buoys, lights, signals and compasses are in good condition, and the certificates of the master and mate, or mates, engineer or engineers, are such as are required by the said Act.

(c.) The time (if less than 12 months) for which the said hull will be deemed sufficient.

(d.) The limits (if any) beyond which, as regards the hull and equipments, the vessel is, in the Inspector's judgment, not fit to ply.

(e.) The number of passengers besides the crew, the vessel is allowed to carry, distinguishing, if necessary, between the respective numbers to be carried on the main deck and upper deck.

Sec. 2. (a.) Inspectors shall make their inspections when the owner, or master, and engineer of the vessel are present, if possible. Repairs can then be required, and defects can be pointed out to the proper persons, without incurring delay. If these persons are not present, the Inspectors will make their inspection without them.

(b.) In order to prevent any mistakes as to the nature and extent of repairs required by the Inspectors, whenever they can not give a certificate until the repairs are effected or alterations made, a written statement of the defects to be remedied or alterations required, shall, in all cases, be handed to the owner or master of the vessel, whether such statement is applied for by him or not, a copy of which should be always taken and transferred to the office press letter book.

(c.) If any difference of opinion arises between the Inspector and the owner or master, the facts should at once be submitted to the Chairman of the Board of Steamboat Inspection for consideration, and for reference to the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, when necessary.

Sec. 3. If a vessel usually plying in one district is taken to another district to be inspected, the Inspector in the latter district shall not give a certificate without first communicating with the Inspector for the former district; nor, if there is any difference of opinion, without referring the question to the Chairman aforesaid for decision.

Sec. 4. It is the duty of the Inspector of Hulls to satisfy himself personally upon every detail of the inspection of a vessel, and not to trust to any certificate or other document given by any person not responsible to his department who will hold him responsible to the fullest extent for the performance of the duty entrusted to him, and will support him in any reasonable step he may think necessary, in order to the fullest performance of his duty.

Sec. 5. In case the Inspector has reason to believe that the hull or equipment is not fit for so long a time as twelve months, he is to grant his certificate for such shorter period as he may deem proper, informing the owners of his reasons for so doing.

Sec. 6. It is most desirable that an Inspector should complete the inspection of a vessel in every detail when he has commenced it; and, if possible, arrangements should always be made with the owners to secure this. Delays and inconveniences may be prevented, if notice is given by owners when the vessel is ready for inspection, and her equipment in place on board. An Inspector should not sign a certificate for any detail which he has not inspected, and for which he is not prepared to hold himself personally responsible.

Sec. 7. Every person who knowingly and wilfully makes or assists in making, or procures to be made a false or fraudulent certificate with respect to any steamboat, or who forges or assists in forging, or procures to be forged, fraudulently alters, or assists in fraudulently altering any certificate required by The Steamboat Inspection Act, or any words, figures in any such certificate or any signatures thereto, is guilty of a misdemeanor.

Sec. 8. A certificate for twelve months shall not be granted, whenever the Inspector has any doubts whatever, as to the efficiency of any part of the vessel or equipment for such period.

Sec. 9. Inspectors shall determine whether hulls of passenger steamers are in good conditon and fit for the service for which they are intended, and shall examine the hulls outside and inside, once a year, if possible, or oftener, and at such time as is most convenient to the owner.

Sec. 10. New steamboats should be inspected before painting or completion, but any such inspection is not to interfere with the complete inspection of hull and equipment, after completion, the object being to form an opinion of the workmanship, material and construction.

Sec. 11. When a steamboat which has been inspected for a passenger certificate, is not in every respect in good condition, although the defects may not be sufficient to warrant the withholding the certificate, and although the vessel may be practically fit for the service intended, the Inspector should, when he grants the certificate, forward to the Chairman aforesaid, a report showing the nature of the defects in question.

Sec. 12. For examining the internal parts of a passenger steamboat, the Inspector shall, if he considers it necessary, have parts of the ceiling removed, in order that he may ascertain the condition of the hull, frames, floors, &c., particularly in the engine room and boiler space, and also in the coal bunkers, they being empty.

Sec. 13. The date of the last inspection shall be entered in an office inspection book with particulars of the condition of the hull at that time, with approximate sketches of the midship section, showing the form, build, and dimensions of the vessel, and parts, sufficiently to judge of her shape and strength. Any question or doubt as to the strength of the vessel for the route on which she is placed, should be referred to the Chairman aforesaid.

Sec. 14. The height of the combings round all openings in main deck, and the means provided for securely protecting or fastening down all sky-lights, bunker openings, &c., are important items to be noticed by the Inspector in steamboats subject to heavy seas. All gangways and openings, on or below weather deck, should be fitted with covers in such a manner that they can be quickly and efficiently secured. Hatch covers should be provided with means for effectually securing them down. Grating and hatch covers must be kept and secured in a suitable place, at all times accessible, and near to the openings for which they are intended.

Sec. 15. All boats should be hung on davits and kept ready for service at any moment. Inspectors should see that in all boats the full complement of oars is provided, that each boat has two plugs to each plug hole, attached with lanyards or chains, and one set and a half of thole pins or crutches attached to the boat by sound lanyards, a bailer, a rudder and tiller or yoke and yoke lines; a painter of sufficient length and a boat hook. The rudder and painter shall be attached to the boats by sufficient long lanyards and ready for use; means for speedily detaching the boats from the lower blocks of the davit tackles should be insisted upon. An ordinary fixed hook in the lower block shipping into fixed eye in the boat should not be allowed.

Sec. 16. Inspectors should see that the davits are strong enough, that they are so spaced that the boat can be swung out without unnecessary labor; that the boat chocks can be expeditiously removed, and that the boats will not foul the ship's sides, when lowering, when the ship has no list. The whole of the tackling, including davits, equipment and crew, falls, blocks, eye bolts and rings, &c., shall be of sufficient strength to lower the boat with its full equipment and crew on board. The davit tackle falls must be long enough to lower the boat into the water, when the vessel is light. Life lines should be fitted to the davits long enough to reach the water when the vessel is light, and allowance made for the extreme roll of the vessel.

Sec. 17. Inspectors will refuse a certificate in cases in which these instructions are not carried out, but it is to be left to the owners of passenger steamboats to furnish such methods as they please for lowering boats so long as the intention of the Act is complied with. Any unusual or doubtful method of lowering boats must be submitted to the Board of Steamboat Inspection for its consideration and approval before it is passed. All boats should be lowered into the water at every inspection.

Sec. 18. Life-buoys with lines attached should be secured by a toggle or becket, or any other similar method, so that they may be quickly released. They must not be lashed or seized to the rail or any other part of the vessel, but must be kept so as to be ready for use at a moment's notice in case of emergency. Life-buoys and jackets shall be carefully examined when inspecting the vessel to see that materials of which they are composed have not become sodden and that the lines attached to them are of sufficient length, serviceable and in good order.

Masts and Sails and Gangboards.

Sec. 19. Section 54 of "The Steamboat Inspection Act" empowers the Minister of Marine and Fisheries to require steamships above sixty tons registered tonnage, carrying passengers on the sea coasts of the Dominion or on any, or on all the waters of the Dominion, with certain exceptions, to be provided with a mast or masts and sail or sails, suitable for such steamboat; and to prescribe the dimensions of such mast or masts, and sail or sails respectively.

Sec. 20. Inspectors of Hulls when inspecting passenger steamboats employed on the sea coast, or on the great lakes of the Dominion, are to see that they are fitted with sufficient sail power to enable them to steer in the event of their machinery becoming disabled. All such sails must be examined by the Inspector, who must be assured of their efficiency, as also with that of the standing and running gear at every inspection, and in any case of doubt to apply to the Chairman.

Sec. 21. Inspectors shall see that suitable and safe gangboards are provided with means for securing them safely at both ends.

Sec. 22. In the first inspection of a steamboat employed on the sea coast or on the great lakes of the Dominion, whether built of iron or wood, the Inspector shall require the compasses to be properly adjusted or verified by a competent person, selected by the owner, whereupon the Inspector shall grant a certificate to the owner to the effect that the compasses of the ship (if an iron ship) are properly adjusted, and a table of errors shall be furnished, and handed by the owners to the Inspector before he gives the certificate.

Sec. 23. Inspectors of Hulls shall see that the deck pumps, whether worked by hand or steam, are properly placed, sufficient in number, and that provision is made to get at the end of the suction pipes in case of fouling. No deck pump shall be passed which requires charging by hand before taking suction. When such is found to be the case, the Inspector shall insist upon proper provisions being made to make the pump efficient at all times. Fire hose should be stretched to their length and thoroughly examined and tried under pressure from the pumps at least once a year, and at any other time the Inspector may deem necessary. The hose should be connected with the pumps for immediate use.

Sec. 24. A spare tiller shall be provided, with relieving tackles, to be kept near the after-steering gear, ready for immediate use on all sea-going steamers and steamers on the great lakes. The steering gear shall be inspected and thoroughly examined at least once a year.

Sec. 25. Inspectors of Hulls must be careful to see that every sea-going steamer, subject to the Act, and every steamer employed on the great lakes, is provided with suitable chain cables, anchors and ground tackle, in good condition sufficient for the service in which the vessel is employed, and that the cable be removed from the lockers at least once a year and cleaned, if necessary, and the pins knocked out of the shackles.

Sec. 26. (a.) Inspectors of Hulls shall keep an office register book for new steamers, in which they shall enter particulars of their registration, official number, name, port of registry, dimensions, tonnage, ownership, names of master and engineers; also a general description of build, showing a sketch of the midship section, giving sizes of frames, planking, deck beams, clamps, knees, covering boards and fastenings, as the case may be, sufficient to judge of the vessel and the fitness for the route on which it is to be placed. A description of the upper works on passenger steamers shall also be given stating how the same are secured to the hull, and what provision is made against rolling in a heavy sea.

(c.) The fitness of the boats and other equipments for saving life, whether sufficient for the number of passengers the steamers is allowed to carry, together with the crew on the route she is to be placed shall also be given in the said particulars. A copy of these particulars in full made out neatly on foolscap paper shall be sent to the Chairman of the Board of Steamboat Inspection and shall be filed for reference in the office for the information of the Department of Marine.

Sec. 27. (a.) Each Inspector of Hulls will also keep an office docking book, in which he shall enter the date of last docking of each steamer inspected by him, with particulars of repairs made upon her; also memoranda for her last inspection, as made by him; the condition in which he then found the hull and equipment; with copy of any correspondence between the owner and master, relating to any repairs, fittings, equipment, or other things which may require proof, in the event of not having been complied with.

(b.) Inspectors of Hulls shall not consider their duty as finished in respect to a steamboat for which they have granted a certificate for a year or any shorter period, but are expected by the Department to have supervision over all steamboats, subject to the Act, within, or coming within their district. Should any infractions of the law on the part of an owner or master of steamboats come to the knowledge of an Inspector, whereby the safety of life or property is endangered, it will be his duty at once to cause steps to prevent such occurrence by reporting the case to the Department of Marine with the grounds of the complaint.

Passengers.

Sec. 28. (a.) The number of passengers allowed on passenger steamers may be found by multiplying the length by the breadth of the vessel at the water line, and dividing the product by a factor of safety, according to the class of vessels thus :—

For ocean steamers the factor shall be......	10
For ocean coasting steamers..................	10
For steamers navigating in the great lakes.	9
For lake coasting, harbor, river, ferry and excursion steamers..........................	6

(b.) No deviation shall be made from this regulation unless with the consent of the Chairman of the Board of Steamboat Inspection and with the approval of the Minister of Marine and Fisheries.

(c.) In excursion steamers carrying passengers within the hold of the vessel, the limit shall be at the discretion of the Inspector, but in no case shall exceed as many as can find accommodation.

(d.) These factors may be increased to a further limit, if from age or unfitness, the vessel is not considered safe for the carriage of so many passengers.

Sec. 29. The carrying capacity in the number of persons of yawl boats shall be determined as follows, viz :—

By multiplying the length of the keel by the breadth and by the depth from top of keel to gunwale in feet, and then dividing the product by 10, the quotient will be the number of persons allowed to each boat.

Life-boats and their Equipments.

Sec. 30. (a.) Life-boat shall be built whale-boat fashion ; they should have a sheer of about ¾ inch to a foot, rising equally from amidship to the stem and stern, and to have sufficient strong serviceable air-tight compartments so constructed, fitted and arranged that water can not find its way into them.

(c.) Zinc shall not be used in the construction of a life-boat or in her air-casings.

(d.) The air-tight compartments must be so distributed as to give the boat good buoyancy and stability. Whether a part of the air-case should be under thwarts, or whether they should be in the ends and along the sides, will be, so long as an efficient life-boat is obtained, left to the option of the owner.

(g.) Life-lines shall be suitably attached to the gunwale of the life-boat.

(h.) The life-boat must be provided with the full complement of oars properly secured ; two plugs for each plughole, attached with lanyards or chains, a bailer, rudder and tiller, also attached to the boat by lanyards ; a hatchet, attached with a lanyard, shall be kept in each end of the boat, and a painter and a boat hook.

(i.) Means for detaching speedily the life-boat from the lower blocks of the davit tackles must be provided. An ordinary fixed hook in the lower block should not be allowed. The boat's davits must be strong enough and so spaced that the boat can be swung out without unnecessary labor, so that the boat chocks can be expeditiously removed, and that the boat will not foul the ship's sides in lowering when the ship has no list ; and that the whole of the tackling davits, falls, blocks, eye-bolts, and rings, &c., are of sufficient strength to lower the boat with its full complement on board.

Rate or Duty.

Sec. 31. The following rate or duty shall be paid by the owner or master of every steamboat in Canada, under the provisions of the 46th section of chapter 78 of the Revised Statutes of Canada :

The rate or duty to be paid yearly by owners or masters of steamboats, shall be eight cents for every ton gross, each steamboat measures, on and after the 1st day of October, 1889. 25-4

3. When a number of different articles of the same class in carloads embraced in one line of trade are shipped at one time by one shipper to one consignee at one point of delivery, in full carloads, they shall be taken at the rate per hundred pounds for such class in C.L. This rule will not apply on mixed shipments of Groceries, Hardware, Dry Goods, Iron, etc., but only to different articles of one straight line of trade.

4. When the minimum carload weight or more of one article is shipped in one day by one consignor to one consignee, the established rate for a carload should apply on the entire lot, although it may be less than two full carloads ; the actual weight of the balance to be charged for at the C.L. rate, reference being made on the way bill for the balance of the lot, to the way bill for the full carload or loads,

This, however, will not apply on shipments of Agricultural Implements, Machinery, Live Stock, Vehicles, Furniture, Woodenware, Baskets, Empty Barrels, Casks or Boxes, Flour, Hay, Coal, Scrap Iron, and all bulk freights commonly carried in C.L. lots, as Grain, Mill Feed, Lumber and other rough forest products, Joiner's Work, Lime, Brick, etc. ; also all light or bulky goods which will not load 20,000 lbs. per car. In all such cases excess lots for which an extra car is necessary will be charged at the L. C. L. rates.

5. Freight from one Shipper to one Consignee should not be charged more for a smaller than for a greater quantity where varying quantities of the same descriptions of goods are classed differently. For instance : 4 bbls. of ale, etc., should not be charged more than for 5 bbls. ; 49 bbls. of apples and under should not be charged more than for 50 bbls. ; 129 bbls. or under should not be charged more than for 130 bbls. ; 120 bbls. flour should not be charged more than for 125 bbls. ; nor should an L.C.L. weight at a higher class be charged more than the sum for a C.L. where C.L. classification of the same freight is given.

6. Where C.L. is not quoted, the classification given is to apply irrespective of quantity.

7. All articles, except as otherwise specified, will be taken at actual gross weight, provided, however, that any article not otherwise provided for herein, requiring a whole car for carriage (whether full capacity of car be occupied or otherwise), if 10,000 lbs. weight or under, will be charged a minimum of 20,000 lbs. at 7th Class, and if over 10,000 lbs. a minimum of 20,000 lbs. at 6th Class. These minimums will not apply in cases where the actual gross weight as per Classification would give a higher charge.

8. All articles marked at O. R. in this Classification, must be so receipted for by Agents, and the words OWNERS' RISK written in full on the Shipping Notes and Receipts. Articles marked RELEASED must also be so receipted for, and Shippers or Owners must duly execute a Release in Duplicate on the Company's Forms. Provided, however, that in cases where shippers decline to accept such receipts endorsed "owner's risk," or to sign such releases, the goods may be received for shipment on ordinary shipping notes and receipts without above endorsation at fifty per cent. in addition to the rates which would be charged if shipped at owner's risk $^{\text{and}}_{\text{or}}$ released with the exception of plate glass, which will be at double the rates which would be charged if shipped at O. R. released.

9. Special attention is directed to articles marked as "Not taken unless by special contract, etc." Agents must always apply for rates, and for permission to carry such traffic before accepting or receipting for it.

10. DYNAMITE, DUALINE, GUN COTTON, GIANT POWDER, HERCULES POWDER, OR OTHER EXPLOSIVE COMPOUNDS not provided for in this Classification, will not be received or transported.

11. Grain, Bran, Feed, Malt, etc., in bulk, and all other bulk Freight, must always be receipted for "more or less," and these words written in full. Agents, however, must in all cases obtain from shippers a full statement or declaration on shipping bills of the correct quantity of all bulk freight loaded in or on each car : such declaration should show quantity, weight or measurement, in accordance with the common or commercial standard under which such traffic is sold, such as :—Bush. Wheat, Peas, Barley, Potatoes, etc. Tons Bran, Feed, etc. Square feet, or toise Stone, etc. Feet (board measure) Lumber, etc. Thousands Lath, Shingles, Staves, etc. Cords Wood, Stave Bolts, Bark, Posts, Shingle Bolts, Slabs, Poles, etc.—" with statement as to description, and whether "green," "partly seasoned," or "dry," of all forest products. In signing receipts, agents must be particular to note "said to be" as to quality and "more or less" as to quantity.

12. All heavy Freight, of 1,000 lbs. or over per piece or package, of 1st, 2nd, 3rd, 4th and 5th Classes : also heavy Freight, and all bulk Freight, in 6th, 7th, 8th, 9th and 10th Classes, is to be loaded and unloaded by Owners. At points where the Companies provide a cartage service, it must be understood that heavy articles, and bulk Freight above referred to, will not be carted or handled by the Companies, unless by special arrangement, and at the expense of the Owner, in addition to the rate.

13. BULK FREIGHT in less than car loads will not be taken.

14. When Fruit, Vegetables and other property, liable to damage by frost, are shipped in winter (Nov. 1st to April 30th, except as per Note below), one man will be passed free with one or more cars to care for the fires and protect the property from freezing. No return pass to be given. The stoves, if returned, to be charged same as "empties returned." When Shippers put stoves in cars, Agents must see that all reasonable precaution is taken against damage to the car or train, and receipts in all such cases must be given at "Owners' risk of fire." Passes will not be given to men in charge of Trees or shrubbery.

Note.—Perishable Freight for Manitoba and the North-West must be prepaid between October 10th and May 20th.

15. Agricultural Implements, Machinery, Vehicles, and other bulky traffic on flat cars, should not be loaded to exceed eleven feet six inches in extreme height above the top of the rail, and nine feet in extreme width, and should be well secured by iron rods, wire, or wooden bars passing over the load and connecting the upper ends of the stakes in such a manner as to prevent spreading. When these conditions are not complied with, the Companies reserve the right to either refuse the freight, or to remove any excess from the car and forward it on another car, at full rates as per classification.

16. Small consignments of one class (except Gunpowder), or including articles of several classes, will be charged at actual weight, according to the classification of each article, but no single shipment will be taken for less than 100 lbs., at 1st class; minimum charge, 35 cents, exclusive of cartage, and 45 cents if carted by the Companies' cartage agents at any of the cartage points.

To ascertain contents of a car of Cordwood or Stave Bolts:—Multiply the length, breadth and height (in feet) together, and divide by 128.

Thus:—Car 30 ft. long, 3 ft. 6 in. high, 8 ft. wide:—

30 ft. × 3 ft. 6 in. × 8 ft. = 840 ÷ 128 = 6·56 cords.

Above estimates are for "Dry Lumber," cut and piled 4 months or over: "Part Seasoned," cut and piled at least 2 months, and all under 2 months cut is "Green."

To find contents in each measure of a car of Lumber, multiply the length in feet, the width in feet, and the height in inches together, the product will give the number of feet, inch measure.

Thus:—Car 14 ft. long, 8 ft. wide, 60 in. high:—

14 × 8 × 60=6,720 feet.

Allowance should be made for waste space (if any) between the boards.

CEDAR POSTS.

The following quantities of cedar posts, 9 feet long, are estimated to weigh 24,000 lbs.:

28 feet car	4 ft. 9 in. high.
30 "	4 ft. 6 in. "
33 "	4 ft. 0 in. "

GRAIN IN BULK.

The quantity in a car can be ascertained, with sufficient accuracy, by multiplying the internal length and breadth of the car together, and then by the height of the grain. Multiply this product by 1728 (number of inches in a square foot) and divide by 2150 (number of square inches in a bushel).

Thus:—Car 27 ft. 6 in. × 8 ft. $7\frac{1}{2}$ in. × 2 ft. 1 in. = 494 ft. 1 in. 8 pts. Multiply by 1728, and ÷ 2150 = 400 nearly.

ROUND TIMBER.

1st. When all the sizes are in feet, multiply the length by the SQUARE of one-quarter of the mean girth, and the product will give the volume in cubic feet.

2nd. When the length is in feet and the girth is in inches, multiply as above, and divide by 144.

3rd. When all the dimensions are in inches, multiply as above, and divide by 1728.

Thus:—50 ft. long—girths 31.5 and 62.9 inches.

$$50\times\frac{31.\ +62.9\div 2^2}{16}\div 144=\frac{111392}{16}\div 144=48.347\text{ feet.}$$

The mean girth of Round Timber may be obtained by taking the circumference at both ends and in the centre, adding them together, and dividing by 3.

The girth of Spars should be arrived at by taking their diameter at one-third of their length from the but or large end.

SQUARE TIMBER.

1st. When all the dimensions are in feet, multiply the product of the breadth by the depth, by the length, and the product will give the volume in cubic feet.

2nd. When one of the dimensions is in inches, and the other dimensions are in feet, multiply as above and divide by 12.

3rd. When two of the dimensions are in inches, and the other dimension in feet, multiply as above and divide by 144.

Thus:—20 ft. long and 15 in. square:—15 × 15 × 20 = 4500, and 4500 ÷ 144 = 31.25 cubic feet.

White Pine	48 lbs. per cubic foot.
Hemlock, Spruce, Red Pine	56 " " "
Ash, Elm, Maple, Cherry, Birch, Beech	60 " " "
Oak, Hickory	65 " " "

7. All stock found pasturing, except where authorized, may be impounded and held till a proper guarantee be given that the offence will not be repeated and a fine paid sufficient to cover the expense of said impounding, feeding them while so impounded, and advertising ; failure to give the necessary guarantees and to pay such fine within thirty days shall render the stock liable to be sold by the Park Superintendent, the balance, if any, after paying the fine, cost of maintenance, advertising and sale, shall be paid by the Superintendent to the owner of the stock. The Superintendent of the Park may authorize any person to act as poundkeeper, the rates of remuneration to be settled by the Minister of the Interior.

ing to the Park, and may issue leases for such lots for any term, not exceeding twenty-one years, at rentals to be from time to time fixed by him; also to set apart such portions of the Park as he may designate for the sites of market-places, jails, court-houses, places of public worship, burying grounds, benevolent institutions and squares and for other similar public purposes.

NOTICE TO MARINERS.

No. 52 of 1889.

I.—COLD SPRING HEAD LIGHT.

A lighthouse erected by the Government of Canada on Cold Spring Head, on the southern shore of Bay Verte, in the County of Cumberland, Nova Scotia, will be put in operation on the opening of navigation next spring.

Lat. N. 45° 58’ 5”
Long. W. 63° 52’ 0”

The light is fixed white, elevated 60 feet above high water mark, and should be visible 13 miles from all points seaward. The illuminating apparatus is dioptric of small size.

The building is a square tower 36 feet high from base to vane on lantern, painted white, with the iron lantern surmounting it painted red.

The tower stands about 100 feet back from the shore on the north side of the Head, and the light is intended as a general guide up Bay Verte.

This notice affects Admiralty Charts Nos. 1,747 and 2,666, and the substance of it should be entered in the Canadian List of Lights under the No. 332 b.

II.—CHANGE IN LITTLE HOPE LIGHT COMPLETED.

The change in the character of the light on Little Hope Island, in Queen's County, on the southern or Atlantic coast of the Province of Nova Scotia, which was advertised as being in contemplation by Notice to Mariners No. 32 of 1889, was duly carried into effect on the 1st November last.

The light is now a group-flashing bright light, showing three flashes with intervals of ten seconds between their points of greatest brilliancy, followed by an interval of thirty seconds, during the greater part of which interval the light will be totally eclipsed, the light thus completing a revolution in fifty seconds.

This notice affects Admiralty Charts Nos. 341, 730 and 2,670, and Canadian List of Lights No. 415.

DEMANDES AU PARLEMENT.

Règles relatives aux avis de bills privés.

Dans le cas de toute demande de bill privé, proprement du ressort législatif du Parlement du Canada, suivant les dispositions de l'Acte de l'Amérique Britannique du Nord, 1867, et ayant pour objet, soit la construction d'un pont, d'un chemin de fer, d'un chemin à barrières ou d'une ligne télégraphique ; soit la construction ou l'amélioration d'un port, d'un canal, d'une écluse, d'une digue ou d'une glissoire ou autre ouvrage semblable ; soit la concession d'un droit de passage d'eau, l'incorporation de professions ou métiers, ou d'une compagnie de banque ou autre compagnie par actions, soit la concession à une ou plusieurs personnes de certains droits ou privilèges exclusifs ou particuliers, soit le pouvoir de faire quelque chose qui, dans ses effets, pourrait toucher aux droits ou à la propriété d'autrui, ou concerner une classe particulière de la société ; ou ayant pour objet quelque amendement de même nature à un acte antérieur,—un avis, énonçant d'une manière claire et intelligible la nature et l'objet de la demande, et signé (excepté s'il s'agit de corporations déjà existantes) par les pétitionnaires ou de leur part, est nécessaire et doit être publié comme il suit :

Dans les provinces de Québec et du Manitoba.

Un avis doit être inséré dans la Gazette du Canada en anglais et en français, ainsi que dans un journal anglais et un journal français du district intéressé, ou en anglais et en français dans le même journal, s'il ne s'en publie qu'un seul dans ce district ; ou s'il n'y paraît pas de journal, alors la publication de l'avis en anglais et en français doit se faire dans un journal du district le plus voisin où il s'en publie.

Dans les autres provinces ou territoires.

Un avis doit être inséré dans la Gazette du Canada, et et dans un journal du comté, du district ou des comtés-unis intéressés, ou s'il n'y paraît pas de journal alors la publication doit se faire dans un journal du comté ou district le plus voisin où il s'en publie.

La publication de ces avis durera, dans chaque cas, la période de deux mois pendant l'intervalle de temps qui s'écoulera entre la clôture de la session précédente et la prise en considération de la pétition. Un exemplaire des numéros des journaux, reproduisant la première et la dernière insertion de l'avis, devra être transmis au greffier de chaque Chambre.

Si la pétition demande l'autorisation de présenter un bill privé ayant pour objet la construction d'un pont de péage, le pétitionnaire ou les pétitionnaires devront, en même temps qu'ils donneront l'avis prescrit par la règle précédente, donner aussi, de la même manière, avis des péages qu'ils entendent exiger, de l'étendue du privilège, de la hauteur des arches, de l'espace à laisser libre entre les culées ou les piliers pour le passage des radeaux et des navires ; et mentionner de plus s'ils se proposent de construire un pont mobile, et quelles en seront les dimensions.

Toute personne désirant obtenir un bill privé devra, dans les huit jours qui précéderont l'ouverture du parlement, déposer au bureau du greffier de la Chambre dans laquelle le bill doit prendre naissance, une copie de ce bill en langue anglaise ou en langue française, avec une somme suffisante pour en payer la traduction et l'impression. Il en sera imprimé 600 exemplaires en anglais et 200 en français ; la traduction devra être faite par les officiers de la Chambre, et l'impression par l'entrepreneur des impressions. Le pétitionnaire aura aussi à payer au greffier du Sénat, ou au comptable de la Chambre des Communes (selon le cas) une somme de $200, plus le coût de l'impression de l'acte dans les Statuts, et remettra le reçu de ce paiement au greffier du comité auquel ce bill aura été renvoyé—le dit paiement sera effectué immédiatement après la seconde lecture avant la prise en considération du bill par le comité.

L'honoraire payable sur tout bill privé, ne sera payé que dans la Chambre où il a pris naissance.

Aucune pétition pour l'obtention d'un bill privé ne sera reçue par l'une ou par l'autre Chambre après les dix premiers jours de la session.

Dans les provinces de Québec et de Manitoba, les insertions seront faites dans un journal anglais et un journal français, s'il en existe des deux langues dans le district ; autrement, elles se feront en anglais et en français au même journal.

Il doit être signifié, à la diligence de l'époux pétitionnaire, un mois au moins avant la présentation de la pétition, une copie de cet avis à l'autre époux en personne, si cela est possible.

Sec. 22. (a). Applications for permits to cut hay may be received after the 1st of January, and permits may be issued on and after the 1st day of April in each year. If before the 1st day of April, more than one permit is applied for covering any section or sections of land or any portion of any section, the Agent, if he can not arrange a division of the land to suit the several applicants, may post a notice in his office calling for tenders for the purchase of the hay upon such lands, and shall issue a permit to the person who may offer the highest cash bonus over and above the regular rates.

(b.) No hay shall be cut on Dominion lands prior to a date to be fixed each year by the Minister of the Interior, which date may vary according to whether the season be early or late.

Sec. 23. The applicant will require to pay an office fee of 50 cents before he can obtain a permit.

Sec. 24. The rates chargeable for permits shall be, to actual settlers who require the hay for their own use, 10 cents per acre or 10 cents per ton, and to all other persons the rate shall be $1.00 per acre or $1.00 per ton, to be paid in full at the time or application.

Sec. 30. In such cases it shall be incumbent on the party to prove his right or authority to cut and take the hay or grass in question, and the averment of the person seizing or prosecuting that he is duly authorised so to do (or that he is duly empowered under the authority of the Dominion Lands Act) shall be sufficient proof thereof, unless the defendant proves the contrary.

Sec. 31. Whenever any Dominion Lands Agent, Crown Timber Agent or other officer receives satisfactory information, supported by affidavit, made before any Justice of the Peace or before any other competent officer or person, that any grass or hay has been cut without authority on Dominion Lands, or if such Dominion Lands Agent, Crown Timber Agent or officer from other sources of information or his own knowledge, is aware that any hay or grass has been cut without authority, on any such lands, he may seize or cause to be seized in Her Majesty's name, the hay or grass so reported or known to be cut, and place the same under proper custody, until the matter is decided by competent authority.

PRESENT:

HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR GENERAL IN COUNCIL.

HIS Excellency, in virtue of the powers vested in him by chapters 54 and 56 of the Revised Statutes, intituled respectively "An Act respecting Public Lands" and "An Act respecting certain Public Lands in British Columbia," and by and with the advice of the Queen's Privy Council for Canada, is pleased to make the following regulations governing the granting of yearly licenses and permits to cut timber on Dominion Lands in Manitoba, the North-West Territories and within twenty miles on either side of the Canadian Pacific Railway, in the Province of British Columbia.

JOHN J. McGEE,
Clerk, Privy Council.

REGULATIONS AFFECTING TIMBER ON DOMINION LANDS.

TIMBER LICENSES.

Section 1. (a.) All licences to cut timber shall be disposed of by public competition.

(b). Parties tendering will be required to state the sum or bonus per square mile which they will pay in addition to the ground rent and royalty; and each tender must be forwarded in a sealed envelope and be accompanied by an accepted cheque payable to the order of the Deputy Minister of the Interior for the amount of such bonus. No tender by telegraph will be accepted. The limit will be awarded to the party offering the highest bonus therefor.

(c.) The foregoing clauses of this Section shall not apply to any person who on or prior to the 1st day of April, 1889, has applied for, staked out the land sought for, and published notice of application for license to cut timber west of Eagle Pass in the Railway Belt in the Province of British Columbia.

(d.) The length of any berth covered by a license shall in no case exceed three times the breadth thereof.

Sec. 2. (a.) The license shall pay a ground rent of five dollars per square mile, except for lands situated west of Eagle Pass, in the Province of British Columbia, in which case the ground rent shall be five cents an acre.

(b.) Within a month after the date of the Order in Council granting a timber berth, the party in whose favor it is passed shall pay the rent for the year in advance, and if not then paid the said rent shall bear interest at the rate of six per cent. per annum from that date until the same is paid.

(c.) The licensee shall pay a royalty of five per cent. on the amount of the sales of all products of the berth

Saw logs and other timber for manufacture taken from the berth must be manufactured at the saw mill of the licensee to be operated in connection with the berth as prescribed in clause (f) of this section.

(d.) On the first day of May in each year all licensees of timber berths shall furnish through themselves, their scalers and foremen to the Crown Timber Agent, having jurisdiction in the matter, or such officer as the Minister of the Interior may appoint for that purpose, a statement in writing in detail, upon oath, setting forth the number of pieces of timber, saw logs and other lumber, and the correct content in board measure of the same as scaled by Scribner's log rule, cut under his or their license during the twelve months immediately prior to making said statement. Should it so result from any cause whatsoever that the amount of Lumber accounted for in the return of sales of the products of the berth, should fall short of the amount shown to have been cut or taken from the timber berth, the holder of such license shall account to the Minister of the Interior for such discrepancy and pay for said deficiency a royalty of five per cent. upon the value thereof, the value being calculated upon the average price of his or their sales of Lumber for the six months prior to making the return as aforesaid.

(e.) It is also required that all licensees through themselves, their scalers and foremen, shall furnish satisfactory proof upon oath on the said first day of May of each year as to the exact locality, by a ground sketch, where all timber, saw logs or other lumber cut by themselves and others, to their knowledge, upon the timber berth held or occupied by him or them respectively have been cut.

(f.) The licensee shall have in operation within a year from a date to be fixed in the license, and keep in operation for at least six months of each year of his holding, a saw mill in connection with his berth capable of cutting in twenty-four hours a thousand feet board measure for every two and a half square miles of the area licensed, or shall establish such other manufactory of wood goods as the Minister accepts as equivalent thereto.

(g.) Any right to a timber berth, acquired under an Order in Council, can not be assigned or transferred without the consent of the Minister of the Interior.

Sec. 3. The licensee of a timber berth shall not be held to have any claim whatever to a renewal of his license, unless such renewal is provided for in the Order in Council, under which it was obtained, but when a licensee has fully complied with all the conditions herein set forth, and where no portion of the timber berth is required for settlement or other public purpose, of which the Minister of the Interior is to be the judge, the license may be renewed for another year subject to such revision of the annual rental and royalty to be paid therefor as may be fixed by the Governor in Council.

Sec. 4. (a.) In unsurveyed territory the party to whom a license shall be promised shall, before the issue of said license and before the said party shall cut any timber, cause to be made at his own expense under the instruction of the Surveyor General, a survey of his timber berth by a duly qualified Dominion Land Surveyor, and the plan and field notes of such survey shall be deposited on record in the Department of the Interior, but he shall be held liable fo the dues upon timber that may be cut by any one on the berth subsequent to ten days from the date upon which he is notified that the berth has been awarded to him. The dues upon such timber to be fixed by the Minister of the Interior.

Sec. 5. If in consequence of any incorrectness in survey or other error or cause whatsoever, a timber berth is found to comprise lands included in another berth awarded at a prior date, or any lands sold, granted, leased or lawfully set apart for any other purpose under these regulations or the Dominion Lands Act, the later berth shall be void in so far as it interferes with any previous sale, grant or setting apart.

Sec. 6. All ground rents, royalties or other dues on timber cut within the boundaries of any timber berth, which are not paid at the time when they become due, shall bear interest at the rate of six per cent. per annum until paid, and shall be a lien on any timber cut within such limits; and in case of such non-payment—whether, in consequence thereof the license of the berth has or has not been cancelled—the Crown Timber Agent or other person authorised thereto may, with the sanction of the Minister, seize so much of the timber cut on such berth as will, in his opinion, be sufficient to secure the payment of such rent or royalty and all interest and expenses of seizure and sale, and may detain the same as security for the payment thereof; and if payment is not made within three months after such seizure, he may with the sanction of the Minister, sell such timber by public auction, and after deducting the sum due to the Crown, the interest thereon and expenses aforesaid, he shall pay over the balance, if any, to the licensee, if the timber was in his possession at the time of seizure, or if it was not, to the person who had possession thereof at the time.

Sec. 7. All timber cut under license shall be liable for the payment of the Crown dues thereon, whenever and wherever the said timber, or any part of it, is found, whether it is or is not converted into deals, boards or any other manufacture of wood; and all officers or agents employed in the collection of such dues may follow all such timber and may seize and detain the same wherever it is found, until the dues thereon are paid or secured, as provided in the next preceding clause.

Sec. 8. If the payment of the Crown dues on any timber has been evaded by any licensee or other person, by the removal of such timber or products out of Canada, or otherwise, the amount of dues so evaded and any expenses incurred by the Crown in enforcing payment of the said dues under the Dominion Lands Act, may be added to the dues remaining to be collected on any other timber cut on any timber berth by the licensee or by his authority, and may be levied and collected or secured on such timber, together with such last mentioned dues, in the manner hereinbefore provided; or the amount due to the Crown, of which payment has been evaded, may be recovered by action or suit in the name of the Minister or his agent, in any court of competent jurisdiction.

Sec. 9. The Minister may take or authorise the taking of bonds or promissory notes for any money due to the Crown, as aforesaid, or in his discretion, for double the amount of any dues, penalties and costs incurred or to be incurred, and may, if it is under seizure, then release any timber upon which the same would be leviable; but the taking of such bonds or notes shall not affect the right of the Crown to enforce payment of such money, and the debt shall be a lien on any timber cut on the same or on any other berth, by the licensee or by his authority, if the sums for which such bonds or notes are given are not paid when due.

FORM OF TIMBER LICENSE.

Sec. 10. The following is the form of license to be used in respect of timber lands:

Know All Men by these Presents, that by virtue of the authority vested in me by the Dominion Lands Act, and by an order of His Excellency the Governor General in Council of the day of 18 , I, the Minister of the Interior of Canada, do hereby, in consideration of the sum of , ground rent now paid to me for the use of Her Majesty, and in consideration of the royalty hereinafter mentioned, give unto hereinafter called the licensee . executors and administrators, full right, power and license, subject to the conditions and restrictions hereinafter mentioned and contained, to cut timber on the following tract of land (hereinafter called the "berth" or "berths"), that is to say:—

2. That this license shall not be allowed to interfere with the settlement of any lands within the " berths " which may be desirable for settlement, the Minister of the Interior to be the judge of the fact, and the only recourse of the licensee against the ruling of the Minister in favor of permitting settlement within such " berths " to be that (the licensee) may within sixty days after receiving notice to the above effect from the Local Agent of Dominion Lands, remove all timber on such lands which may be over ten inches in diameter.

Further that this license shall not prevent individual Homestead Settlers holding free permits heretofore or hereafter given under the Order in Council, dated the day of , 18 , or under any subsequent Order in Council passed in such behalf, from cutting and removing from the land covered by this license such quantity of building timber, fence rails, or firewood, as such permit may set forth ; and the Government may, notwithstanding this license gave such permits to individual Homestead Settlers from time to time under said Order in Council or any subsequent Order in Council.

3. That the licensee shall take from every tree cut down all the timber fit for use, and manufacture the same into sawn lumber or some other saleable product.

4. That the licensee shall prevent all unnecessary destruction of growing timber on the part of men, and exercise strict and constant supervision to prevent the origin or spread of fires.

5. That the licensee shall make returns to the Government monthly, or at such other periods as may be required by the Minister of the Interior, or by regulations under the said Act, sworn to by or by agent or employé, cognizant of the facts, declaring the quantities sold or disposed of, of all sawn lumber, timber, railway car stuff, ship timbers and knees, shingles, laths, cordwood, or bark, or any other product of timber from the berth, in whatever form the same may be sold or otherwise disposed of by during such month or other period, and the price or value thereof.

9. This license shall be subject to forfeiture for infraction of any one of the conditions to which it is subject, or for any fraudulent return ; and in such case the Minister of the Interior shall have the right without any suit or other proceeding at law or in equity, or compensation to the licensee, to cancel the same, and to make a new license or disposition of the said " berth " to any other party, at any time during the term hereby granted. Provided, that whenever in the above conditions the word " licensee " occurs, it is to be taken to extend to and include the executors, administrators and assigns of the " licensee " :

Provided further, that the Minister of the Interior shall be the sole judge of the fact in regard to infraction or alleged infraction, of any one of the conditions of this license, and that his decision in relation thereto shall be binding and conclusive.

10. If upon the final location of the Canadian Pacific Railway the whole or part of the lands described in this license, should be found to fall within twenty-four miles of the said line on either side thereof, or if the whole or part of the said lands form part of any tract which may be granted to the said Company as a portion of the land subsidy to which they are entitled under their charter, the sections in the whole or part of such lands, as the case may be, bearing uneven numbers will thereby, after such final location, and as soon as due notice thereof in writing has been served upon the licensee or legal representatives, be withdrawn from the operation of this license, but the licensee or legal representatives shall be at liberty to remove all timber then cut and all other property belonging to then on the lands thereby withdrawn from the operation of this license.

11. This license can not be assigned or transferred without the consent of the Minister of the Interior.

Sec. 22. Should the house timber be sawn at a mill, payment for sawing must not be made by way of toll as the full quantity of lumber cut from the logs must be used on the permit-holder's homestead.

Sec. 23. In order that mill owners may be able to give satisfactory evidence that saw logs or lumber found in their possession have been lawfully cut, they should require from settlers bringing timber to be sawn, proof that the same has not been cut on Dominion lands, or that it has been cut under a permit, which the settler should produce in order that its number, its date, and the name of the permittee may be noted by the mill owner. The latter should also record the quantity of such timber sawn by him, so that he may be in a position to duly protect himself should an account or return thereof be demanded by agents of the Department.

Sec. 24. The applicant will require to pay an office fee of twenty-five cents before he can obtain a permit, but no dues will be charged for the timber or wood cut under and in accordance therewith.

Sec. 25. Homesteaders whose farms may have thereon a supply of timber, or who are in possession of wood lots or other timbered lands, will not be granted a free permit.

(a.) And provided also, that, whenever so ordered by the Minister, such unoccupied lands as may be deemed by him expedient, from time to time, may be withdrawn from ordinary sale and settlement, and sold at public auction or tender to the highest bidder—an upset price being fixed for the same :

(b.) Provided further, that any legal sub-division or other portion of Dominion lands which may be deemed by the Minister of the Interior of special value, may be reserved from ordinary sale and be disposed of in such manner and on such terms and conditions as may be fixed by the Governor in Council on the report of the Minister of the Interior.

Town Plots, &c.

Sec. 11. The Minister of the Interior shall have power to withdraw from sale or homestead entry any tract or tracts of land, and to lay the same out into town or village lots, the lots so laid out to be sold, either by private sale and for such price as he may see fit, or at a public auction or tender, an upset price being fixed for the same :

The Governor in Council may set apart and appropriate such Dominion lands as he may deem expedient for the sites of market places, gaols, court houses, places of public worship, burying grounds, schools, benevolent institutions, squares, and for other like public purpose, and at any time before the issue of letters patent therefor may alter or revoke, such appropriation, as he deems expedient ; and he may make free grants for the purposes aforesaid of the lands so appropriated—the trusts and uses to which they are to be subject being expressed in the letters patent.

(a.) The entry for a homestead shall entitle the recipient to take, occupy and cultivate the land entered for and hold possession of the same to the exclusion of any other person or persons whomsoever, and to bring and maintain actions for trespass committed on the said land, the same as if a patent therefor had issued in his favor ; the title to the land shall remain in the Crown until the issue of the patent therefor, and the said land shall not be liable to be taken in execution before the issue of patent :

(b.) The privilege of homestead entry shall only apply to surveyed agricultural lands ; no person shall be entitled to such entry for land valuable for its timber, or for hay land, or for land on which there is a stone or marble quarry, or coal or other mineral having commercial value, or whereon there is any water power which may serve to drive machinery, or for land which by reason of its position, such as being the shore of an important harbor, bridge site or canal site, or being either an actual or prospective railway terminus or station, it will be in the public interest to withhold from such entry.

Homestead Entries and Sales affecting Timbered Lands.

Sec. 14. All merchantable timber growing or being upon any land entered or sold within the limits of Dominion lands in British Columbia, and all gold, silver, copper, lead, iron, petroleum, coal or other mines or minerals shall be considered as reserved from the said land, and shall be the property of Her Majesty, except that the homesteader or purchaser, or those claiming under him, may cut aud use such merchantable timber as may be necessary for the purpose of building, fencing or road-making, on the land so entered or sold, and may also, under the authority of the Crown timber agent, cut and dispose of all timber required to be removed in the actual clearing of the said land for cultivation ; but no merchantable timber (except for the necessary building, fencing or road-making as aforesaid) shall be cut beyond the limit of such actual clearing ; and all merchantable timber cut in the process of clearing, and disposed of, shall be subject to the payment of the same dues as at the time payable by the holders of licenses to cut timber.

Sec. 15. The patents for all lands, hereafter entered or sold as aforesaid, shall contain a reservation of all merchantable timber growing or being on the said lands, which merchantable timber shall continue to be the proprety of Her Majesty ; and any person or persons now or hereafter holding a license to cut timber on such land, may, at all times during the continuance of such license, enter upon the uncleared portion of such lands, and cut and remove such timber, and make all necessary roads or water-ways for that purpose, and for the purpose of hauling in supplies, doing no unnecessary damage thereby ; but the patentees or those claiming under them may cut and use such timber as may be necessary for the purpose of building, fencing or road-making on the lands so patented, and may also, under the authority of the Crown Timber agent, cut and dispose of such timber required to be removed in actually clearing the said land for cultivation, but no merchantable timber (except for the necessary building, fencing or road-making as aforesaid) shall be cut beyond the limit of súch actual clearing ; and all merchantable timber so cut and disposed of shall be subject to the payment of the same dues as are at the time payable by the holders of licenses to cut timber.

Sec. 17. All merchantable timber growing or being upon any land hereafter entered as a homestead or sold under these regulations, shall be subject to any timber license in force at the time of such entry or sale, and may, at any time during the currency of any such license or of any license which may be subsequently issued, be cut and removed under the authority thereof.

Sec. 18. Whenever the survey of any township has been finally confirmed and such township opened for homestead entry, any person who has bona fide settled and made improvements before such confirmed survey on land in such township, shall have a prior right to obtain homestead entry for the land so settled on, provided such right be exercised within three months after the land is opened for settlement ; and provided that such land has not been reserved or the right to homestead entry is not excepted under the provisions of these regulations ; no homestead entry shall be granted to any other person in respect of such land until three months after notice in writing shall have been given by the local agent to such bona fide settler that such land is open for settlement.

Sec. 19. Every person applying for homestead entry shall appear and make affidavit before the local agent or, in his absence, the senior clerk performing his duties according to the Form B, C or D, in the Schedule to this Order, as the circumstances require ; and upon filing such affidavit with the said local agent or clerk, and on payment to him of an office fee of ten dollars, such person shall receive a receipt from the said local agent or senior clerk according to the Form J in the Schedule to this order ; and such receipt shall be a certificate of entry, and shall be authority to the person obtaining it to take possession of the land described in it :

(d.) A person applying for such entry for contiguous land must, when making the affidavit prescribed for homestead entry, also describe therein the tract he owns and lives upon ; and his residence upon and cultivation of the whole shall thereafter be of the kind and for the term required by the provisions of these regulations, in the case of ordinary homestead entry, before he shall be entitled to patent for the part so entered for : Provided, that such residence and cultivation may be upon either the land originally occupied by him or that for which homestead entry has been obtained, or both.

Sec. 20. In case a dispute arises between persons claiming the right to homestead entry for the same land, the local agent or senior clerk, or any person thereto authorised by the Minister of the Interior, shall make investigation and obtain evidence respecting the facts, and his reports thereon, together with the evidence taken, shall be referred to the Minister of the Interior for decision, or to the Dominion Lands Board, Commissioner of Dominion Lands, or such person as may be appointed by the Governor in Council to consider and decide in cases of such disputes :

(a.) Provided that when two or more persons have settled upon and seek to obtain homestead entry for the same land, the one who settled first thereon and has continued to reside upon and cultivate the land for which homestead entry is sought shall be entitled to such entry if the land be of the class open to homestead entry, and if it be not in the opinion of the Minister of the Interior otherwise inexpedient, in the public interest, to entertain any application therefor :

(b.) Provided further, that where contending parties have valuable improvements on the lands in dispute, the Minister of the Interior, if the application to acquire the land by homestead entry is entertained by him, may order a division thereof in such a manner as shall preserve to each of them, as far as practicable, his improvements ; and the Minister may, at his discretion, direct that what the land so allotted to each of them may be deficient of a quarter-section shall be made up from unoccupied land adjoining, if there be any such of the class open to homestead entry.

Sec. 21. Any person who has obtained a homestead entry shall be allowed a period of six months from its date within which to perfect the entry, by taking in his own person possession of the land and beginning continuous residence thereon and cultivation thereof ; and if the entry be not perfected within that period it shall be void, and the land shall be open to entry by another person, or to other disposition under these regulations by the Minister of the Interior :

Provided further, that in the case of immigrants from elsewhere than the North American Continent, the Governor in Council may extend the time for the perfecting of entry to twelve months from the date thereof.

Sec. 22. (a.) At the expiration of three years from the date of his perfecting his homestead entry, the settler, or in case of his death, his legal representatives, upon proving to the satisfaction of the local agent that he, or they, or some of them, have resided upon and cultivated the land during the said term of three years, shall be entitled to a patent for the land, provided such proof is accepted by the Commissioner of Dominion Lands, or in his absence by a member of the Land Board, and on payment of one dollar per acre for the land ; Provided also, that the patent therefor shall not issue to any person not then a subject of Her Majesty by birth or naturalization :

(b.) Provided, that in case of a settler who may have obtained homestead entry for land occupied by him previous to survey thereof, in manner hereinbefore mentioned, residence upon and cultivation of the land for three years next preceding the application for patent shall, for the purpose of the issue of patent, be held to be equivalent to that prescribed in the foregoing subclause of this section, if such residence and cultivation be otherwise in conformity with the provisions of these regulations.

Sec. 23. Any person proving that he has resided on the land for which he has homestead entry for twelve months from the date of his perfecting his entry therefor, and that he has brought under cultivation at least thirty acres thereof, may, before the expiration of the three years defined in sub-section (b.) of Section 22, obtain a patent by paying two dollars and fifty cents per acre for the land.

Sec. 24. Any person claiming a patent under a homestead entry shall also be entitled thereto upon making payment therefor at the rate of one dollar per acre and proving to the satisfaction of the Commissioner of Dominion Lands or the Dominion Lands Board,—

(b.) That within the first year after the date of his homestead entry he broke and prepared for crop not less than five acres of his homestead quarter section ; or if the land affected by his homestead entry be timber land, then in lieu of breaking and preparing for crop five acres he may substitute therefor the clearing and fencing of three acres ;

(c.) That within the second year he cropped the said five acres, and broke and prepared for crop not less than ten acres in addition, making not less than fifteen acres in all ; or if the land affected by his homestead entry be timber land, in lieu of cropping five acres and breaking and preparing for crop ten acres additional, he may substitute therefor cropping the three acres broken the previous year and clearing and fencing five acres in addition, making in all eight acres cleared and fenced, three of which shall also be cropped :

(d.) That he has erected a habitable house upon his homestead before the expiration of the second year after his homestead entry, and has bona fide resided therein and has cultivated the land for three years next prior to the date of his application for his patent :

(f.) Proof of the residence and improvements required by this Section shall be made by the claimant by affidavit, and shall be corroborated by the evidence on oath of two disinterested witnesses, resident in the vicinity of the land affected by their evidence, and accepted as sufficient by the Commissioner of Dominion Lands or in his absence by a member of the Land Board ; such affidavit shall be sworn and such testimony given before the local agent or, in his absence, the senior clerk performing his duties, or some other person named for that purpose by the Minister of the Interior.

Sec. 25. Every person who has obtained a homestead entry, and who proposes to apply for a patent for such homestead, shall give six months' notice in writing to the agent of Dominion lands of his intention to make such application and shall produce evidence to the officer who is authorised to receive the application that such notice has been duly given.

Sec. 26. (a.) AT THE GOVERNMENT HOUSE AT OTTAWA.

PRESENT :

HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR GENERAL. IN COUNCIL.

HIS Excellency, in virtue of the powers vested in him by the Act 52 Victoria, chapter 23, intituled "An Act further to amend 'The Steamboat Inspection Act,' chapter seventy-eight of the Revised Statutes," and by and with the advice of the Queen's Privy Council for Canada, is pleased to make the following Rules and Regulations respecting the testing of boilers of Steamboats and matters connected with the construction and working of such boilers.

JOHN J. McGEE,
Clerk, Privy Council.

INSPECTION OF BOILERS OF STEAMBOATS.

Mode of Inspection.

Section 1. Any Inspector may, whenever he deems it necessary so to do, and one inspector shall, at least once in every year, subject the boiler of every steamboat to a test by hydrostatic pressure, in the ratio of one hundred and fifty pounds to one hundred pounds allowable as a working pressure, using the water in such test at a temperature not exceeding sixty degrees Fahrenheit, and shall satisfy himself by examination and experimental trials that such boiler is well made of good and suitable materials. For the purposes of such test the owner of the steamboat shall provide the necessary hand-pump, and apparatus, the same to be worked by the crew of the vessel ; and no Inspector of boilers and machinery shall make or deliver to the owner or master of any steamboat any certificate, unless he has first subjected the boiler or boilers of such steamboat to such test by hydrostatic pressure and examination as herein prescribed.

Sec. 2. Before a boiler is subjected to a test by hydrostatic pressure, it shall be opened up for inspection, the man-hole and mud-plate doors removed, and the outside and inside of the boiler cleaned, the furnace grates removed and the furnace swept out clean, so that satisfactory and efficient inspection may be made ; when bulkheads are so placed as to prevent a close examination of the plate of the boiler, they shall be removed ; and the owner or master of the steamboat shall see that the foregoing requirements are complied with before applying for inspection.

Sec. 3. In any case in which the test is not satisfactory, the defects shall be made good and the boiler re-tested satisfactorily, before a certificate is granted.

Sec. 4. Inspectors are to fix the working pressure of boilers by a series of calculations of the strength of the various parts, and according to the workmanship and material of which they are composed.

Sec. 5. Before testing a boiler the Inspectors should examine it, take the necessary measurements and calculate what the working pressure should be, in accordance with these regulations ; these instructions apply to super-heaters, steam-chests, and water-jackets, as well as boilers.

Sec. 6. If a boiler is too hot for an Inspector to examine it efficiently with safety and convenience, he should decline to do so, and absolutely refuse to grant a certificate until he can make a satisfactory examination.

Sec. 7. In order to satisfy himself as to strength and internal condition of a boiler, the Inspector may, should he deem it necessary, order holes to be cut in it, and may also demand that such information by drawings and specifications of the several parts be furnished him of the construction, as will enable him to determine, by calculation and examination, their strength.

Sec. 8. During the construction of every boiler made in Canada, the maker of such boiler shall notify the Inspector of the District in which it is being made, that it is open to his inspection, and shall, at all times during such construction allow the Inspector free access to it.

Sec. 9. To prevent questions arising after a boiler is commenced, particulars of its construction by drawing and specification should be furnished the Inspector by the maker or contractor, for his approval; the Inspector having received such plans or tracings and approved of them, will be careful to see that they are followed in construction. This regulation will also apply to boilers undergoing alterations.

Sec. 10. No boiler shall be made of boiler plate, whether iron or steel, which has not been stamped with the name or mark of the maker thereof; and no certificate shall be granted with respect to any boiler made wholly or in part of plate not so marked; and before a certificate shall be granted with respect to any boiler, a declaration on oath by the maker of the boiler, stating the name of the maker of the plates, their quality and the quality of all materials used in the construction of the boiler, shall be furnished the Inspector; such oath may be taken before any Justice of the Peace in Canada, or before a Notary Public and certified under his official seal, if taken out of Canada: Provided always, that in any case where such declaration on oath by the maker of the boiler cannot be obtained owing to the death of the maker, or from other causes deemed sufficient by the Inspector, the affidavit of two practical boiler makers who have examined the boiler and reported upon the quality of the materials in it and its workmanship and strength, shall, if satisfactory to the Inspector, be deemed sufficient in lieu of such declaration by the maker of the boiler.

Sec. 11. No boiler or pipe in connection therewith shall be approved which is made in whole or in part of bad material or workmanship, or is unsafe in its form, or from age, use or any other cause.

Sec. 12. Inspectors should see all new boilers, and boilers that have been taken out of a ship for thorough repair, tested by hydraulic pressure up to at least one and one half the working pressure that will be allowed, previous to the boiler being placed in the vessel, to test the workmanship, etc., but the working pressure is to be determined by the stay power, the thickness of the plate, strength of riveting, &c., and not by the hydraulic test.

Sec. 13. The hydraulic test should in no case exceed the ratio of one and one half the working pressure allowed, and it is never to be applied until the boiler has been opened up for examination and until the strength of all the parts have been calculated from the necessary measurements taken from the boiler itself.

Sec. 14. When a boiler is partially inspected by one Inspector, and the inspection is completed and the certificate granted by another Inspector, if the Inspector who witnesses the test of the boiler by the hydraulic pressure has an opportunity of examining the boiler inside and outside after the test, such Inspector shall determine the pressure to be allowed on the boiler, taking care to inform the owners, makers or agents, and the Inspector, who is ultimately to grant the certificate, what pressure should in his opinion be allowed.

Sec. 15. Cast iron must not be used for stays in boilers; Inspectors should also discourage the use of cast iron for chocks and saddles for boilers; particular attention should be paid to chocking and fastening boilers to the vessels to guard against shifting or breaking loose.

Sec. 16. A pressure once allowed on a boiler is not, under any circumstances whatever, to be increased, unless the Inspector has previously written for and obtained the sanction of the Chairman of the "Board of Steamboat Inspection." In cases where an Inspector is of opinion that an increased pressure may with safety be allowed, he should communicate with the Inspector who last inspected the boiler, and if, on learning the reason why the existing pressure was formerly allowed, the Inspector is still of opinion that it may be increased, he should communicate all the facts of the case to the Chairman; but, as above stated, the pressure should not, in any case, be increased until the question has been decided by the Chairman.

Sec. 17. In the event of any novelty in construction of a boiler, or of any departure from the practice of staying and strengthening as prescribed in these rules and regulations, the Inspector shall report full particulars to the Chairman before fixing the working pressure.

Sec. 18. An Inspector shall not declare a boiler safe unless he is fully informed as to its construction, material and workmanship. He should, therefore, be very careful how he ventures to give a certificate for a boiler that he is not called in to inspect until after it is completed and fixed in the ship.

Sec. 19. In the case of new boilers, the Inspector may allow a stress not exceeding 7,000 pounds per square inch of net section on solid iron screw stays supporting flat surfaces, but the stress should not exceed 6,000 pounds when the stays have been welded or worked in the fire.

Sec. 20. (a.) The pressure on plate forming flat surfaces is found by the following formula:—

T = Thickness of plate in inches.

C = Constant according to the following circumstances:—

C = 100 when the plates are not exposed to the impact of heat or flame, and the stays are fitted with nuts and washers, the latter being at last three times the diameter of the stay and two-thirds the thickness of the plate they cover.

C = 90 when the plates are not exposed to the impact of heat or flame, and the stays are fitted with nuts only.

C = 60 when the plates are exposed to the impact of heat or flame, and the steam in contact with the plates, and the stays fitted with nuts and washers, the latter being at least three times the diameter of the stay, and two-thirds the thickness of the plates they cover.

C = 54 when the plates are exposed to the impact of heat or flame, and steam in contact with the plates, and the stays fitted with nuts only.

(b.) If the diameter of riveted washers be at least two-thirds the pitch of the stays, and the thickness not less than the plates they cover, the constants may be increased to 150.

(c.) When doubling plates are fitted of the same thickness of the plates they cover, and not less in width than two-thirds the pitch of the stays, the constants may be increased to 160.

O = 80 when the plates are exposed to the impact of heat or flame, with water in contact with the plates, and the stays screwed into the plates and fitted with nuts.

C = 60 when the plates are exposed to the impact of heat or flame, with water in contact with the plates, and the stays screwed into the plates having the ends riveted over to form substantial heads.

C = 36 when the plates are exposed to the impact of heat or flame, and steam in contact with the plates, with the stays screwed into the plates, and having the ends riveted over to form substantial heads.

(f.) When the riveted ends of the screw stays are much worn, or when the nuts are burned, the constants should be reduced, but the Inspector must act according to the circumstances that present themselves at the time of the inspection, and it is expected that in cases where the riveted ends of screw stays in the combustion boxes and furnaces are found in this state it will be often necessary to reduce the constant from 60 to 36.

T = Thickness of tube plate in inches.

W = Extreme width of combustion box in inches from front of tube plate to back of fire box, or distance between combustion box tube plates when boiler is double ended and the box common to the furnaces at both ends.

Sec. 22. When stays prevent an Inspector from getting inside a boiler, he must order their removal, and he must see them properly replaced before granting a certificate.

Sec. 23. In the case of zig-zag riveting the strength through the plate diagonally between the rivets is equal to that horizontally between the rivets, when the diagonal pitch equals six tenths the horizontal pitch plus four-tenths the diameter of the rivet.

Sec. 24. When the outside of the bottom of a boiler can not be otherwise perfectly inspected, the boiler should be lifted once at least in every four years.

Construction of Boilers.

Sec. 25. (a.) When cylindrical boilers or the cylindrical parts of boilers composed of iron plates are made of the best material with all the rivet holes drilled in place and all the seams fitted with double butt straps, each of at least five-eighths the thickness of the plates they cover, and all the seams at least double riveted with rivets having an allowance of not more than 75 per cent. over the single shear, and provided that the boilers have been open to inspection, then 5 may be used as the factor of safety. The tensile strength of the material is to be taken as equal to 47,000 lbs. per square inch with the grain, and 40,000 lbs. across the grain. When the above conditions are not complied with, the addition. in the following scale, must be added to the factor, according to the circumstances of each case :—

A·15—To be added when all the holes are fair and good in the longitudinal seams, but drilled out of place after bending.

B·3—To be added when all the holes are fair and good in the longitudinal seams, but drilled out of place before bending.

C·3—To be added when all the holes are fair and good in the longitudinal seams, but punched after bending instead of drilled.

(b.) The strength of the joints is found by the following method :

Percentage of strength of plate at joint as compared with the solid plate.

(c.) Where marked * the allowance may be increased still further if the workmanship or material is very doubtful or unsatisfactory.

 The maximum pitch of the rivets should not exceed 8½ inches, and if in any case the Inspector finds the pitch in excess of this, he should report to the Chairman.

† When inspecting boilers that have not been open to inspection during construction the case should be submitted to the Chairman as to the factors to be used.

‡ P‡·1, Q‡·2, R‡·1, S‡·1, shall not apply to the end or circumferential seams, if such seams are sufficiently stayed by through bolts; nor to the seams between the square and round part of shell, in cylindrical boilers with square furnaces, when such seams are double riveted.

(d.) Then take iron as equal in tensile strength to 47,000 pounds per square inch and use the smallest of the two percentages as the strength of the joint, and adopt the factor of safety as found from the preceding scale :—

= Pressure to be allowed per square inch on the safety-valves.

(e.) Plates that are drilled in place must be taken apart and the burr taken off and the holes slightly countersunk from the outside.

(f.) Butt straps must be cut from plates and not from bars, and must be of as good quality as the shell plate, and for the longitudinal seams must be cut across the fibre.

(g.) The rivet holes may be punched or drilled when the plates are punched or drilled out of place, but when drilled in place, must be taken apart and the burr taken off and slightly countersunk from the outside.

(i.) The diameter of rivets must not be less than the thickness of the plate of which the shell is made, but it will be found when the plates are thin, or when lap joints or single butt straps are adopted, that the diameter of the rivets should be in excess of the thickness of the plate.

(k.) Dished ends that are not truly hemispherical must be stayed; if they are not theoretically equal in strength to the pressure needed they must be stayed as flat surfaces, but if they are theoretically equal in strength to the pressure needed the stays may have a strain of 10,000 lbs. per effective square inch of sectional area.

(l.) Inspectors will remember that the strength of a sphere to resist internal pressure is double that of a cylinder of the same diameter and thickness.

Sec. 26. (a.) The neutral parts of boiler shells under stream domes must be sufficiently stiffened and stayed.

(b.) The sides of boilers having square furnaces and half round tops must be stayed from side to side of the shell, over the furnace, one or more rows of these stays to be placed well above the centre of the cylindrical part.

(c.) Screw stays are not to be used when supporting flat surfaces at any angle but a right angle to the surface supported, their diameter to be measured inside the thread.

(e.) The inside diameter of the outside strake or course in the cylindrical shell of a boiler is to be taken as the measure of its diameter.

Sec. 27. (a.) In cylindrical super-heaters the strength of the joints and the factor of safety is found in a similar manner as for cylindrical boilers and steam receivers, but instead of using 47,000 pounds as the tensile strength of iron, 24,000 pounds is adopted, unless where the heat of flame impinges at or nearly at right angles to the plate then 18,000 pounds is substituted.

(b.) In all cases the internal steam pipes should be so fitted that the steam in flowing to them will pass over all the plates exposed to the impact of heat or flame.

(c.) Super-heaters or water jackets should, as regards inspection, be deemed to be the most important part of the boilers, and must be inspected inside and outside; those that can not be entered (on account of their size), must have a sufficient number of doors through which a thorough inspection of the whole of the interior can be made.

(a.) Special attention should be paid to the inspection of super-heaters, as with high pressure the plates may become dangerously weak and not give any sound to indicate their state when tested with the hammer; the plate should, therefore, be occasionally drilled. Drain pipes must be in all cases fitted to super-heaters in which a collection of water in the bottom is possible.

(c.) Super-heaters that can be shut off from the main boiler must be fitted with a Government lock-up safety valve of sufficient size, but the least size passed shall not be less than two inches diameter.

Find the area of a direct stay needed to support the surface, multiply this area by the length of the diagonal stay and divide the product by the length of a line drawn at right angles to the surface supported to the end of the diagonal stay, the quotient will be the area of the diagonal stay required.

Sec. 29. (a.) When the tops of combustion boxes or others parts of a boiler are supported by solid rectangular girders, the following formula, which is used by the Imperial Board of Trade, will be useful for finding the working pressure to be allowed on the girders, assuming that they are not subjected to a greater temperature than the ordinary heat of steam, and the ends fitted to the edges of the tube plate and the back plate of the combustion box:

P=Pitch of supporting bolts in inches.
D=Distance between the girders from centre to centre in inches.
d=Depth of girder in inches.
T=Thickness of girder in inches.
C=500 when the girder is fitted with one supporting bolts.
C=850 when the girder is fitted with four supporting bolt.

(b.) The working pressure for the supporting bolts. and for the plate between them, shall be determined by the rule for ordinary stays.

Sec. 30. The flat ends of all boilers, as far as the steam space extends, and the ends of super-heaters should be fitted with shield, or baffle plates, where exposed to the hot gases of the uptake, as all the plates subjected to the direct impact of heat or flame are liable to injury, unless covered with water.

Sec. 31. Donkey boilers that are in any way attached to, or connected with the main boilers, or with the machinery used for propelling the ship, must be inspected and fitted the same way as the main boilers, and must have a water and steam gauge, and all other fittings complete, and as regards safety-valves must comply with the same regulations as the main boilers, and no safety-valve shall be passed less than two inches in diameter.

Sec. 32. (a.) No boiler or steam chamber is to be so constructed, fitted or arranged as that the escape of steam from it through the safety-valve can be wholly or partially intercepted by the action of any other valve.

(b.) A stop valve must always be fitted between the boiler and the steam pipe, and (when two or more boilers are connected with a steam receiver or super-heater), between each boiler and super-heater or steam receiver. The object of this is obvious, viz., to avoid the failure of all the boilers through the failure of one. The necks of stop valves should be as short as practicable.

Sec. 33. (a.) Each boiler must be fitted with glass water gauge, at least two test cocks, and steam gauge, that is to say, each boiler must be fitted with all the fittings as complete as if there was only one boiler.

(b.) Boilers that fire at both ends, and those of unusual width, must have water gauges and test cocks at each end or side, as the case may be. When a steamer has more than one boiler, and those boilers are fitted with stop valves, each boiler must be treated as a separate one, and have all the requisite fittings.

Sec. 34. Inspectors shall be more careful not to give any official sanction to any new arrangement or construction of marine steam boilers, without first obtaining the permission of the Chairman in writing, nor shall they give any written approval of any invention or arrangement unless by direction of the Chairman, and whenever they know that any invention or new arrangement is to be fitted to a vessel that is intended to have a passenger certificate, they shall as soon as possible obtain plans and specifications and submit the same to the Chairman.

Sec. 35. When the longitudinal seams in cylindrical furnaces are not welded or made with a butt strap, the following constants will be substituted for 90,000:

(a.) Furnaces with butt joints and drilled rivet holes.	90,000 where the longitudinal seams are double riveted and fitted with single butt straps; 80,000 where the longitudinal seams are single riveted and fitted with single butt straps; 90,000 where the longitudinal seams are single riveted and fitted with double butt straps.
(b.) Furnaces with butt joints and punched rivet holes.	85,000 where the longitudinal seams are double riveted and fitted with single butt straps; 75,000 where the longitudinal seams are single riveted and fitted with single butt straps; 85,000 where the longitudinal seams are single riveted and fitted with double butt straps.

(c.) Furnaces with lapped joints and drilled rivet holes.	80,000 where the longitudinal seams are double riveted and bevelled ; 75,000 where the longitudinal seams are double riveted and not bevelled ; 70,000 where the longitudinal seams are single riveted and bevelled ; 65,000 where the longitudinal seams are single riveted and not bevelled.
(d.) Furnaces with lapped joints and punched rivet holes.	75,000 where the longitudinal seams are double riveted and bevelled ; 70,000 where the longitudinal seams are double riveted and not bevelled ; 65,000 where the longitudinal seams are single riveted and bevelled ; 60,000 where the longitudinal seams are single riveted and not bevelled.

Steel Boilers.

Sec. 36. (a.) The following rules should guide Inspectors when the general quality of the steel has been found suitable for marine boilers :—

(b.) The steel makers or boiler makers should test one or more strips or pieces cut from each plate and bar for tensile strength and elongation, and stamp both results on each plate or bar. When practicable the plates or bars should be so stamped that the marks can be easily seen when the boiler is constructed.

(c.) An Inspector is not obliged to witness the foregoing test, but he should see that all the plates and bars are properly stamped.

(d.) From the plates and bars, the tests of which have been stated to have been made by the steel maker, and not witnessed by the Inspector, the Inspector may, if he thinks it advisable, select any plates or bars after they are in the boiler shop and require specimens to be cut off and tested. If the results are not satisfactory, the whole of the plates, except those which were tested and found satisfactory by the Inspector, may be liable to be rejected.

(e.) Twenty-five per cent. of the rivet bars should be tested for tensile strength and elongation : the tensile strength should be from 26 to 30 tons gross, or 58,000 to 67,000 lbs. to the square inch, and the elongation in ten inches should not be less than 25 per cent.

(f.) The Inspector may not in every case see some of the rivets tested, but he should occasionally select a few, and after they are prepared, see them tested. The tensile stress should be from 27 to 32 tons gross, or 62,000 to 72,000 lbs. to the square inch, with a contraction of area of 60 per cent. The elongation should, when practicable, be taken in length equal to two and a half times the diameter of the prepared part.

(g.) Twenty-five per cent. of the bars for stays of each size should be tested, solid steel screw stays which have not been welded or otherwise worked after heating, may be allowed a working stress of 9,000 pounds to the square inch of net section, provided the tensile stress is from 27 to 32 tons gross, or 62,000 to 72,000 pounds to the square inch, and the elongation in ten inches about 25 per cent., and not less than 20 per cent.

(h.) Steel stays which have been welded or worked in the fire have been found to be unreliable, therefore they should not be passed.

(i.) If the original size of the bars for rivets or stays be reduced before testing, it should be done in the lathe or by a machine ; test pieces of any kind should not be prepared by heating and drawing down.

(j.) If for the plates from which the Inspectors select the above proportion, a greater stress is wished than is allowed for iron, tests for tensile stress and elongation should be made ; also a few tempering and bending tests, and those for which no reduction of thickness is asked may be tested for resistance to bending and tempering only, if preferred in the latter case, the stress and elongation stamped on each plate should be reported by the Inspector to the Chairman, along with the result of the bending and tempering test.

(k.) The breadth of test strips for tensile stress should be about two inches, and the elongation, taken in the length of ten inches should be about 25 per cent., and not less than 20 per cent. The strips must be carefully prepared and measured, and they should be cut from the plate by a planing or shaping machine. The skin of the test pieces should not be removed by planing, shaping or otherwise, the edges only being planed or shaped, and in no case should the test pieces be prepared or reduced in size by hammering or otherwise working on the anvil, and they must not be annealed previous to being tested, neither must the plates or bars be annealed before the test pieces are cut from them.

(l.) The bending tests for plates not exposed to flame should be made with strips in their normal condition, and occasionally also some tempering test. Strips cut from furnaces, combustion boxes, &c., should be heated to a cherry red, then plunged into water of about 80 degrees and kept there until of the same temperature as the water and then bent. The bending and tempering strips should not be less than two inches broad and ten inches long, and they should be bent until they break, or until the sides are parallel at a distance from each other of not more than (3) three times the thickness of plate.

(m.) When full allowance over iron is wished, the tensile stress of the plates not exposed to flame should be not less than 27 tons gross, or 62,000 lbs., and should not exceed 32 tons gross or 72,000 lbs., per square inch of section, and 29 tons gross, or 65,000 lbs. should be the stress used in the calculation for cylindrical shells, if the plates comply with all the conditions as stated herein ; but when the minimum tensile strength of shell plate is not less than 28 tons gross or 63,000 lbs., and allowance is wished for the excess, then the case should be specially submitted for the consideration of the Chairman as to whether the stress in the calculation may be increased to 30 tons gross or to 67,000 lbs., the tensile strength of furnace, flanging, and combustion box plates may range from 36 tons gross or 58,000 lbs., to 30 tons gross or 67,000 lbs., to the square inch.

(n.) All plates that are punched, flanged or locally heated must be carefully annealed after being so treated.

(o.) The rivet holes in the furnaces and longitudinal seams of cylindrical shells should be drilled, but if it is wished to punch them and afterwards bore or anneal the plates in a proper furnace, the particulars of the punching and boring or annealing should be submitted to the Chairman for consideration before being done, but all punched holes should be made after bending.

(p.) In all cases where assent has been given by the Chairman for plates to be punched after bending, and then annealed, the maker of the boiler should stamp the plates with the words "punched after bending and then annealed," and in all cases were assent has been given for punching and afterwards boring plates the wards "punched and then bored" should be stamped on the plates.

(q.) If the flanging plates and those exposed to flame comply with the foregoing conditions, the constants in these rules for iron boilers may be increased as follows :—

1. The constants for flat surfaces, when they are supported by stays screwed into the plates and riveted, 10 per cent.

2. The constants for flat surfaces, when they are supported by stays screwed into the plates and nutted, or when the stays are nutted in the steam space, 25 per cent. This is also applicable to the constants for flat surfaces stiffened by riveted washers or doubling strips and supported by nutted stays.

3. The constants for combustion box girders, 10 per cent.

(r.) When the furnaces are new, corrugated and machine made and practically true circles, the working pressure is found by the following formula, provided that the plain parts at the ends do not exceed 6 inches in length and the plates are not less than $\frac{5}{16}$ inch thick.

T=Thickness in inches.
T=Mean diameter in inches.

(It the furnace is riveted in two or more lengths, the case should be submitted to the Chairman).

T = Thickness of tube plate in inches.

W = Extreme width of combustion box in inches from front of tube plate to back of fire box, or distance between combustion box tube plates when boiler is double ended and the box common to the furnaces at both ends.

(t.) The rivet section, if of iron, in the horizontal seams of cylindrical shells, where lapped and at least double riveted, should not be less than $\frac{13}{8}$ time the net plate section; but if steel rivets are used, their section should be at least $\frac{28}{23}$ of the net section of the plate if the tensile stress of the rivet is not less than 27 tons gross or 62,000 lbs., or not more than 32 tons gross or 72,000 lbs. per square inch. Therefore, in calculating the working pressure, the percentage strength of the rivet may be found in the usual way by the rules, but in the case of iron rivets the percentages found should be divided by $\frac{13}{8}$, and in the case of steel rivets by $\frac{28}{23}$, the result being the percentages required. If the percentage strength of the rivets by calculation is less than the calculated percentage strength of the plate, calculate the working pressure by both percentages. When using the percentage strength of the plate, use the nominal factor of safety suitable for the method of construction as by the rules for iron boilers, but when using the percentage strength of the rivets, use 5 as the factor of safety. The less of the two pressures so found is the working pressure to be allowed for the cylindrical portion of the shell, or otherwise in accordance with the formulæ in appendix.

(u.) Local heating of the plates should be avoided, as many plates have failed from being so treated.

(v.) Steel plates which have been welded should not be passed if subject to a tensile stress, and those welded and subject to a compressive stress should be sufficiently annealed. In other respects the boiler should comply with the rules for iron boilers.

Sec. 37. In no case shall a certificate be granted for a boiler, when drift pins have been used in bringing the holes in the sheets together.

Sec. 38. Man hole openings must be stiffened with compensating plates or rings of at least the same effective sectional area as the plate cut out, and in no case shall such plates or rings be of less thickness than the plate to which they are attached, nor the attachment of less strength than the plate or ring. All openings in the shells of boilers must have their short axes placed longitudinally.

Sec. 39. Every boiler, made after the coming into force of these Regulations, shall be stamped with the initial letters of the Inspector's name, who inspected and tested it, the year it was made and the pressure under which it was tested, also the actual working pressure allowed upon it.

Furnaces and Flues.

Sec. 40 (a.) The external working pressure to be allowed on plane circular steel furnaces and flues, when subjected to such pressure when the longitudinal joints are welded or made with a butt strap, shall be determined by the following formulæ :—

(b.) The product of 90,000 multiplied by the square of the thickness of the plate in inches, divided by the length of the flue, or furnace, in feet, plus one multiplied by the diameter in inches, will be the allowable working pressure per square inch in pounds; provided it does not exceed that found by the following formula :—

(c.) The product of 10,000 multiplied by the thickness of the plate in inches, divided by the diameter (outside) of the flue or furnace, in inches, will be the allowable working pressure per square inch in pounds.

Corrugated Steel Furnaces and Flues.

Sec. 41. (a.) In steel flue furnaces when new, corrugated, and machine-made, and practically true circles, the working pressure is found by the following formula, provided that the plane parts at the ends do not exceed 6 inches in length and the plates are not less than $\frac{5}{16}$ inch thick.

(b.) When the furnaces are riveted in two or more lengths the case should be submitted to the Clairman for consideration, as it may be necessary to make a reduction.

Corrugated Iron Furnaces.

Sec. 42. The working pressure for corrugated iron furnaces practically circular and machine-made, provided the plane parts at the ends do not exceed 6 inches in length and the plates are not less than $\frac{5}{16}$ inch thick, should not be greater than that found by the following formula :—

$$\sqrt{(\tfrac{11}{20}p + d)(\tfrac{1}{20}p + d)} = V.$$

$$\tfrac{3}{10}p + d = p_D.$$

$$\frac{\sqrt{(11p + 8d)(p + 8d)}}{20} = V_1.$$

$$\frac{3p + 4d}{10} = P_D.$$

TO DETERMINE THE WORKING PRESSURE.

$$\frac{S \times \% \times 2\,T}{F \times D} = B.$$

NOTE (a).—The minimum value of V or V_1 for chain riveted joints is given as $2d$, but $\frac{4d + 1}{2}$, is more desirable.

Safety-Valves.

SEC. 44. (a.) The boiler of every steamboat shall be fitted with one, or more, locked-up safety-valves, the area of which, or the joint area, shall not be less than half a square inch for each square foot of grate surface in or under the boiler. In all cases the safety-valves should be upon the boiler, or as near as possible to it.

(b.) Safety-valves should not be passed less that two inches in diameter ; except in the case of small boilers when the area of grate surface is less than six square feet, when safety-valves of less diameter may be used ; but in no case shall their diameter be less than one inch ; and provided the above proportion of area of safety-valve to area of grate be complied with.

SEC. 45. (a.) Inspectors are instructed that in all new boilers and whenever alterations can be easily made the valve chest should be placed directly on the boiler, and the neck or part between the chest and the flange which bolts on to the boiler should be as short as possible, and be cast in one with the chest.

(b.) In any case in which an inspector is of opinion that it is positively dangerous to have a length of pipe between the boilers and the safety valve chest, he shall at once insist on the requisite alterations being made before granting a certificate.

(c.) Inspectors shall fix the limit of the weight to be placed on the safety-valves, and shall satisfy themselves that the boilers are in their judgment sufficient with the weight so placed.

(d.) Care should be taken that the safety-valves have a lift equal to at least one-fourth their diameter, that the area of the inlet and outlet openings for the passage of steam be not less than the area of the valve ; where lever valves are used the distance between the centre of the valve and the centre of the fulcrum should not be less than the diameter of the valve.

c=11,000 for square steel.
S=the load on the spring in pounds.
D=the diameter of the spring (from centre to centre of wire) in inches.

RULES.

Sec. 46. (a.) Engineers when laying up a steamer in the autumn, or when finally leaving her, are required to report to the owner, and also to the Inspector of the nearest district, any defects of, or injury to, the boilers and machinery by which the safety of the same may be endangered. They shall also report to the Inspector of the district at which the steamer next arrives, any accident happening to the boilers or machinery during the trip, and in case of omission to make such report, the license of the engineer so omitting shall be revoked.

(b.) The chief engineer of a steamer will be held accountable by the Department of Marine for the proper care and management of the boilers and machinery under his charge. He is, therefore, in no case to absent himself from the vessel while on her regular trips, unless a competent substitute be provided to fill his place during his absence.

(c.) Engineers on first taking charge of a steamer, and at least once a year thereafter, shall satisfy themselves by close examination that the braces, stays and pins of the boiler are in good order, and sufficient for the strain to which that may be subjected ; they shall also satisfy themselves that the safety-valves are in good working order and sufficient for the requirements of clause (a) of section 44.

(d.) Engineers are to exhibit their certificates in the engine room along with a copy of these rules, that is to say, sections 46 and 47, when required to do so.

Management of Boilers.

Sec. 47. (a.) Getting up steam.—Warm the boiler gradually. Steam should not be raised from cold water in less than four hours. If practicable light the fires over night. By getting up steam too quickly the boiler will soon be destroyed.

(b.) Firing.—Fire regularly. Keep the sides up, and use the slice gently and as seldom as possible.

PART TWO.

REGULATIONS governing the inspection and testing of boilers now in existence, and of boilers now or hereafter to be manufactured in Canada, for the use of steamboats, whenever in the opinion of the Inspector the regulations contained in Part One of this order are, on account of the make of such boilers, or for some other reason, not capable of application in the testing thereof ; provided that in every such case the Inspector shall issue his certificate, in which he shall state that this inspection has been made under Part Two of this order.

Mode of Inspection.

Sec. 48. Any inspector may, whenever he deems it necessary so to do, and one inspector shall, at least once in every year, subject the boiler of every steamboat to a test by hydrostatic pressure, and shall satisfy himself by examination and experimental trials that such boiler is well made of good and suitable materials ; the limit of such pressure shall be in the ratio of one hundred and fifty pounds to one hundred pounds allowable as a working pressure ; for the purposes of such test the owner of the steamboat shall provide the necessary hand-pump and apparatus, and the same shall be worked by the crew of the steamboat : and no Inspector shall make or deliver to the owner or master of any steamboat, any certificate unless he has first subjected the boiler of such steamboat to such test by hydrostatic pressure.

Sec. 49. Before a boiler is subjected to a test by hydrostatic pressure, it shall be opened up for inspection, the manhole doors and mud-plates removed and the outside and inside of the boiler cleaned, the furnace grates removed and the furnace swept out clean, so that satisfactory and efficient inspection may be made ; when bulkheads are so placed as to prevent a close examination of the plates of the boiler, they shall be removed ; and the owner or master of the steamboat shall see that the foregoing requirements are complied with before applying for inspection.

Sec. 50. In any case in which the test is not satisfactory, the defects shall be made good and the boiler re-tested satisfactorily before a certificate is granted.

Sec. 51. When the outside of the bottom of a boiler cannot be otherwise perfectly inspected, the boiler shall be lifted for inspection once at least in every four years.

Sec. 52. In subjecting boilers made of iron plates to the hydrostatic test aforesaid, the Inspector shall assume one hundred pounds to the square inch as the maximum pressure allowable as a working power for a new boiler forty-two inches in diameter, made of the best refined iron, at least one quarter of an inch thick, in the best manner and of the quality herein required,—and shall rate the working pressure of all iron boilers, whether of greater or less diameter according to their strength compared with this standard ; and in all such cases the test applied shall exceed the working pressure allowed, in the ratio of one hundred and fifty pounds to one hundred, using the water in such tests at a temperature not exceeding sixty degrees Fahrenheit.

Sec. 53. In subjecting boilers made of steel to the hydrostatic test aforesaid, the Inspector shall assume one hundred and twenty-five pounds as the maximum pressure allowable as a working power for a new boiler forty-two inches in diameter, made in the best manner of the best quality of steel plates, at least one quarter of an inch thick, with all the rivet holes drilled in place, the plates being then taken apart and the burrs removed, the longitudinal seams in the shell being fitted with double butt steel straps cut across the grain of the plate, and each of five-eighths the thickness of the plates they cover, and all the seams being at least double riveted and having at least seventy per cent. of the strength of the solid plate, and all the flat surfaces stayed in the best manner and all the seams double riveted,—and they shall rate the working pressure of all steel boilers so made, whether of greater or less diameter, according to their strength compared with this standard ; and in all such cases the test applied shall exceed the working pressure allowed for such boilers in the ratio of one hundred and eighty-seven and a half pounds to one hundred and twenty-five pounds, using the water in such tests at a temperature not exceeding sixty degrees Fahrenheit.

Sec. 54. If the Inspector is of opinion that any boiler, whether made of iron or steel plates, by reason of its construction or material, will not safely allow so high a working pressure as that hereinbefore specified for each such description of boiler respectively, he may, for reasons to be stated specifically in his certificate, fix the working pressure of such boiler at less than two-thirds of the test pressure.

Sec. 55. The foregoing rules shall be observed in all cases, unless the proportion between such boilers and the cylinders, or some other cause, renders it manifest that their application would be unjust,—in which case the Inspector may depart from the said rules if it can be done with safety ; but in no case shall the working pressure allowed exceed the proportion hereinbefore mentioned, as compared with the hydrostatic test.

Sec. 56 (a.) The external working pressure to be allowed on plane circular iron furnaces and flues subjected to such pressure, when the longitudinal joints are welded or made with a butt strap, shall be determined by the following formula :—

(b.) The product of 90,000 multiplied by the square of the thickness of the plate in inches,—divided by the length of the flue or furnace in feet plus 1, multiplied by the diameter in inches,—shall be the allowable working pressure per square inch in pounds,—provided it does not exceed that found by the following fermula :—

(c.) The product of 8,000 multiplied by the thickness of the plate in inches, divided by the diameter of the furnace or flue in inches, shall be the allowable working pressure per square inch in pounds,—

(d.) The length of the furnace to be used in the first formula being the distance between the rings, if the furnace is made with rings ; and that one of the two formulæ which gives the lowest pressure being the one by which the Inspector shall be guided.

Sec. 57. On flat surfaces the allowable working pressure shall not exceed six thousand pounds to each effective square inch of sectional area of the stays supporting it ; the pressure to be allowed on plates forming flat surfaces shall be that found by the following formula :

T=Thickness of plates in sixteenths of an inch ;
S=Surface supported in square inches ;
C=100 ; but when the plates are exposed to the impact of heat or flame, and steam only is in contact with the plates on the opposite side, C is to be reduced to 50.

Sec. 58. In order to satisfy himself as to the strength and condition of a boiler, the Inspector may, if he deems it necessary, order holes to be cut in it, and may also demand that such information shall be furnished him in respect to the interior construction of the boiler as will enable him to judge correctly of its strength.

Sec. 59. In no case shall a certificate be granted for a boiler when drift pins have been used in bringing the holes in the sheets together.

Sec. 60. Man-hole openings shall be stiffened with compensating rings of at least the same effective sectional area as the plate cut out, and in no case shall such rings be of less thickness than the plates to which they are attached ; all openings in the shells of cylindrical boilers shall have their short axes placed longitudinally.

Sec. 61. When bars or angle irons are used for sustaining the crown sheet of the furnace of a boiler, three-fifths of the working pressure allowable upon the crown sheet shall be sustained by hanging stays from the shell of the boiler attached to the crown sheet.

Sec. 62. Donkey boilers on steamboats shall be provided with a safety-valve, which may be locked up.

Sec. 63. Boilers in which the longitudinal seams in the cylindrical shell are single riveted in place of being double riveted, shall be subject to a reduction in the working pressure allowable for a boiler made in the best manner (as prescribed by sections 52 and 53 of these regulations) and the limit of pressure in boilers so made shall not exceed eighty pounds to the square inch in place of one hundred pounds or one hundred and twenty-five pounds, as mentioned in the said sections.

Sec. 64. No boiler made and placed on board shall be made of boiler plate, whether iron or steel, which has not been stamped with the mark or name of the maker thereof ; and no certificate shall be granted with respect to any boiler made wholly or in part of plate not so marked ; and before a certificate shall be granted with respect to any boiler, a declaration on oath by the maker of the boiler, stating the name of the maker of the plates, their quality, and the quality of all materials used in the construction thereof, shall be furnished to the Inspector ; such oath may be taken before any justice of the peace in Canada, or before a notary public, and certified under his official seal, if taken out of Canada : Provided always, that in any case where such declaration on oath by the maker of the boiler cannot be obtained owing to the death of the maker, or from other cause deemed sufficient by the Inspector, the affidavit of two practical boiler makers who have examined the boiler and reported upon the quality of the materials in it and its workmanship and strength, shall, if satisfactory to the Inspector, be deemed sufficient in lieu of such declaration by the maker of the boiler.

Sec. 65. During the construction of every boiler made in Canada, the maker of such boiler shall notify the Inspector of the district in which it is being made, that it is open to his inspection, and shall, at all times during such construction, allow the Inspector access to such boiler.

Sec. 66. No boiler or pipe shall be approved which is made in whole or in part of bad material, or is unsafe in its form, or dangerous from defective workmanship, age, use or any other cause.

Construction of Boilers.

Sec. 67. (a.) When cylindrical boilers or the cylindrical parts of boilers composed of iron plates are made of the best material with all the rivet holes drilled in place and all the seams fitted with double butt straps, each of at least five-eighths the thickness of the plates they cover, and all the seams at least double riveted with rivets having an allowance of not more than 75 per cent. over the single shear, and provided that the boilers have been open to inspection during the whole period of construction, then 4 may be used as the factor of safety. The tensile strength of the material is to be taken as equal to 48,000 lbs. per square inch with the grain, and 42,000 lbs. across the grain. When the above conditions are not complied with, the addition, in the following scale, must be added to the factor according to the circumstances of each case :

A·15—To be added when all the holes are fair and good in the longitudinal seams, but drilled out of place after bending.

B·3—To be added when all the holes are fair and good in the longitudinal seams, but drilled out of place before bending.

C·3—To be added when all the holes are fair and good in the longitudinal seams, but punched after bending instead of drilled.

D·5—To be added when all the holes are fair and good in the longitudinal seams, but punched before bending.

E*·75—To be added when all the holes are not fair and good in the longitudinal seams.

F·1—To be added if the holes are all fair and good in the circumferential seams, but drilled out of place after bending.

G·15—To be added if the holes are fair and good in the circumferential seams, but drilled before bending.

H·15—To be added if the holes are fair and good in the circumferential seams, but punched after bending.

I·2—To be added if the holes are fair and good in the circumferential seams, but punched before bending.

J*·2—To be added if the holes are not fair and good in the circumferential seams.

K·2—To be added if double butt straps are not fitted to the longitudinal seams, and the said seams are lap and double riveted.

L·1—To be added if double butt straps are not fitted to the longitudinal seams, and the said seams are lap and treble riveted.

M·3—To be added if only single butt straps are fitted to the longitudinal seams, and the said seams are double riveted.

N·15—To be added if only single butt straps are fitted to the longitudinal seams, and the said seams are treble riveted.

O·1—To be added when any description of joint in the longitudinal seams is single riveted.

P‡·1—To be added if the circumferential seams are fitted with single butt straps and are double riveted.

Q‡·2—To be added if the circumferential seams are fitted with single butt straps and are single riveted.

S‡·1—To be added if the circumferential seams are lap joints and are double riveted.

T·2—To be added if the circumferential seams are lap joints and are single riveted.

U·25—To be added when the circumferential seams are lap, and the strakes of plates are not entirely under or over.

V·3—To be added when the boiler is of such a length as to fire from both ends, or is of unusual length, such as flue boilers ; and the circumferential seams are fitted as described opposite P., R. and S., but of course when the circumferential seams are as described opposite Q. and T., V·3 will become V·4.

W*·4—To be added if the seams are not properly crossed.

X*·4—To be added when the iron is in any way doubtful, and the Inspector is not satisfied that it is of the best quality.

Percentage of strength of plate at joint as compared with the solid plate.

(c.) Where marked * the allowance may be increased still further if the workmanship or material is very doubtful or unsatisfactory.

†† If the rivets are exposed to double shear multiply the percentage as found by 1·75.

† When surveying boilers that have not been open to inspection during construction the case should be submitted to the chairman as to the factors to be used,

P‡·1, Q‡·2, R‡·1, S‡·1, shall not apply to the end or circumferential seams, if such seams are sufficiently stayed by through bolts; nor to the seams between the square and round part of shell, in cylindrical boilers with square furnaces, when such seams are double riveted.

(d.) Then take iron as equel in tensile strength to 48,000 lbs. per square inch and use the smallest of the two percentages as the strength of the joint, and adopt the factor of safety as found from the preceding scale:

= Pressure to be allowed per square inch on the safety-valves.

(e.) For steel plates of the best quality the tensile strength may be taken as equal to 60,000 lbs. per square inch, using the same factor of safety.

(h.) The rivet holes may be punched or drilled when the plates are punched or drilled out of place, but when drilled in place must be taken apart and the burr taken off and slightly countersunk from the outside.

(i.) When single butt straps are used and the rivet holes in them punched they must be one-eighth thicker than the plates they cover.

(j.) The diameter of rivets must not be less than the thickness of the plates of which the shell is made, but it will be found when the plates are thin, or when lap joints or single butt straps are adopted that the diameter of the rivets should be in excess of the thickness of the plates.

(l.) Dished ends that are not truly hemispherical must be stayed; if they are not theoretically equal in strength to the pressure needed they must be stayed as flat surfaces, but if they are theoretically equal in strength to the presure needed the stays may have a strain of 10,000 lbs. per effective square inch of sectional area.

(m.) Inspectors will remember that the strength of a sphere to resist internal pressure is double that of a cylinder of the same diameter and thickness.

Sec. 68. (a.) The neutral parts of boiler shells under steam domes must be sufficiently stiffened and stayed.

(b.) The sides of boilers having square furnaces and half round tops must be stayed from side to side of the shell, over the furnace, one or more rows of these stays to be placed well above the centre of the cylindrical part.

(c.) Screw stays are not to be used when supporting flat surfaces at any angle but a right angle to the surface supported, their diameter to be measured inside the thread.

(e.) The inside diameter of the outside strake or course in the cylindrical shell of a boiler is to be taken as the measure of its diameter.

Sec. 69. (a.) In cylindrical super-heaters the strength of the joints and the factor of safety is found in a similar manner as for cylindrical boilers and steam receivers, but instead of using 48,000 lbs. as the tensile strength of iron 24,000 lbs. is adopted unless where the heat or flame impinges at or nearly at right angles to the plate, then 18,000 lbs. is substituted.

(b.) In all cases the internal steam pipes should be so fitted that the steam in flowing to them will pass over all the plates exposed to the impact of heat or flame.

(c.) Super-heaters or water jackets should, as regards inspection, be deemed to be the most important part of the boilers and must be inspected inside and outside; those that cannot be entered (on account of their size) must have a sufficient number of doors through which a thorough inspection of the whole of the interior can be made.

(d.) Special attention should be paid to the inspection of super-heaters, as with high pressure the plates may become dangerously weak and not give any sound to indicate their state when tested with the hammer; the plate should therefore be occasionally drilled. Drain pipes must be in all cases fitted to super-heaters in which a collection of water in the bottom is possible.

Find the area of a direct stay needed to support the surface, multiply this area by the length of the diagonal stay and divide the product by the length of a line drawn at right angles to the surface supported to the end of the diagonal stay, the quotient will be the area of the diagonal stay required.

Sec. 71. (a.) When the tops of combustion boxes or other parts of a boiler are supported by solid rectangular girders, the following formula, which is used by the Imperial Board of Trade, will be useful for finding the working pressure to be allowed on the girders, assuming that they are not subjected to a greater temperature than the ordinary heat of steam, and in case of combustion chambers, that the ends are fitted to the edges of the tube plate and the back plate of the combustion box:

C = 500 when the girder is fitted with one supporting bolt.

Sec. 72. The flat ends of all boilers, as far as the steam space extends, and the ends of superheaters should be fitted with shield, or baffle plates, where exposed to the hot gases of the uptake, as all the plates subjected to the direct impact of heat or flame are liable to get injured unless covered with water.

Sec. 73. Donkey boilers that are in any way attached to, or connected with the main boilers, or with the machinery used for propelling the ship, must be inspected and fitted the same way as the main boilers, and have a water and steam gauge, and all other fittings complete, and as regards safety-valves must comply with the same regulations as the main boilers, and no safety-valve shall be passed less than two inches diameter.

Sec. 74. (a.) No boiler or steam-chamber is to be so constructed, fitted or arranged as that the escape of steam from it through the safety-valve can be wholly or partially intercepted by the action of any other valve.

(b.) A stop valve must always be fitted between the boiler and the steam pipe, and when two or more boilers are connected with a steam receiver or superheater, between each boiler and superheater or steam receiver. The object of this is obvious, viz., to avoid the failure of all the boilers through the failure of one. The necks of stop valves should be as short as practicable.

Sec. 75. (a.) Each boiler must be fitted with glass water-gauge, at least two test cocks, and steam gauge, that is to say, each boiler must be fitted with all the fittings as complete as if there were only one boiler.

(b.) Boilers that fire at both ends and those of unusual width, must have water gauges and test cocks at each end or side, as the case may be. When a steamer has more than one boiler, and those boilers are fitted with stop valves each boiler must be treated as a separate one and have all the requisite fittings.

Sec. 76. Inspectors are to be most careful not to give any official sanction to any new arrangement or construction of marine steam boilers, without first obtaining the permission of the Chairman in writing, nor are they allowed to give any written approval of any invention, or arrangement unless by direction of the Board, and whenever they know that any invention or new arrangement is to be fitted to a vessel that is intended to have a passenger certificate, they should as soon as possible obtain plans and submit the same to the Chairman.

Sec. 77. When the longitudinal seams in cylindrical furnaces are not welded or made with a butt strap as provided in section 56 of these regulations, the following constants will be substituted for 90,000:

(a.) Furnaces with butt joints and drilled rivet holes.	90,000 where the longitudinal seams are double riveted and fitted with single butt straps; 80,000 where the longitudinal seams are single riveted and fitted with single butt straps; 90,000 where the longitudinal seams are single riveted and fitted with double butt straps.
(b.) Furnaces with butt joints and punched rivet holes.	85,000 where the longitudinal seams are double riveted and fitted with single butt straps; 75,000 where the longitudinal seams are single riveted and fitted with single butt straps; 85,000 where the longitudinal seams are single riveted and fitted with double butt straps.
(c.) Furnaces with lap joints and drilled rivet holes.	80,000 where the longitudinal seams are double riveted and bevelled; 75,000 where the longitudinal seams are double riveted and not bevelled; 70,000 where the longitudinal seams are single riveted and bevelled; 65,000 where the longitudinal seams are single riveted and not bevelled.
(d.) Furnaces with lapped joints and punched rivet holes.	75,000 where the longitudinal seams are double riveted and not bevelled. 70,000 where the longitudinal seams are double riveted and not bevelled. 65,000 where the longitudinal seams are single riveted and bevelled. 60,000 where the longitudinal seams are single riveted and not bevelled.

Furnaces and Flues.

Sec. 78. (a.) The external working pressure to be allowed on plane circular steel furnaces and flues when subjected to such pressure, when the longitudinal joints are welded or made with a butt strap, shall be determined by the following formula:—

(b.) The product of 90,000 multiplied by the square of the thickness of the plate in inches, divided by the length of the flue, or furnace, in feet, plus 1, multiplied by the diameter in inches, will be the allowable working pressure per square inch in pounds; provided it does not exceed that found by the following formula:—

(c.) The product of 10,000 multiplied by the thickness of the plate in inches, divided by the diameter (outside) of the flue or furnace, in inches, will be the allowable working pressure per square inch in pounds.

Corrugated Steel Furnaces and Flues.

Sec. 79. (a.) Steel flue furnaces when new, corrugated, and machine-made, and practically true circles, the working pressure is found by the following formula, provided that the plane parts at the ends do not exceed six inches in length, and the plates are not less than $\frac{5}{16}$ inch thick.

(b.) When the furnaces are riveted in two or more lengths the case should be submitted to the Chairman for consideration, as it may be necessary to make a reduction.

Corrugated Iron Furnaces.

Sec. 80. The working pressure for corrugated iron furnaces practically circular, and machine-made, provided the plane parts at the ends do not exceed six inches in length and the plates are not less than $\frac{5}{16}$ inch thick, should not be greater than that fouud by the following formula:—

Duties of inspectors.

Sec. 81. Inspectors are to fix the working pressure of boilers by a series of calculations of the strength of the various parts, and according to the workmanship and material.

Sec. 82. Before testing a boiler the Inspector should examine it, take the necessary measurements and calculate what the working pressure should be, in accordance with these regulations. If the test is not satisfactory the defects must be made good and the boiler re-tested. This instruction applies to superheaters, steam chests and water jackets as well as boilers.

Sec. 83. If the boiler is too hot for the Inspector to examine it efficiently with safety and convenience he should decline to examine it and absolutely refuse to grant a certificate until he can make an efficient examination.

Sec. 84. Inspectors should see all new boilers and boilers that have been taken out of a ship for a thorough repair, tested by a hydraulic pressure up to at least one and one half the working pressure that will be allowed previous to the boilers being placed in the vessel to test the workmanship, &c., but the working pressure is to be determined by the stay power, thickness of plates and strength of riveting, &c., and not by hydraulic test.

Sec. 85. The hydraulic test should is no case exceed that provided by section 48 of these regulations, and it is never to be applied until the boiler has been opened up for examination and until the strength has been calculated from the necessary measurements taken from the boiler itself.

Sec. 86. When a boilor is partially inspected by one Inspector and the inspection is completed and the certificate granted by another, if the Inspector who witnesses the test of the boilers by the hydraulic pressure has an opportunity of examining them inside and outside after the test, such Inspector shall determine the pressure to be allowed on the boilers in question, taking care to inform the owners, makers or agents, and the Inspector who is ultimately to grant a certificate, what pressure should in his opinion be allowed on them.

Sec. 87. Cast iron must not be used for stays, and Inspectors should also discourage the use of cast iron for chocks and saddles for boilers. Particular attention should be paid to chocking and fastening boilers to the vessel.

Sec. 88. A pressure once allowed on a boiler of a passenger steamer is not, under any circumstances whatever, to be increased, unless the Inspector has previously written for and obtained the sanction of the Chairman. In cases where an Inspector is of opinion that an increased pressure may with safety be allowed he should communicate with the Inspector who last inspected the boiler, and if on learning the reason why the existing pressure was formerly allowed, the Inspector is still of opinion that it may be increased, he should communicate all the facts of the case to the Chairman, but as above stated the pressure should not in any case be increased until the question has been decided by the Chairman.

Sec. 89. In fixing the maximum working pressure on steamboat boilers, Inspectors are to assume one hundred and twenty-five pounds to the square inch as the limit allowable for a new steel boiler forty-two inches in diameter, made in the best manner, of the best quality of steel plates, at least one quarter of an inch thick, with all the rivet holes drilled in place, the plates being then taken apart and the burrs removed, the longitudinal seams in the shell being fitted with double butt steel straps cut across the grain of the plates and each of at least five-eighths the thickness of the plates they cover, and all the seams being at least double riveted and having at least seventy per cent. of the strength of the solid plate, and all the flat surfaces stayed in the best manner and all the seams double riveted, and they shall rate the working pressure of all steel boilers so made whether of greater or less diameter according to their strength compared with this standard, and in all such cases the test applied shall exceed the working pressure allowed for such boilers in the ratio of one hundred and fifty pounds to one hundred pounds, using the water in such tests at a temperature not exceeding sixty degrees Fahrenheit, and all percentages added to the factor of safety for interior workmanship or material, are to be deducted from that pressure.

Sec. 90. In fixing the maximum working pressure on steamboat boilers, Inspectors are to assume one hundred pounds to the square inch, as the limit allowable for a new boiler forty-two inches in diameter, made of the best refined iron, at least one quarter of an inch thick, in the best manner and of the quality herein required, and shall rate the working pressure of all iron boilers, whether of greater or less diameter, according to their strength compared with this standard, and in all such cases the test applied shall exceed the working pressure allowed, in the ratio of one hundred and fifty pounds to one hundred, using the water in such tests at a temperature not exceeding sixty degrees Fahrenheit, and all percentages added to the factor of safety, for inferior workmanship or material, are to be deducted from that pressure.

Sec. 91. In the case of zig-zag riveting the strength through the plate diagonally between the rivets is equal to that horizontally between the rivets, when diagonal pitch $= \frac{6}{10}$ horizontal pitch $+ \frac{4}{10}$ diameter of rivet.

Safety-Valves.

Sec. 92. Section 31 of the Steamboat Inspection Act provides that the boiler of every steamboat shall be fitted with one or more locked-up safety-valves. Section 22 further provides that the area of any locked safety-valve or the joint areas of any locked safety-valve to any boiler made or placed on board after the 17th day of May, 1882, shall not be less than half a square inch for each square foot of grate surface in or under the boiler. In all cases the safety-valves should be upon the boiler or as near as possible to it.

Sec. 93. Inspectors are instructed that in all new boilers and whenever alterations can be easily made the valve chest should be placed directly on the boiler, and the neck or part between the chest and the flange which bolts on to the boiler should be as short as possible and be cast in one with the chest.

Sec. 94. In any case in which an Inspector is of opinion that it is positively dangerous to have a length of pipe between the boilers and the safety-valve chest, it is his duty at once to insist on the requisite alterations being made before granting a certificate.

Sec. 95. Inspectors are to fix the limit of the weight to be placed on the safety-valves and are to satisfy themselves that the boilers are in their judgment sufficient with the weight so placed.

Sec. 96. In new vessels no safety-valves should be passed less than two and one half inches in diameter, and for donkey boilers and boilers having less than six square feet of grate surface, not less than one inch in diameter.

Sec. 97. Care should be taken that the safety-valves have a lift equal to at least one-fourth their diameter, that the area of the inlet and outlet openings for the passage of steam be not less than the area of the valve; where lever valves are used the distance between the centre of the valve and the centre of the fulcrum should not be less than the diameter of the valve.

The spring should be protected from the steam and impurities issuing from the boiler, and in case of the spring breaking means provided to keep it in position on the valve.

Sec. 99. A standard spring if made of the best square cast steel contains ·25 of a square inch, the inside diameter is two inches, and the outside diameter three inches, it has thirteen complete coils with the ends and is $11\frac{1}{2}$ inches long. The working load is assumed at 600 pounds, one-sixth of its breaking load when hardened to a temper, just sufficient to break it, at which load it should deflect just one inch.

Sec. 100. To find the sectional area for any other spring the pressure on the valve being given:

Suppose the pressure on the valve be 1,344 lbs. than 600 : 1,344 : : ·25 : ·56 equal to a $\frac{3}{4}$ inch square bar; the other dimensions of the spring would be in like proportion.

Sec. 101. The following conditions should apply to all safety-valves:—

(a.) Under no consideration whatever should the pressure rise in the boiler above the load placed on the safety-valve.

(b.) The relieving power of the safety-valve or safety-valves should be twice the generating power of the boiler under full fires.

(c.) No disk or "pop safety-valve" liable to open the full area of the valve suddenly, should be passed over four inches in diameter. When a larger area of safety-valve is required, two or more valves may be used; but in all cases lifting gear must be provided for raising them singly or together.

Sec. 102. Safety-valves must be placed in convenient and accessible places, that their adjustment and examination may be readily and efficiently made.

Duties and Liabilities of Engineers.

Sec. 103. (a.) Engineers are required in all cases upon stopping of the engine to open the safety-valves, so as to keep the steam in the boiler below the limit allowed by the Inspector's certificate as prescribed by law, to open the doors or close the dampers, and when from accident or other cause, the water in the boiler has fallen below the point of safety, to put out the fires immediately.

(b.) Engineers shall keep the fire pumps and hose and their connections in perfect condition ready for immediate use, and when found unfit for use from age or other cause, shall report their condition to the Inspector of Hulls by whom the steamer was last inspected.

(c.) Engineers when laying up a steamer in the fall, or when finally leaving her, are required to report to the owner and also to the Inspector of the nearest district any defects of, or injury to, the boilers and machinery by which the safety of the same may be endangered. They shall also report to the Inspector of the district at which the steamer next arrives, any accident happening to the boilers or machinery during the trip, and in case of omission to make such report, the license of the engineer so omitting shall be revoked.

(d.) The Chief Engineer of a steamer is held accountable by the Department of Marine for the proper care and management of the boilers and machinery under his charge. He is, therefore, in no case to absent himself from the vessel while on her regular trips, unless a competent substitute be provided to fill his place during his absence.

(e.) Engineers on first taking charge of a steamer, and at least once a year thereafter, shall satisfy themselves by close examination that the braces, stays and pins of the boiler are in good order, and sufficient for the strain to which they may be subjected; they shall also satisfy themselves that the safety-valves are in good working order and sufficient for the requirements of section 67 of these regulations.

Management of Boilers.

Sec. 104. (a.) Getting up steam—Warm the boiler gradually. Steam should not be raised from cold water in less than four hours. If practicable, light the fires over night. By getting up steam too quickly, the boiler will soon be destroyed.

(b.) Firing.—Fire regularly. Keep the sides up, and use the slice gently and as seldom as possible.

(g.) Blowing off the Boiler.—Do not blow off by steam pressure; let the water run off if possible. See that the fires are all out.

(h.) Boiler Purgers.—Never use any compositions to keep down incrustation, or oil or other impurities to remove it without the approval of the Chairman.

(i.) General Rules.—Keep the boiler clean inside and outside, and free from leak. Never throw water in the furnace. Under high pressure, raise the safety-valve gently. Lower the fires, or, if necessary, stop the engine when foaming to find the water level.

CERTIFIED COPY of a Report of a Committee of the Honorable the Privy Council, approved by His Excellency the Governor General in Council, on the 17*th September*, 1889.

Upon a Report dated 12th September, 1889, from the Minister of Marine and Fisheries submitting the following Regulations made by the Board of Steamboat Inspection for the uniform inspection of Steamboats and for such other purposes as are necessary under the provisions of chapter 78 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, intituled "The Steamboat Inspection Act," and recommending that the same be approved in accordance with the said Act.

The Committee advise that the said Regulations be approved accordingly.

JOHN J. McGEE,
Clerk, Privy Council.

INSPECTION OF HULLS OF STEAMBOATS.

Inspection of Hulls and Equipment of Steamboats carrying Passengers.

Section 1. Inspectors of Hulls, before granting a passenger certificate, must be satisfied that the following particulars have been complied with, in accordance with the requirements of the Act relating to Steamboat Inspection.

(b.) That the boats, life-preservers, buoys, lights, signals and compasses are in good condition, and the certificates of the master and mate, or mates, engineer or engineers, are such as are required by the said Act.

(c.) The time (if less than 12 months) for which the said hull will be deemed sufficient.

(d.) The limits (if any) beyond which, as regards the hull and equipments, the vessel is, in the Inspector's judgment, not fit to ply.

(e.) The number of passengers besides the crew, the vessel is allowed to carry, distinguishing, if necessary, between the respective numbers to be carried on the main deck and upper deck.

Sec. 2. (a.) Inspectors shall make their inspections when the owner, or master, and engineer of the vessel are present, if possible. Repairs can then be required, and defects can be pointed out to the proper persons, without incurring delay. If these persons are not present, the Inspectors will make their inspection without them.

(b.) In order to prevent any mistakes as to the nature and extent of repairs required by the Inspectors, whenever they can not give a certificate until the repairs are effected or alterations made, a written statement of the defects to be remedied or alterations required, shall, in all cases, be handed to the owner or master of the vessel, whether such statement is applied for by him or not, a copy of which should be always taken and transferred to the office press letter book.

(c.) If any difference of opinion arises between the Inspector and the owner or master, the facts should at once be submitted to the Chairman of the Board of Steamboat Inspection for consideration, and for reference to the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, when necessary.

Sec. 3. If a vessel usually plying in one district is taken to another district to be inspected, the Inspector in the latter district shall not give a certificate without first communicating with the Inspector for the former district; nor, if there is any difference of opinion, without referring the question to the Chairman aforesaid for decision.

Sec. 4. It is the duty of the Inspector of Hulls to satisfy himself personally upon every detail of the inspection of a vessel, and not to trust to any certificate or other document given by any person not responsible to his department who will hold him responsible to the fullest extent for the performance of the duty entrusted to him, and will support him in any reasonable step he may think necessary, in order to the fullest performance of his duty.

Sec. 5. In case the Inspector has reason to believe that the hull or equipment is not fit for so long a time as twelve months, he is to grant his certificate for such shorter period as he may deem proper, informing the owners of his reasons for so doing.

Sec. 6. It is most desirable that an Inspector should complete the inspection of a vessel in every detail when he has commenced it; and, if possible, arrangements should always be made with the owners to secure this. Delays and inconveniences may be prevented, if notice is given by owners when the vessel is ready for inspection, and her equipment in place on board. An Inspector should not sign a certificate for any detail which he has not inspected, and for which he is not prepared to hold himself personally responsible.

Sec. 7. Every person who knowingly and wilfully makes or assists in making, or procures to be made a false or fraudulent certificate with respect to any steamboat, or who forges or assists in forging, or procures to be forged, fraudulently alters, or assists in fraudulently altering any certificate required by The Steamboat Inspection Act, or any words, figures in any such certificate or any signatures thereto, is guilty of a misdemeanor.

Sec. 8. A certificate for twelve months shall not be granted, whenever the Inspector has any doubts whatever, as to the efficiency of any part of the vessel or equipment for such period.

Sec. 9. Inspectors shall determine whether hulls of passenger steamers are in good conditon and fit for the service for which they are intended, and shall examine the hulls outside and inside, once a year, if possible, or oftener, and at such time as is most convenient to the owner.

Sec. 10. New steamboats should be inspected before painting or completion, but any such inspection is not to interfere with the complete inspection of hull and equipment, after completion, the object being to form an opinion of the workmanship, material and construction.

Sec. 11. When a steamboat which has been inspected for a passenger certificate, is not in every respect in good condition, although the defects may not be sufficient to warrant the withholding the certificate, and although the vessel may be practically fit for the service intended, the Inspector should, when he grants the certificate, forward to the Chairman aforesaid, a report showing the nature of the defects in question.

Sec. 12. For examining the internal parts of a passenger steamboat, the Inspector shall, if he considers it necessary, have parts of the ceiling removed, in order that he may ascertain the condition of the hull, frames, floors, &c., particularly in the engine room and boiler space, and also in the coal bunkers, they being empty.

Sec. 13. The date of the last inspection shall be entered in an office inspection book with particulars of the condition of the hull at that time, with approximate sketches of the midship section, showing the form, build, and dimensions of the vessel, and parts, sufficiently to judge of her shape and strength. Any question or doubt as to the strength of the vessel for the route on which she is placed, should be referred to the Chairman aforesaid.

Sec. 14. The height of the combings round all openings in main deck, and the means provided for securely protecting or fastening down all sky-lights, bunker openings, &c., are important items to be noticed by the Inspector in steamboats subject to heavy seas. All gangways and openings, on or below weather deck, should be fitted with covers in such a manner that they can be quickly and efficiently secured. Hatch covers should be provided with means for effectually securing them down. Grating and hatch covers must be kept and secured in a suitable place, at all times accessible, and near to the openings for which they are intended.

Sec. 15. All boats should be hung on davits and kept ready for service at any moment. Inspectors should see that in all boats the full complement of oars is provided, that each boat has two plugs to each plug hole, attached with lanyards or chains, and one set and a half of thole pins or crutches attached to the boat by sound lanyards, a bailer, a rudder and tiller or yoke and yoke lines; a painter of sufficient length and a boat hook. The rudder and painter shall be attached to the boats by sufficient long lanyards and ready for use; means for speedily detaching the boats from the lower blocks of the davit tackles should be insisted upon. An ordinary fixed hook in the lower block shipping into fixed eye in the boat should not be allowed.

Sec. 16. Inspectors should see that the davits are strong enough, that they are so spaced that the boat can be swung out without unnecessary labor; that the boat chocks can be expeditiously removed, and that the boats will not foul the ship's sides, when lowering, when the ship has no list. The whole of the tackling, including davits, equipment and crew, falls, blocks, eye bolts and rings, &c., shall be of sufficient strength to lower the boat with its full equipment and crew on board. The davit tackle falls must be long enough to lower the boat into the water, when the vessel is light. Life lines should be fitted to the davits long enough to reach the water when the vessel is light, and allowance made for the extreme roll of the vessel.

Sec. 17. Inspectors will refuse a certificate in cases in which these instructions are not carried out, but it is to be left to the owners of passenger steamboats to furnish such methods as they please for lowering boats so long as the intention of the Act is complied with. Any unusual or doubtful method of lowering boats must be submitted to the Board of Steamboat Inspection for its consideration and approval before it is passed. All boats should be lowered into the water at every inspection.

Sec. 18. Life-buoys with lines attached should be secured by a toggle or becket, or any other similar method, so that they may be quickly released. They must not be lashed or seized to the rail or any other part of the vessel, but must be kept so as to be ready for use at a moment's notice in case of emergency. Life-buoys and jackets shall be carefully examined when inspecting the vessel to see that materials of which they are composed have not become sodden and that the lines attached to them are of sufficient length, serviceable and in good order.

Masts and Sails and Gangboards.

Sec. 19. Section 54 of "The Steamboat Inspection Act" empowers the Minister of Marine and Fisheries to require steamships above sixty tons registered tonnage, carrying passengers on the sea coasts of the Dominion or on any, or on all the waters of the Dominion, with certain exceptions, to be provided with a mast or masts and sail or sails, suitable for such steamboat; and to prescribe the dimensions of such mast or masts, and sail or sails respectively.

Sec. 20. Inspectors of Hulls when inspecting passenger steamboats employed on the sea coast, or on the great lakes of the Dominion, are to see that they are fitted with sufficient sail power to enable them to steer in the event of their machinery becoming disabled. All such sails must be examined by the Inspector, who must be assured of their efficiency, as also with that of the standing and running gear at every inspection, and in any case of doubt to apply to the Chairman.

Sec. 21. Inspectors shall see that suitable and safe gangboards are provided with means for securing them safely at both ends.

Sec. 22. In the first inspection of a steamboat employed on the sea coast or on the great lakes of the Dominion, whether built of iron or wood, the Inspector shall require the compasses to be properly adjusted or verified by a competent person, selected by the owner, whereupon the Inspector shall grant a certificate to the owner to the effect that the compasses of the ship (if an iron ship) are properly adjusted, and a table of errors shall be furnished, and handed by the owners to the Inspector before he gives the certificate.

Sec. 23. Inspectors of Hulls shall see that the deck pumps, whether worked by hand or steam, are properly placed, sufficient in number, and that provision is made to get at the end of the suction pipes in case of fouling. No deck pump shall be passed which requires charging by hand before taking suction. When such is found to be the case, the Inspector shall insist upon proper provisions being made to make the pump efficient at all times. Fire hose should be stretched to their length and thoroughly examined and tried under pressure from the pumps at least once a year, and at any other time the Inspector may deem necessary. The hose should be connected with the pumps for immediate use.

Sec. 24. A spare tiller shall be provided, with relieving tackles, to be kept near the after-steering gear, ready for immediate use on all sea-going steamers and steamers on the great lakes. The steering gear shall be inspected and thoroughly examined at least once a year.

Sec. 25. Inspectors of Hulls must be careful to see that every sea-going steamer, subject to the Act, and every steamer employed on the great lakes, is provided with suitable chain cables, anchors and ground tackle in good condition sufficient for the service in which the vessel is employed, and that the cable be removed from the lockers at least once a year and cleaned if necessary, and the pins knocked out of the shackles.

Sec. 26. (a.) Inspectors of Hulls shall keep an office register book for new steamers, in which they shall enter particulars of their registration, officia number, name, port of registry, dimensions, tonnage ownership, names of master and engineers; also a general description of build, showing a sketch of the midship section, giving sizes of frames, planking, deck beams, clamps, knees, covering boards and fastenings as the case may be, sufficient to judge of the vessel and the fitness for the route on which it is to be placed. A description of the upper works on passenger steamers shall also be given stating how the same are secured to the hull, and what provision is made agains rolling in a heavy sea.

(c.) The fitness of the boats and other equipment for saving life, whether sufficient for the number o passengers the steamers is allowed to carry, together with the crew on the route she is to be placed shall also be given in the said particulars. A copy of these particulars in full made out neatly on foolscap paper shall be sent to the Chairman of the Board of Steamboat Inspection and shall be filed for reference in the office for the information of the Department o Marine.

Sec. 27. (a.) Each Inspector of Hulls will also keep an office docking book, in which he shall enter the date of last docking of each steamer inspected by him with particulars of repairs made upon her; also memoranda for her last inspection, as made by him the condition in which he then found the hull and equipment; with copy of any correspondence between the owner and master, relating to any repairs, fittings equipment, or other things which may require proof in the event of not having been complied with.

(b.) Inspectors of Hulls shall not consider their duty as finished in respect to a steamboat for which they have granted a certificate for a year or any shorter period, but are expected by the Department to have supervision over all steamboats, subject to the Act, within, or coming within their district. Should any infractions of the law on the part of an owner or master of steamboats come to the knowledge of an Inspector, whereby the safety of life or property is endangered, it will be his duty at once to cause steps to prevent such occurrence by reporting the case to the Department of Marine with the grounds of the complaint.

Passengers.

For ocean steamers the factor shall be......	10
For ocean coasting steamers..................	10
For steamers navigating in the great lakes.	9
For lake coasting, harbor, river, ferry and excursion steamers.........................	6

(b.) No deviation shall be made from this regulation unless with the consent of the Chairman of the Board of Steamboat Inspection and with the approval of the Minister of Marine and Fisheries.

(c.) In excursion steamers carrying passengers within the hold of the vessel, the limit shall be at the discretion of the Inspector, but in no case shall exceed as many as can find accommodation.

(d.) These factors may be increased to a further limit, if from age or unfitness, the vessel is not considered safe for the carriage of so many passengers.

Sec. 29. The carrying capacity in the number of persons of yawl boats shall be determined as follows, viz :—

By multiplying the length of the keel by the breadth and by the depth from top of keel to gunwale in feet, and then dividing the product by 10, the quotient will be the number of persons allowed to each boat.

Life-boats and their Equipments.

Sec. 30. (a.) Life-boat shall be built whale-boat fashion ; they should have a sheer of about ¾ inch to a foot, rising equally from amidship to the stem and stern, and to have sufficient strong serviceable air-tight compartments so constructed, fitted and arranged that water can not find its way into them.

(c.) Zinc shall not be used in the construction of a life-boat or in her air-casings.

(d.) The air-tight compartments must be so distributed as to give the boat good buoyancy and stability. Whether a part of the air-case should be under thwarts, or whether they should be in the ends and along the sides, will be, so long as an efficient life-boat is obtained, left to the option of the owner.

(h.) The life-boat must be provided with the full complement of oars properly secured ; two plugs for each plughole, attached with lanyards or chains, a bailer, rudder and tiller, also attached to the boat by lanyards ; a hatchet, attached with a lanyard, shall be kept in each end of the boat, and a painter and a boat hook.

(i.) Means for detaching speedily the life-boat from the lower blocks of the davit tackles must be provided. An ordinary fixed hook in the lower block should not be allowed. The boat's davits must be strong enough and so spaced that the boat can be swung out without unnecessary labor, so that the boat chocks can be expeditiously removed, and that the boat will not foul the ship's sides in lowering when the ship has no list ; and that the whole of the tacking davits, falls, blocks, eye-bolts, and rings, &c., are of sufficient strength to lower the boat with its full complement on board.

Rate or Duty.

Sec. 31. The following rate or duty shall be paid by the owner or master of every steamboat in Canada, under the provisions of the 46th section of chapter 78 of the Revised Statutes of Canada :

The rate or duty to be paid yearly by owners or masters of steamboats, shall be eight cents for every ton gross, each steamboat measures, on and after the 1st day of October, 1889. 25–4

DEMANDES AU PARLEMENT.

Règles relatives aux avis de bills privés.

Dans le cas de toute demande de bill privé, proprement du ressort législatif du Parlement du Canada, suivant les dispositions de l'Acte de l'Amérique Britannique du Nord, 1867, et ayant pour objet, soit la construction d'un pont, d'un chemin de fer, d'un chemin à barrières ou d'une ligne télégraphique ; soit la construction ou l'amélioration d'un port, d'un canal, d'une écluse, d'une digue ou d'une glissoire ou autre ouvrage semblable ; soit la concession d'un droit de passage d'eau, l'incorporation de professions ou métiers, ou d'une compagnie de banque ou autre compagnie par actions, soit la concession à une ou plusieurs personnes de certains droits ou privilèges exclusifs ou particuliers, soit le pouvoir de faire quelque chose qui, dans ses effets, pourrait toucher aux droits ou à la propriété d'autrui, ou concerner une classe particulière de la société ; ou ayant pour objet quelque amendement de même nature à un acte antérieur,—un avis, énonçant d'une manière claire et intelligible la nature et l'objet de la demande, et signé (excepté s'il s'agit de corporations déjà existantes) par les pétitionnaires ou de leur part, est nécessaire et doit être publié comme il suit :

Dans les provinces de Québec et du Manitoba.

Un avis doit être inséré dans la Gazette du Canada, et et dans un journal du comté, du district ou des comtés-unis intéressés, ou s'il n'y paraît pas de journal alors la publication doit se faire dans un journal du comté ou district le plus voisin où il s'en publie.

La publication de ces avis durera, dans chaque cas, la période de deux mois pendant l'intervalle de temps qui s'écoulera entre la clôture de la session précédente et la prise en considération de la pétition. Un exemplaire des numéros des journaux, reproduisant la première et la dernière insertion de l'avis, devra être transmis au greffier de chaque Chambre.

Toute personne désirant obtenir un bill privé devra, dans les huit jours qui précéderont l'ouverture du parlement, déposer au bureau du greffier de la Chambre dans laquelle le bill doit prendre naissance, une copie de ce bill en langue anglaise ou en langue française, avec une somme suffisante pour en payer la traduction et l'impression. Il en sera imprimé 600 exemplaires en anglais et 200 en français ; la traduction devra être faite par les officiers de la Chambre, et l'impression par l'entrepreneur des impressions. Le pétitionnaire aura aussi à payer au greffier du Sénat, ou au comptable de la Chambre des Communes (selon le cas) une somme de $200, plus le coût de l'impression de l'acte dans les Statuts, et remettra le reçu de ce paiement au greffier du comité auquel ce bill aura été renvoyé—le dit paiement sera effectué immédiatement après la seconde lecture avant la prise en considération du bill par le comité.

L'honoraire payable sur tout bill privé, ne sera payé que dans la Chambre où il a pris naissance.

EDOUARD J. LANGEVIN,
Greffier du Sénat.

JOHN GEORGE BOURINOT,
Greffier des Communes.

Règles additionnelles de la Chambre des Communes concernant les bills privés.

Tous les bills privés demandant des actes constitutifs devront être rédigés de manière à y incorporer, en les spécifiant, les clauses des Actes généraux concernant les détails qui font l'objet de ces bills ; des raisons spéciales seront données chaque fois que l'on aura l'intention de se départir de ce principe, ou que l'on voudra y introduire d'autres dispositions touchant ces détails ; et une note sera annexée au bill indiquant les dispositions au sujet desquelles l'on entend s'écarter de l'Acte général ; les bills qui ne seront pas rédigés conformément à cette Règle, devront être remodelés par les auteurs et réimprimés à leurs frais, avant qu'aucun comité en examine les clauses.

à moins qu'il n'ait été donné au comité, au moins une semaine avant la prise en considération du bill—

JOHN GEORGE BOURINOT,
Greffier des Communes.

SUBSTANCE DES RÈGLES ET FORMES DE PROCÉDER DU SÉNAT CONCERNANT LES BILLS DE DIVORCE.

L'époux qui a l'intention de demander un bill de divorce doit faire connaître cette intention, ainsi que les noms de l'autre époux et la cause du divorce, par avis inséré, durant trois mois, entre l'expiration de la dernière session parlementaire avant l'avis et la présentation de sa pétition pour obtenir le bill, dans la Gazette du Canada et dans deux journaux du district où il avait sa résidence habituelle à l'époque de séparation d'avec son conjoint, s'il résidait alors dans la province de Québec, le Manitoba, la Colombie-Britannique ou les Territoires du Nord-Ouest,—ou du comté ou des comtés-unis, s'il résidait dans une autre province ; mais si ce nombre de journaux ne s'y trouve pas, l'avis sera publié dans le district, le comté ou les comtés-unis voisins. Dans les provinces de Québec et de Manitoba, les insertions seront faites dans un journal anglais et un journal français, s'il en existe des deux langues dans le district ; autrement, elles se feront en anglais et en français au même journal.

Aucune pétition en divorce n'est reçue après l'expiration des trente premiers jours de la session.

Toute pétition en divorce devra être écrite lisiblement et porter la signature du pétitionnaire. Elle énoncera sommairement le fait du mariage, le lieu et l'époque de sa célébration, les noms du célébrant, les griefs qui donnent lieu à la demande de redressement et la nature du redressement demandé, et en outre contiendra assurance qu'il n'y a pas eu réconciliation, collusion ni connivence. Les allégations de la pétition seront appuyées de la déclaration du pétitionnaire, faite en vertu de "l'Acte concernant les serments extra-judiciaires."

La pétition en obtention d'un bill de divorce n'est présentée que lorsque le pétitionnaire a versé au bureau du greffier du Sénat une somme de $200.

DOMINION OF CANADA.

CHAMBER OF THE SENATE.

OTTAWA, Thursday, 16th January, 1890.

This day, at THREE o'clock P.M., HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR GENERAL proceeded in state to the Chamber of the Senate, in the Parliament Buildings, and took His Seat upon the Throne. The Members of the Senate being assembled, His Excellency was pleased to command the attendance of the House of Commons, and that House being present, His Excellency was pleased to open the FOURTH SESSION of the SIXTH PARLIAMENT OF THE DOMINION OF CANADA, with the following Speech :—

Honorable Gentlemen of the Senate,

Gentlemen of the House of Commons :

In calling you together again for the consideration of Public Affairs, I may fairly congratulate you on a continuance of the progress and prosperity of the Country.

During the recess I visited Manitoba, and the North-West Territories and British Columbia, and everywhere I found myself received with the loyalty and good-will which I have learned to be characteristic of Canada. A comparison of my own observation with those of my predecessors shows clearly the great progress which has marked this part of the Dominion, in the settlement of the Country and in the development of its great agricultural capabilities, of its mineral wealth and of its other natural resources.

In consequence of the repeated seizures by Cruisers of the United States Navy of Canadian Vessels, while employed in the capture of seals in that part of the Northern Pacific Ocean, known as Behring Sea, my Government has strongly represented to Her Majesty's Ministers, the necessity of protecting our shipping, while engaged in their lawful calling, as well as of guarding against the assumption by any nation of exclusive proprietory rights in those waters. I feel confident that those representations have had

PUISSANCE DU CANADA.

CHAMBRE DU SÉNAT.

OTTAWA, Jeudi, 16 Janvier 1890.

Honorables Messieurs du Sénat,

Messieurs de la Chambre des Communes :

Par suite des fréquentes saisies faites par des croiseurs de la marine des États-Unis, de navires canadiens pendant qu'ils capturaient des veaux marins dans cette partie de l'Océan Pacifique Septentrional, désignée sous le nom de mer de Behring, mon gouvernement a sérieusement insisté auprès des ministres de Sa Majesté sur la nécessité de protéger nos navires pendant qu'ils sont employés à leur légitime industrie, de veiller à ce qu'aucune nation n'affirme à ces eaux des droits de propriété exclusive. J'ai toute confiance que ces reprédue weight, and I hope to be enabled during the present Session to assure you that all differences on this question are in the course of satisfactory adjustment.

Having observed the close attention which has recently been given by the Imperial Authorities and on the Continent of Europe to the improvement in the methods of catching, curing and packing fish, I deemed it expedient to cause a Commission to be sent to Scotland and Holland to examine and report upon this subject during the fishing season. The report of the delegates will be laid before you; it will, I am sure, give our Fishermen most valuable information and instruction as to the best means of improving and developing this important industry.

My Ministers have carefully considered the difficulties which surround the administration of the rights of the Dominion in its foreshores, harbors, lakes and rivers, and a measure will be submitted to you for removing uncertainty as to the respective rights of the Dominion and of the Provinces, and for preventing confusion in the titles thereto.

The report of the Royal Commission on Labor, which was laid before you during the last Session, has been distributed throughout the country. I have reason to believe that the information which it contains will be found eminently useful in suggesting improvements in the administration of the laws which affect the working classes. Measures for the amendment of those laws, so far as they come within the jurisdiction of the Parliament of Canada, will be submitted for your consideration.

The early termination of the Acts of Incorporation of the principal banking institutions of the Dominion necessitates a review of our present system of Banking and an adjustment of the terms under which the Charters of these corporations should be renewed. Your attention will be drawn to this important subject.

Certain amendments to the Acts relating to the North-West Territories, calculated to facilitate the administration of affairs in that region, as also a Bill further to promote the efficiency of the North-West Mounted Police, will be submitted for your consideration.

Measures will be laid before you relating to Bills of Exchange and Promissory Notes, to improve the laws respecting patents of invention and discovery, to amend the Adulteration Act, and the law respecting the Inland Revenue, to amend also the Act respecting the Geological and Natural History Survey of Canada, and to provide for the better organization of the National Printing Establishment.

Gentlemen of the House of Commons:

The accounts for the past year will be laid before you. It will be found that the Estimates of Revenue have been realized, and that after having fully provided for the various public services of the country, a substantial surplus will remain. The Estimates for next year have been framed with a due regard to the requirements of the Public Service.

Honorable Gentlemen of the Senate:

Gentlemen of the House of Commons:

I commit these weighty matters, and all others which may come before you, to your earnest consideration, and I rely upon your wisdom and prudence to deal with them in the manner which, under Divine Providence, may prove most conducive to the happiness and prosperity of Canada.

sentations ont eu leur effet, et j'espère pouvoir, durant la présente session, être en mesure de vous assurer que tous les différends soulevés par cette question sont en voie de règlement satisfaisant.

Ayant remarqué la grande attention avec laquelle les autorités impériales, de même que les gouvernements européens, se sont occupés de l'amélioration des modes de pêche, de préparation et de paquage du poisson, j'ai cru qu'il était à propos d'envoyer une commission en Ecosse et en Hollande, chargée d'étudier cette question et de faire rapport de ses travaux pendant la saison de pêche. Le rapport des délégués vous sera soumis, et je suis convaincu que nos pêcheurs y trouveront des renseignements très utiles et des instructions pratiques sur les meilleurs moyens d'améliorer et développer cette importante industrie.

Honorables Messieurs du Sénat,

Messieurs de la Chambre des Communes:

Je livre ces importantes questions, ainsi que toutes autres qui pourront venir devant vous, à vos plus sérieuses délibérations; et je me repose en votre sagesse et votre prudence pour les décider avec l'aide de la Divine Providence, de la manière la plus propre à procurer le bonheur et la prospérité du Canada.

CHAMBER OF THE SENATE.

Ottawa, Thursday, 16th January, 1890.

This day, at Three o'clock P.M., His Excellency the Governor General proceeded in state to the Chamber of the Senate, in the Parliament Buildings, and took His Seat upon the Throne. The Members of the Senate being assembled, His Excellency was pleased to command the attendance of the House of Commons, and that House being present, His Excellency was pleased to open the Fourth Session of the Sixth Parliament of the Dominion of Canada, with the following Speech :—

Honorable Gentlemen of the Senate,
Gentlemen of the House of Commons :

In calling you together again for the consideration of Public Affairs, I may fairly congratulate you on a continuance of the progress and prosperity of the Country.

During the recess I visited Manitoba, and the North-West Territories and British Columbia, and everywhere I found myself received with the loyalty and good-will which I have learned to be characteristic of Canada. A comparison of my own observation with those of my predecessors shows clearly the great progress which has marked this part of the Dominion, in the settlement of the Country and in the development of its great agricultural capabilities, of its mineral wealth and of its other natural resources.

In consequence of the repeated seizures by Cruisers of the United States Navy of Canadian Vessels, while employed in the capture of seals in that part of the Northern Pacific Ocean, known as Behring Sea, my Government has strongly represented to

Her Majesty's Ministers, the necessity of protecting our shipping, while engaged in their lawful calling, as well as of guarding against the assumption by any nation of exclusive proprietory rights in those waters. I feel confident that those representations have had due weight, and I hope to be enabled during the present Session to assure you that all differences on this question are in the course of satisfactory adjustment.

Having observed the close attention which has recently been given by the Imperial Authorities and on the Continent of Europe to the improvement in the methods of catching, curing and packing fish, I deemed it expedient to cause a Commission to be sent to Scotland and Holland to examine and report upon this subject during the fishing season. The report of the delegates will be laid before you; it will, I am sure, give our Fishermen most valuable information and instruction as to the best means of improving and developing this important industry.

My Ministers have carefully considered the difficulties which surround the administration of the rights of the Dominion in its foreshores, harbors, lakes and rivers, and a measure will be submitted to you for removing uncertainty as to the respective rights of the Dominion and of the Provinces, and for preventing confusion in the titles thereto.

The report of the Royal Commission on Labor, which was laid before you during the last Session, has been distributed throughout the country. I have reason to believe that the information which it contains will be found eminently useful in suggesting improvements in the administration of the laws which affect the working classes. Measures for the amendment of those laws, so far as they come within the jurisdiction of the Parliament of Canada, will be submitted for your consideration.

The early termination of the Acts of Incorporation of the principal banking institutions of the Dominion necessitates a review of our present system of Banking and an adjustment of the terms under which the Charters of these corporations should be renewed. Your attention will be drawn to this important subject.

Certain amendments to the Acts relating to the North-West Territories, calculated to facilitate the administration of affairs in that region, as also a Bill further to promote the efficiency of the North-West Mounted Police, will be submitted for your consideration.

Measures will be laid before you relating to Bills of Exchange and Promissory Notes, to improve the laws respecting patents of invention and discovery, to amend the Adulteration Act, and the law respecting the Inland Revenue, to amend also the Act respecting the Geological and Natural History Survey of Canada, and to provide for the better organization of the National Printing Establishment.

Gentlemen of the House of Commons:

The accounts for the past year will be laid before you. It will be found that the Estimates of Revenue have been realized, and that after having fully provided for the various public services of the country, a substantial surplus will remain. The Estimates for next year have been framed with a due regard to the requirements of the Public Service.

Honorable Gentlemen of the Senate:
Gentlemen of the House of Commons:

I commit these weighty matters, and all others which may come before you, to your earnest consideration, and I rely upon your wisdom and prudence to deal with them in the manner which, under Divine Providence, may prove most conducive to the happiness and prosperity of Canada.

CHAMBRE DU SÉNAT.

Ottawa, Jeudi, 16 Janvier 1890.

Honorables Messieurs du Sénat,

Messieurs de la Chambre des Communes :

En vous convoquant de nouveau cette année pour la prise en considération des affaires publiques, je puis à juste titre vous féliciter sur la continuation des progrès et de la prospérité du pays.

Pendant la vacance j'ai visité le Manitoba, les territoires du Nord-Ouest et la Colombie-Britannique, et partout j'ai été reçu avec la loyauté et la bienveillance que je savais être l'un des traits caractéristiques de la population du Canada. Une comparaison entre mes propres observations et celles de mes prédécesseurs fait clairement ressortir les grands progrès qui, dans cette partie de la Confédération Canadienne, se sont opérés dans l'établissement du pays, et dans le développement de ses grandes ressources agricoles, de sa richesse minérale et de ses autres ressources naturelles.

Mes ministres ont soigneusement examiné les difficultés qui accompagnent l'exercice des droits du Canada au sujet de ses grèves maritimes, de ses havres, lacs, fleuves et rivières, et il vous sera soumis une mesure ayant pour but de dissiper l'incertitude qui existe à l'égard des droits respectifs du gouvernement fédéral et des provinces, et de prévenir toute confusion dans les titres à cet égard.

Le rapport de la Commission royale au sujet du travail, qui vous a été soumis au cours de la dernière session, a été répandu par tout le pays. J'ai tout lieu de croire que les renseignements qu'il contient seront de la plus haute utilité en indiquant les améliorations à apporter aux lois relatives aux classes ouvrières. Des mesures destinées à l'amendement de ces lois, en tant qu'elles tombent sous le contrôle du parlement du Canada, seront soumises à votre considération.

Certaines modifications aux actes relatifs aux territoires du Nord-Ouest, de nature à faciliter l'administration des affaires dans cette région, ainsi qu'un projet de loi destiné à accroître l'efficacité de la police à cheval du Nord-Ouest, seront soumis à vos délibérations.

Des mesures vous seront présentées au sujet des lettres de change et billets à ordre, pour améliorer les lois relatives aux brevets d'invention et de découverte, pour modifier l'Acte des falsifications et la loi concernant le Revenu de l'intérieur, et aussi pour modifier l'Acte concernant la Commission Géologique et d'Histoire naturelle du Canada, et pour pourvoir à une meilleure organisation de l'Imprimerie nationale.

Messieurs de la Chambre des Communes :

Honorables Messieurs du Sénat,

Messieurs de la Chambre des Communes :

DEMANDES AU PARLEMENT.

Règles relatives aux avis de bills privés.

Dans le cas de toute demande de bill privé, proprement du ressort législatif du Parlement du Canada, suivant les dispositions de l'Acte de l'Amérique Britannique du Nord, 1867, et ayant pour objet, soit la construction d'un pont, d'un chemin de fer, d'un chemin à barrières ou d'une ligne télégraphique ; soit la construction ou l'amélioration d'un port, d'un canal, d'une écluse, d'une digue ou d'une glissoire ou autre ouvrage semblable ; soit la concession d'un droit de passage d'eau, l'incorporation de professions ou métiers, ou d'une compagnie de banque ou autre compagnie par actions, soit la concession à une ou plusieurs personnes de certains droits ou privilèges exclusifs ou particuliers, soit le pouvoir de faire quelque chose qui, dans ses effets, pourrait toucher aux droits ou à la propriété d'autrui, ou concerner une classe particulière de la société ; ou ayant pour objet quelque amendement de même nature à un acte antérieur,—un avis, énonçant d'une manière claire et intelligible la nature et l'objet de la demande, et signé (excepté s'il s'agit de corporations déjà existantes) par les pétitionnaires ou de leur part, est nécessaire et doit être publié comme il suit :

Dans les provinces de Quebec et du Manitoba.

Un avis doit être inséré dans la Gazette du Canada, et et dans un journal du comté, du district ou des comtés-unis intéressés, ou s'il n'y paraît pas de journal alors la publication doit se faire dans un journal du comté ou district le plus voisin où il s'en publie.

La publication de ces avis durera, dans chaque cas, la période de deux mois pendant l'intervalle de temps qui s'écoulera entre la clôture de la session précédente et la prise en considération de la pétition. Un exemplaire des numéros des journaux, reproduisant la première et la dernière insertion de l'avis, devra être transmis au greffier de chaque Chambre.

Toute personne désirant obtenir un bill privé devra, dans les huit jours qui précéderont l'ouverture du parlement, déposer au bureau du greffier de la Chambre dans laquelle le bill doit prendre naissance, une copie de ce bill en langue anglaise ou en langue française, avec une somme suffisante pour en payer la traduction et l'impression. Il en sera imprimé 600 exemplaires en anglais et 200 en français ; la traduction devra être faite par les officiers de la Chambre, et l'impression par l'entrepreneur des impressions. Le pétitionnaire aura aussi à payer au greffier du Sénat, ou au comptable de la Chambre des Communes (selon le cas) une somme de $200, plus le coût de l'impression de l'acte dans les Statuts, et remettra le reçu de ce paiement au greffier du comité auquel ce bill aura été renvoyé—le dit paiement sera effectué immédiatement après la seconde lecture avant la prise en considération du bill par le comité.

L'honoraire payable sur tout bill privé, ne sera payé que dans la Chambre où il a pris naissance.

Greffier du Sénat.
JOHN GEORGE BOURINOT,
Greffier des Communes.

Règles additionnelles de la Chambre des Communes concernant les bills privés.

Tous les bills privés demandant des actes constitutifs devront être rédigés de manière à y incorporer, en les spécifiant, les clauses des Actes généraux concernant les détails qui font l'objet de ces bills ; des raisons spéciales seront données chaque fois que l'on aura l'intention de se départir de ce principe, ou que l'on voudra y introduire d'autres dispositions touchant ces détails ; et une note sera annexée au bill indiquant les dispositions au sujet desquelles l'on entend s'écarter de l'Acte général ; les bills qui ne seront pas rédigés conformément à cette Règle, devront être remodelés par les auteurs et réimprimés à leurs frais, avant qu'aucun comité en examine les clauses.

JOHN GEORGE BOURINOT,
Greffier des Communes.

SUBSTANCE DES RÈGLES ET FORMES DE PROCÉDER DU SÉNAT CONCERNANT LES BILLS DE DIVORCE.

L'époux qui a l'intention de demander un bill de divorce doit faire connaître cette intention, ainsi que les noms de l'autre époux et la cause du divorce, par avis inséré, durant trois mois, entre l'expiration de la dernière session parlementaire avant l'avis et la présentation de sa pétition pour obtenir le bill, dans la Gazette du Canada et dans deux journaux du district où il avait sa résidence habituelle à l'époque de séparation d'avec son conjoint, s'il résidait alors dans la province de Québec, le Manitoba, la Colombie-Britannique ou les Territoires du Nord-Ouest,—ou du comté ou des comtés-unis, s'il résidait dans une autre province ; mais si ce nombre de journaux ne s'y trouve pas, l'avis sera publié dans le district, le comté ou les comtés-unis voisins. Dans les provinces de Québec et de Manitoba, les insertions seront faites dans un journal anglais et un journal français, s'il en existe des deux langues dans le district ; autrement, elles se feront en anglais et en français au même journal.

Aucune pétition en divorce n'est reçue après l'expiration des trente premiers jours de la session.

Toute pétition en divorce devra être écrite lisiblement et porter la signature du pétitionnaire. Elle énoncera sommairement le fait du mariage, le lieu et l'époque de sa célébration, les noms du célébrant, les griefs qui donnent lieu à la demande de redressement et la nature du redressement demandé, et en outre contiendra assurance qu'il n'y a pas eu réconciliation, collusion ni connivence. Les allégations de la pétition seront appuyées de la déclaration du pétitionnaire, faite en vertu de "l'Acte concernant les serments extrajudiciaires."

Huit jours avant l'ouverture du Parlement, le pétitionnaire déposera au bureau du greffier du Sénat, une copie en langue anglaise ou française du bill de divorce qui doit être présenté, et en même temps une somme suffisante pour payer la traduction et l'impression et tirage à 600 exemplaires anglais et 200 exemplaires français de ce bill.

La pétition en obtention d'un bill de divorce n'est présentée que lorsque le pétitionnaire a versé au bureau du greffier du Sénat une somme de $200.

Un appel de la part des liquidateurs contre le jugement de la Cour Suprême du Nouveau-Brunswick a été plaidé devant la cour Suprême du Canada et attend jugement.

RÈGLES RELATIVES AUX AVIS DE BILLS PRIVÉS.

Dans le cas de toute demande de bill privé, proprement du ressort législatif du Parlement du Canada, suivant les dispositions de l'Acte de l'Amérique Britannique du Nord, 1867, et ayant pour objet, soit la construction d'un pont, d'un chemin de fer, d'un chemin à barrières ou d'une ligne télégraphique ; soit la construction ou l'amélioration d'un port, d'un canal, d'une écluse, d'une digue ou d'une glissoire ou autre ouvrage semblable ; soit la concession d'un droit de passage d'eau, l'incorporation de professions ou métiers, ou d'une compagnie de banque ou autre compagnie par actions, soit la concession à une ou plusieurs personnes de certains droits ou privilèges exclusifs ou particuliers, soit le pouvoir de faire quelque chose qui, dans ses effets, pourrait toucher aux droits ou à la propriété d'autrui, ou concerner une classe particulière de la société ; ou ayant pour objet quelque amendement de même nature à un acte antérieur,—un avis, énonçant d'une manière claire et intelligible la nature et l'objet de la demande, et signé (excepté s'il s'agit de corporations déjà existantes) par les pétitionnaires ou de leur part, est nécessaire et doit être publié comme il suit :

Dans les provinces de Quebec et du Manitoba.

Un avis doit être inséré dans la Gazette du Canada, et et dans un journal du comté, du district ou des comtés-unis intéressés, ou s'il n'y paraît pas de journal alors la publication doit se faire dans un journal du comté ou district le plus voisin où il s'en publie.

La publication de ces avis durera, dans chaque cas, la période de deux mois pendant l'intervalle de temps qui s'écoulera entre la clôture de la session précédente et la prise en considération de la pétition. Un exemplaire des numéros des journaux, reproduisant la première et la dernière insertion de l'avis, devra être transmis au greffier de chaque Chambre.

Toute personne désirant obtenir un bill privé devra, dans les huit jours qui précéderont l'ouverture du parlement, déposer au bureau du greffier de la Chambre dans laquelle le bill doit prendre naissance, une copie de ce bill en langue anglaise ou en langue française, avec une somme suffisante pour en payer la traduction et l'impression. Il en sera imprimé 600 exemplaires en anglais et 200 en français ; la traduction devra être faite par les officiers de la Chambre, et l'impression par l'entrepreneur des impressions. Le pétitionnaire aura aussi à payer au greffier du Sénat, ou au comptable de la Chambre des Communes (selon le cas) une somme de $200, plus le coût de l'impression de l'acte dans les Statuts, et remettra le reçu de ce paiement au greffier du comité auquel ce bill aura été renvoyé—le dit paiement sera effectué immédiatement après la seconde lecture avant la prise en considération du bill par le comité.

L'honoraire payable sur tout bill privé, ne sera payé que dans la Chambre où il a pris naissance.

Greffier du Sénat.
JOHN GEORGE BOURINOT,
Greffier des Communes.

RÈGLES ADDITIONNELLES DE LA CHAMBRE DES COMMUNES CONCERNANT LES BILLS PRIVÉS.

Tous les bills privés demandant des actes constitutifs devront être rédigés de manière à y incorporer, en les spécifiant, les clauses des Actes généraux concernant les détails qui font l'objet de ces bills ; des raisons spéciales seront données chaque fois que l'on aura l'intention de se départir de ce principe, ou que l'on voudra y introduire d'autres dispositions touchant ces détails ; et une note sera annexée au bill indiquant les dispositions au sujet desquelles l'on entend s'écarter de l'Acte général ; les bills qui ne seront pas rédigés conformément à cette Règle, devront être remodelés par les auteurs et réimprimés à leurs frais, avant qu'aucun comité en examine les clauses.

JOHN GEORGE BOURINOT,
Greffier des Communes.

SUBSTANCE DES RÈGLES ET FORMES DE PROCÉDER DU SÉNAT CONCERNANT LES BILLS DE DIVORCE.

L'époux qui a l'intention de demander un bill de divorce doit faire connaître cette intention, ainsi que les noms de l'autre époux et la cause du divorce, par avis inséré, durant trois mois, entre l'expiration de la dernière session parlementaire avant l'avis et la présentation de sa pétition pour obtenir le bill, dans la Gazette du Canada et dans deux journaux du district où il avait sa résidence habituelle à l'époque de séparation d'avec son conjoint, s'il résidait alors dans la province de Québec, le Manitoba, la Colombie-Britannique ou les Territoires du Nord-Ouest,—ou du comté ou des comtés-unis, s'il résidait dans une autre province ; mais si ce nombre de journaux ne s'y trouve pas, l'avis sera publié dans le district, le comté ou les comtés-unis voisins. Dans les provinces de Québec et de Manitoba, les insertions seront faites dans un journal anglais et un journal français, s'il en existe des deux langues dans le district ; autrement, elles se feront en anglais et en français au même journal.

Aucune pétition en divorce n'est reçue après l'expiration des trente premiers jours de la session.

Toute pétition en divorce devra être écrite lisiblement et porter la signature du pétitionnaire. Elle énoncera sommairement le fait du mariage, le lieu et l'époque de sa célébration, les noms du célébrant, les griefs qui donnent lieu à la demande de redressement et la nature du redressement demandé, et en outre contiendra assurance qu'il n'y a pas eu réconciliation, collusion ni connivence. Les allégations de la pétition seront appuyées de la déclaration du pétitionnaire, faite en vertu de "l'Acte concernant les serments extrajudiciaires."

Huit jours avant l'ouverture du Parlement, le pétitionnaire déposera au bureau du greffier du Sénat, une copie en langue anglaise ou française du bill de divorce qui doit être présenté, et en même temps une somme suffisante pour payer la traduction et l'impression et tirage à 600 exemplaires anglais et 200 exemplaires français de ce bill.

La pétition en obtention d'un bill de divorce n'est présentée que lorsque le pétitionnaire a versé au bureau du greffier du Sénat une somme de $200.

JAMAICA INDUSTRIAL AND MANUFACTURING EXHIBITION, TO BE OPENED IN JAMAICA, JANUARY, 1891.

Committee in United Kingdom :

Honorary President :—The Right Hon. The Lord Knutsford, G.C.M.G., &c., &c.

Chairman :—C. Washington Eves, Esq., F.R.G.S.

Committee :—His Grace The Duke of St. Albans ; Sir Henry Barkly, G.C.M.G., K.C.B. ; Sir Frederick Young, K.C.M.G. ; Sir Edward Newton, K.C.M.G. ; Sir J. R. Somers Vine, F.S.S. ; Major-General J. R. Mann, C.M.G. ; Sir John Simon ; Neville Lubbock, Esq. ; Alexander Crum Ewing, Esq. ; Richard M. Harvey, Esq., F.R.G.S. ; D. Morris, Esq., M.A., F.L.S. ; Maxwell Hall, Esq., M.A., F.R.A.S. ; Dr. D. Palmer Ross, F.R.C.S.E. ; J. Kenyon Hawthorn, Esq. ; W. C. C. Park, Esq. ; Samuel Shortridge, Esq. ; Wm. Fawcett, Esq., B.Sc., F.L.S. ; E. A. de Pass, Esq.

The Exhibition, to be opened in January, 1891, will be managed by a Commission, His Excellency the Governor being at the head. This Commission has already been constituted by a Colonial Law.

A Committee has been formed in London, representing Jamaica interests in the United Kingdom, to co-operate with the organizing body in Jamaica. The Committee, as at present constituted, is given above, the consent of Lord Knutsford to act as Honorary President being especially gratifying to all connected with the Colony. That the scheme has taken practical shape is proved by the fact that in the Colony alone over £16,000 has already been guaranteed, out of a total of £20,000 required.

The Exhibition will comprise specimens of all Jamaica products : Sugar of all qualities and its allied industry of Rum manufacture ; Liqueurs, Cordials, &c. ; Coffee ; Oranges, Pine Apples and Fruits of all kinds ; Pimento, Cacao, Annatto ; Woods in all degrees of preparation for use ; Spices, Condiments, &c. ; Fibres and Fibrous Materials ; Cinchona Bark, Oils, Essential Oils, Perfumes, &c. ; Medicinal and Economic substances ; Works of Art, Pictures, Fancy Articles and Ornamental Work ; Horses, Cattle and Live Stock of all kinds. The Botany and Geology of the Island will also be fully illustrated.

There will also be exhibited specimens of goods imported into Jamaica from all countries.

It is hoped that all parts of the Empire will add to the interest and completeness of this exposition by sending specimens and ornamental trophies illustrative of their productions.

The attention of Merchants and Manufacturers in the United Kingdom is especially invited. English goods find a ready market in a Colony of nearly 650,000 people. It is also desired to show the advance of science in manufacturing tropical products. The Engineering Firms and Manufacturers of Machinery are requested to give their aid by exhibiting plans, drawings, models and specimens, so far as convenient, of actual machinery connected with such manufactures.

Shipowners are earnestly requested to co-operate by offering to take out specimens free of freight ; and all who are interested in the commerce and productive prosperity of Jamaica are desired to give their help to an undertaking which must be beneficial to the Colony and all concerned in its fortunes.

As the Exhibition will be made as attractive as possible, the question of hotel accommodation for visitors from all parts of the British Empire, from the Continent of Europe, and the United States and South America, will be considered, and details published in good time.

Communications and applications for forms and regulations to be addressed as early as possible to the Chairman, 1 Fen Court, London, E. C.

RÈGLES RELATIVES AUX AVIS DE BILLS PRIVÉS.

Dans le cas de toute demande de bill privé, proprement du ressort législatif du Parlement du Canada, suivant les dispositions de l'Acte de l'Amérique Britannique du Nord, 1867, et ayant pour objet, soit la construction d'un pont, d'un chemin de fer, d'un chemin à barrières ou d'une ligne télégraphique ; soit la construction ou l'amélioration d'un port, d'un canal, d'une écluse, d'une digue ou d'une glissoire ou autre ouvrage semblable ; soit la concession d'un droit de passage d'eau, l'incorporation de professions ou métiers, ou d'une compagnie de banque ou autre compagnie par actions, soit la concession à une ou plusieurs personnes de certains droits ou privilèges exclusifs ou particuliers, soit le pouvoir de faire quelque chose qui, dans ses effets, pourrait toucher aux droits ou à la propriété d'autrui, ou concerner une classe particulière de la société ; ou ayant pour objet quelque amendement de même nature à un acte antérieur,—un avis, énonçant d'une manière claire et intelligible la nature et l'objet de la demande, et signé (excepté s'il s'agit de corporations déjà existantes) par les pétitionnaires ou de leur part, est nécessaire et doit être publié comme il suit :

Dans les provinces de Quebec et du Manitoba.

Un avis doit être inséré dans la Gazette du Canada, et et dans un journal du comté, du district ou des comtés-unis intéressés, ou s'il n'y paraît pas de journal alors la publication doit se faire dans un journal du comté ou district le plus voisin où il s'en publie.

La publication de ces avis durera, dans chaque cas, la période de deux mois pendant l'intervalle de temps qui s'écoulera entre la clôture de la session précédente et la prise en considération de la pétition. Un exemplaire des numéros des journaux, reproduisant la première et la dernière insertion de l'avis, devra être transmis au greffier de chaque Chambre.

Toute personne désirant obtenir un bill privé devra, dans les huit jours qui précéderont l'ouverture du parlement, déposer au bureau du greffier de la Chambre dans laquelle le bill doit prendre naissance, une copie de ce bill en langue anglaise ou en langue française, avec une somme suffisante pour en payer la traduction et l'impression. Il en sera imprimé 600 exemplaires en anglais et 200 en français ; la traduction devra être faite par les officiers de la Chambre, et l'impression par l'entrepreneur des impressions. Le pétitionnaire aura aussi à payer au greffier du Sénat, ou au comptable de la Chambre des Communes (selon le cas) une somme de $200, plus le coût de l'impression de l'acte dans les Statuts, et remettra le reçu de ce paiement au greffier du comité auquel ce bill aura été renvoyé—le dit paiement sera effectué immédiatement après la seconde lecture avant la prise en considération du bill par le comité.

L'honoraire payable sur tout bill privé, ne sera payé que dans la Chambre où il a pris naissance.

Aucune pétition pour l'obtention d'un bill privé ne sera reçue par l'une ou par l'autre Chambre après les dix premiers jours de la session.

51a. Tous les bills privés pour chartes ou pour modification de chartes de compagnies de chemins de fer seront rédigés conformément au bill-modèle adopté par la Chambre, le 23 juin 1887, dont copie peut être obtenue du greffier de la Chambre ;

à moins qu'il n'ait été donné au comité, au moins une semaine avant la prise en considération du bill—

L'époux qui a l'intention de demander un bill de divorce doit faire connaître cette intention, ainsi que les noms de l'autre époux et la cause du divorce, par avis inséré, durant trois mois, entre l'expiration de la dernière session parlementaire avant l'avis et la présentation de sa pétition pour obtenir le bill, dans la Gazette du Canada et dans deux journaux du district où il avait sa résidence habituelle à l'époque de séparation d'avec son conjoint, s'il résidait alors dans la province de Québec, le Manitoba, la Colombie-Britannique ou les Territoires du Nord-Ouest,—ou du comté ou des comtés-unis, s'il résidait dans une autre province ; mais si ce nombre de journaux ne s'y trouve pas, l'avis sera publié dans le district, le comté ou les comtés-unis voisins. Dans les provinces de Québec et de Manitoba, les insertions seront faites dans un journal anglais et un journal français, s'il en existe des deux langues dans le district ; autrement, elles se feront en anglais et en français au même journal.

Aucune pétition en divorce n'est reçue après l'expiration des trente premiers jours de la session.

Toute pétition en divorce devra être écrite lisiblement et porter la signature du pétitionnaire. Elle énoncera sommairement le fait du mariage, le lieu et l'époque de sa célébration, les noms du célébrant, les griefs qui donnent lieu à la demande de redressement et la nature du redressement demandé, et en outre contiendra assurance qu'il n'y a pas eu réconciliation, collusion ni connivence.
